Science Makes Cheap Wheat.

Mr. Raskob Sees Hope.

Children as Spies.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

A TERRIFIC wind, blowing 150 miles an hour and for hours without ceasing, has destroyed Santo Domingo, chief city of the Dominican Republic. The houses of the prosperous class were leveled and the lighter dwellings of the poor were picked up and carried away by the terrific wind.

In Santo Domingo, 50,000 are menaced by hunger, thieves are at work in the ruins, and as this is written, the wind speeds on, headed, it is feared, for the coast of the United States.

IT IS BELIEVED that the speed of this latest destructive hurricane was at times the greatest on record. Yet the modern high speed airplane could easily fly away from it, and around it.

A mail or passenger plane of 200 or 250 miles an hour speed, could, with perfect safety, fly ahead and away from the path of such a tornado.

FARMERS SHOULD know that science is responsible for the surplus crop and low price of wheat. Thirty-two years ago, a great scientist, Sir William Crooke, told the British Scientific Association:

"Unless something is done to prevent it, 1931 will see such a lack of wheat as will cause widespread starvation."

And now 1930 sees more wheat than the people can eat.

PROF. BYER tells the British Science Association that science has done more than Sir William Crooke expected. Botany and scientific production of fertilizers, nitrogen especially, have extended the northern limits of wheat production so far that any possibility of shortage vanishes.

MR. RASKOB, manager of Democrats, says President Hoover running for office now couldn't be elected, because the "Republicans could not exploit prosperity." They could, however, exploit Protestantism. And while the fact isn't generally mentioned, that had much to do with the Democratic and Republican votes of 1928, the two biggest ever recorded in our history.

INSTRUCTING 12 chief prohibition agents in the art of getting evidence, the use of small boys as spies is recommended. Agents are told by their superiors that two small boys can play near the home of the suspect and watch without attracting much attention, whereas a man loitering near would arouse suspicion.

It seems unfortunate to recommend the use of children as spies, even in the cause of virtue. A bad effect on character is certain.

Young girls might be trained to act as spies in the detection of disorderly resorts, but public opinion would not approve it.

AUSTRALIANS AND OTHERS are impressed by old Solomoni, an old aboriginal Australian witch doctor, who predicted "drenching rains to end the drought in the first quarter of the moon."

The drenching rains came, crops were saved. Solomoni is a hero, and the weather bureau which saw no rain coming, is made ridiculous.

The public, eager to be deceived, hears and cares nothing about the ten thousand witch doctors and other prophets that in the same week predicted things that did not and will not happen.

CAPT. HAWKS, in Kansas City, criticises the French aviators for using a land plane, unable to alight on water, and calls their flight "a great display of nerve, but a foolish thing."

"If the flight across the ocean had been made in a seaplane something would have been accomplished for aviation."

SOMETHING IS accomplished by any kind of flight across the ocean. Capt. Hawks some day will wonder why he ever believed a seaplane would be necessary for ocean crossings. Men don't put wheels on ships to enable them to run on land, because they don't expect them to run on land. And they will not put hulls for water landing on trans-Atlantic planes because they won't expect airplanes to land on the water.

A hundred different kinds of little birds, migrating, cross the oceans every year. They could not swim or survive if they should alight on the water. They don't light on th water. And what small birds can do, men will do.

WASHINGTON REPORTS that President Hoover will extend considerably the plans for his coming speechmaking tour. His desire is to help Republican candidates in the House and Senate. Some of them will need help.

Many things worry the Republicans that were not expected to worry them in the gay boom times of November, 1928. First, the drop, temporarily, in our gigantic prosperity; second, unemployment, and third, what is described as "the growing hostility to prohibition."

The third worry would not have been expected two years ago, when Republicans announced that prohibition enthusiasm accounted for Mr. Hoover's gigantic vote.

THOSE THAT opposed the tariff will greet with "I told you so" the news that Uncle Sam's customs receipts in the last two months have been more than fifty millions dollars, compared with a year ago, or about one half. However, nobody can prove how much the higher tariff has to do with it, how much of the drop comes from bad business, and how much from the fact that importers rushed in supplies of goods ahead of the new tariff.

HEMPHILL HERE, HOLDS PARLEY

John M. Hemphill, anti-dry candidate for governor on the Democrat and Liberal parties, is in Pittsburgh today visiting political leaders, relatives and former army buddies.

He conferred at length with Joseph F. Guffey, former Democrat national committeeman; David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Democratic committee of Allegheny County, and T. W. Friend, a cousin, president of the Clinton Iron and Steel Company and the First National Bank of McKees Rocks. The meeting was held in Guffey's office in the Professional Building, 429 Penn avenue.

SAN DOMINGO STORM TOLL GROWS

Only 400 Buildings Standing in City; U. S. Aid Near; Red Cross Sends $25,000

By RENE M. LEPERVANCHE
Associated Press.

(Copyright, 1930, and all rights reserved by the Associated Press.)

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 5.—There were only 400 buildings left standing today in the city of Santo Domingo out of 10,000. The storm spared only those too strong for it.

Dead and injured in Wednesday's hurricane far exceeded in number the ability of relief workers to calculate with accuracy.

Available estimates gave 1,000 dead and 5,000 injured.

Reports from interior points show that the already tremendous proprtions of the greatest of recent Caribbean storms must be increased with the arrival of information hour by hour from points left isolated.

RESORT TO MASS CREMATION

Although 40 hours have passed since the catastrophe we are still extricating bodies from beneath the ruins.

It is impossible to deal at this moment with particular cases among the victims. They are all so bad it looks more as if an earthquake had devastated this island than a windstorm.

We have started to bury the dead, but the task has been so hopeless that to solve the urgent problem of sanitation a system of mass incineration has been adopted.

The colonial churches, among the sturdiest buildings, have become the haven of thousands left homeless.

3-Gun Wilson, Due to Go, Leads $60,000 Raid

Deputy Prohibition Administrator Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, whose raid on the Amen Corner picnic in July is said to have brought down the wrath of political leaders on his head, is to be transferred to Wilmington, Del., according to reports from Washington.

Co-incidental with the report of his removal, Wilson went out today and made a huge booze haul when he confiscated a carload of alcohol, valued at $60,000, in the freight yards of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad, under the Manchester Bridge. Records disclosed the shipment was made from Trenton, N. J., in the district of Administrator John D. Pennington.

"CANNED FRUIT"

The 200 cases of 188 proof alcohol, bearing "canned fruit" labels, were consigned to the Nevins Supply Company, and the North Side Cut Price store, according to the

BOMBED HOUSE YIELDS BODY

The ruins of the vacant house at 1054 Wheeler street, blown apart yesterday by a bomb, today yielded up the body of Joseph Skiroe, 35, of 8116 Frankstown avenue, reported missing an hour febore the bombing.

Police, investigating the two explosions which rocked the district and caused $4,000 damage, found the nude corpse under debris in a sub cellar.

Coroner's deputies are trying to determine the cause of death while police delve intto the mystery of Skiroe's presence there.

He was married and had two children. His wife, Josephine, identified the body, and said he had left home at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, to "arrange for a moving job."

A careful search of the ruins revealed no additional bodies, nor was any further evidence of crime found. The police are working on two theories: that Skiroe had been enticed to the house in which the bomb was placed, or that he had planted the bomb, and been trapped before he could flee.

'BLUNDER' MAY COST $483,000

County Expense of Running Road Into Water Plant Raised From $250,000

The Allegheny River boulevard blunder which County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern a few weeks ago declared would cost the county $250,000, will probably cost $483,000, it developed today at a Commissioners' meeting at which the project was discussed.

The hearing adjourned with Public Works Director Norman F. Brown instructed by the commissioners to confer with Pennsylvania Water Company officials on a plan which will permit passing the water works plant with the boulevard.

WILL MEET ON PLANS

When these plans are completed, Pennsylvania Railroad company officials and the commissioners will meet to approve the plans. This suggestion was made by Commissioner McGovern.

George S. Davison, vice president of the water company, the plant of which is directly on the right-of-way of the boulevard, told the commissioners that until April of this year his company had no knowledge of the contract negotiated by Brown and entered into with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company by the county, which provides for the moving of their main lines. This removal has a direct bearing on the operation of his plant, Davison said, and when he learned of the contract in April, met with Brown, who agreed to an alternative plan by which the boulevard could be built but at an additional $483,000 cost.

SAYS BROWN AGREED

Davison said:

"Brown agreed to submit a nplan, but I have been waiting on that plan since June. We have said to the county, 'don't go through the lower part of our yard. We have been willing to consider an alternative plan to cross it at another point.'"

Davison told the commissioners that he was sailing for Europe October 5, 1929, and that Brown called other officials of the water

ROB, BEAT NORTH SIDE MANAGER

Pair Attacks Man as He Leaves Taxi With Money At Cruickshank Factory

Two giant armed thugs today stole the $3,500 payroll of Cruikshank Brothers from an official of the company as he alighted from a taxicab at the company's building, Island and Preble avenues, at 1:30 o'clock.

The official, Francis Bradshaw, credit manager, resisted the bandits, who thrust automatics into his ribs, beating one of his assailants with his fists.

The robbery was first reported to North Side police by Wallace Thompson, a cab driver, who rushed into the station and told police that a "package" his "fare" was carrying was stolen in a holdup.

The driver said Bradshaw got the money at the First National Bank. He drove the man to Island and Preble avenues, where he alighted. At that moment, he said, two large men, attired like hobos, got out of a sedan, whipped pistols from their pockets and, without speaking a word, covered the official and snatched the payroll.

The victim, according to the driver, grappled with the men, but was felled with a hard blow of one of the men. He screamed for help and the bandits fled in their car. The license number is reported to be 544L3. As they rushed into the car the coins in the money package fell to the street.

The bandit car sped to Beaver avenue where it turned toward the downtown district.

Senate's Fund Inquiry Condemned by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 5.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The Senatorial Committee investigating campaign expenses is not a dignified spectacle.

After the Supreme Court decision that jurisdiction over nominations rests with the states, an investigation of them under the fiction that it is for the purpose of future legislation is a questionable use of authority. It would seem to lead almost to the conclusion that the people cannot be trusted to choose their own candidates without supervision. To admit that is to admit that self-government has failed.

Calvin Coolidge

Proper police power should be invoked through executive action against violations of the law. For a legislative committee to engage in it, to direct a force of detectives against candidates as though they were suspected of criminal action, does not comport with the dignity of a great deliberative body. Now a counter band of detectives is investigating the investigators.

Evil practices in making nominations should be prevented and punished. But that is not the function of the Senate. Liberty requires that the executive, legislature and judiciary be kept separate. Tainted elections can be handled in a dignified way on the Senate floor. They do not warrant a dangerous invasion of executive functions and state rights.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Princess Annoyed By Loyal Belgians

BRUSSELS, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Stuyvenberg Castle, where Crown Princess Astrid of Belgium is awaiting the birth of her second child, had to be encircled by barbed wire in order to keep away crowds of curious and excited Belgians and tourists today. The curiosity and persistence of her subjects made her somewhat fretful, and proved troublesome to castle officials.

Her first child was a girl, Princess Josephine Charlotte, born October 11, 1927.

LOTTERIES PREY ON STUDENTS

After he was informed that "numbers" bookies were plying their trade among school children, and that confectioners in school districts were agents for the lotteries, Safety Director James M. Clark today issued an order to have police stamp out the evil.

The director announced he would attempt to revoke the license of confectioners and proprietors of other stores who were found to be agents of the racket. He has asked police magistrates to hold all violators for court.

CLARK STATEMENT

Director Clark said in part:

"I have done everything I could to stod the 'numbers' racket. I am against it and, while it has always been deplorable, the knowledge that it is gulping the money of school children makes the condition

SHAW BREAKS SPEED LIMITS

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—George Bernard Shaw caused a sensation in this city today when he dashed into town at 60 miles an hour behind the wheel of his car. His venerable beard was afloat in the breeze and his chauffeur sat gasping beside the famous writer.

G. B. S. became impatient at the car's pace while en route to a meeting of the British Scientists' Association here, and changed seats with the chauffeur.

The scientists were discussing agricultural problems of South Africa. Shaw was called on, and was brief:

"Calling on me to intervene on an occasion which is most serious appears to me unpardonable frivolity," he said. "There is only one thing I know about South Africa and that's the box office returns. They are far from satisfactory."

Alice Drops Her Suit Against Kip's Father

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley today signed an order of discontinuance under which Alice Jones Rhinelander, ex-wife of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, agreed to drop an alienation of affections suit for $500,000 against Commodore Philip Rhinelander, her former father-in-law.

The judge's action brought to an end the many-sided litigation which followed the marriage of the heir to the Rhinelander millions and the daughter of a Negro hackman.

"Max" and "Joe," compared by many to Damon and Pythias, seem to have justified the suspicion that a breach has chilled a 25-year friendship.

Less familiarly they are known as State Senator Max G. Leslie and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

Armstrong is at the zenith of his career as head of the County Commissioners and of the Republican County Committee. Leslie has just returned to Pittsburgh after several months' absence, during which he took no active part in public affairs.

They met unexpectedly last Wednesday night at the Dells, Wildwood, while awaiting a dinner climaxing a golf tournament of employes of the Allegheny

Mayor Promised to Reopen Obey School, Declares Woman Leading Protest

Parents of Obey School District pupils are more determined than ever in their effort to have the school reopened so that their children may attend classes without walking a great distance over dangerous roads, Mrs. Minnie Roberts said today.

Mrs. Roberts said that last year the Board of Education promised to consider their petition to have the Obey School reopened, but that nothing was ever heard of it.

CITES MAYOR

Declaring that the taxpayers of the district were not receiving fair treatment, Mrs. Roberts said:

"When Mayor Kline campaigned out here he said that if he was re-elected, the school would be reopened, and something must be done for us. It's really taxation without representation, and if we don't get some relief there'll be another 'Boston tea party'."

This year, she said, the children will continue to attend outdoor classes being conducted by herself and Miss Mable Oakes until the meeting of the board September 23.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT

If the school is not opened then, Mrs. Roberts said, parents of the district will find some other means of educating their children closer to their homes. The children will not return to Schaeffer school, it was said.

About 25 children reported for classes in the first five grades at the Obey open air school today.

Children of the Braun School, Shaler Township, must continue riding in a bus to the Glenshaw School, members of the township school board ruled at a meeting yesterday.

PARENTS VOICE PROTEST

Twenty parents attended and protested against the bus ride which ends with a steep hill at Glenshaw. They indicated, however, they would abide by the board's decree, inasmuch as the state will not permit 90 pupils to be housed in the basement of the Braun School.

EX-PUBLISHER, CONVICT, FLEES

LA GRANGE, Ga., Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Authorities today were convinced that Robert Elliott Burns, former Chicago publisher who escaped from a Troup County chain gang for the second time yesterday, has succeeded in putting Georgia behind him in his flight.

Bloodhounds were unable to pick up Burns' trail from the chain gang camp, 8 miles from here, from which he calmly walked away yesterday morning unnoticed.

Burns, discharged from the Army in 1922, and penniless, with two other men, staged a $4 hold-up in Atlanta, and got $1.33 as his share. He was sentenced from 6 to 10 years, served less than two months of his sentence and escaped.

He virtually dropped out of existence until June 26 of last year when he was found in Chicago where he had become a $20,000 a year publisher.

Burns was returned to Georgia to finish his term. He escaped for the second time yesterday.

Wales to Establish Airdrome at Palace

acute. I have issued instructions to Police Supt. Walsh to have officers in school districts make a special effort to stamp out the evil."

With the opening of the schools, the nickels and dimes that comprise the lunch money of pupils are being poured into the pockets of the "numbers" men, it was indicated, when bookies—some of whom are the pupils—were active in and near schools.

The bookies were prominent near the Fifth Avenue High School. On the corners and on the steps outside the building the "writers," young and old, were plying their trade among the pupils.

It was indicated that the "numbers" racket has almost entirely supplanted the slot machine and the punch board menace that heretofore had comprised the racketeers' bid for the lunch money of the school pupils.

The racketeers were also seen operating at the Westinghouse, Peabody and Schenley High Schools. Literature, giving "tips" on various numbers were distributed or sold, and keen interest was manifested. Some of these pamphlets were tacked on poles in the vicinity and some were observed on school fences.

These sheets also were displayed in confectionery stores in the school districts, and in these stores, with books in hand, the bookies were working.

Before school opened they were seen selling numbers for today's clearing house number, and at lunch time they were bargaining for the nickel and dime lunch money for tomorrow's number. The betting ranged from 1 cent to 10 cents, a bet rarely reaching beyond that limit. The bookies found the trade good as a whole. Many of the bets were of the credit variety. Some bookies distributed books among the pupils and they were permitted to select their numbers at leisure in school hours.

Italy Seeks Death For 18 Terrorists

High pressure centers over New England, over the Ohio Valley and the region between the Ohio and the Gulf, while a trough of low pressure extending from the Lakes southwestward to Arizona, and thence northward to Alberta, with centers over Iowa and Northern Kansas and Arizona, is causing cloudy weather, with scattered thundershowers in the upper Lakes and portions of the plains and Southern Rocky Mountains. Other high centers over the Dakotas and Manitoba and in the North Pacific states. It is warmer in the Lake region and the upper Mississippi Valley, and cooler in the Northern Rocky Mountains, the Dakotas and Manitoba.

River Conditions

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is seven (7) feet; Lock No. 7, 6.0; Pittsburgh, 9.5; Dam No. 1, 9.1; Dam No. 8, 7.1; Dam No. 9, 8.0; and Dam No. 12, 6.1. The canal is up.

RIOTING FEARED IN ARGENTINE

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 5.—Three thousand students began marching up the Avenida Mayo today toward the Plaza Mayo, where the government house is located. The demonstration was pacific, but observers feared there would be rioting if the police interfered.

Guards were strengthened about the central police department and every precaution taken to prevent continuation of disorders which, during the last 24 hours, have cost two lives and caused serious fighting in the streets.

Students at La Plata declared a general strike today as a protest against the police attitude during yesterday's disorders in Buenos Aires.

The political situation in the Argentine reached a crisis today. The Argentine reached a crisis today when the cabinet ministers in a body confronted President Hipolito Irigoyen with a request that he resign, it was learned from a reliable source.

The president, it was reported, met his ministers in the presidential palace and requested a status quo until Monday, which was agreed to.

4 Chicago Gunmen Hold up Church

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Into the church of St. Francis of Assisium last night went four men with revolvers, taking $750 from officers of the St. Thomas Building and Loan Association, who were meeting in the church offices. It is one of the few cases on record in which gunmen have chosen a church for the scene of banditry.

LOG ILLEGIBLE, ANDREE FATE UNTOLD

Record Ends Sept. 5, 1897; Horn Suggests Expedition Search Out Other Relics

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The story of the Andree polar balloon expedition, it is understood, is legible in the explorer's notes up to September 5, 1897. It is said there is writing in Andree's log after that date, but that it is illegible.

The condition of the diary after September 5 is such that it may be impossible, therefore, to follow the story of the fate of the expedition as told by its leader himself beyond that date.

ARRIVED SEPTEMBER 5

It would seem that the trio arrived on White Island September 5, after having battled their way across the ice since mid-July, when their balloon met disaster on its attempted flight to the North Pole.

Dr. Gunnar Horn proposed today that a Swedish expedition be sent to White Island, next summer, to look for further evidences of the Andree expedition.

Dr. Horn said it is possible Frankel's body might be found there, buried in ice. Many things the Horn party found were dug up from a depth of 18 inches or more. It is considered possible that Frankel's body lies further down in the ice.

CREW SEEKS REWARD

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—The crew of the whaler Bratvaag which brought back Dr. Gunnar Horn and the remains of the Andree North Pole expedition, submitted a claim for reward to the Norwegian government today.

This was filed through Attorney M. Falck, of Tromsoe, Norway, on the ground that they and not Dr. Horn's expedition made the epic find. The crew asserted that the bodies of Andree and Strindberg were found by them, as well as the remains of the camp after Dr. Horn's expedition had finished its work.

The specific reward requested by the crew is the small fortune paid Dr. Horn for his newspaper story of the discovery.

company to his office on October 4 and discussed an alternative plan with them.

Brown said:

"They seemed to agree to the plan, but October 29 they said that they did not have the copy of the plan. I sent them a duplicate plan.'

Davison then asked:

"When was this plan submitted?"

Brown said:

"October 4, 1929."

Commissioner Armstrong interrupted to ask if these men were not officials of the company.

Davison said that they are, but that he is solely empowered with authority in matters of this kind and that they could not approve any plans and did not.

Davison continued:

"I am waiting on this gentleman since June 24 for this plan. When I learned of the contract I was forced to tell Brown that he could not go ahead. When this first came up, as I said, I was leaving on a trip round the world. Mr. Hawley wrote a full report of the meeting that they had with Mr. Brown, and I know what transpired just as if I were there. Mr. Brown was very active while I was away and since I have returned.

"On March 29, 1930, I was called up and read a letter from our chief engineer in which the Department of Public Works of Allegheny County notified them to get out of their property in 10 days. Gentlemen, Mr. Brown was notifying the Pennsylvania Water Company to vacate property not for the county, but for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

BROWN ASTONISHED

"I called in our people and Brown and he seemed astonished when told that he could not condemn property for a third party."

Davison said that he was willing to go to any length to get the matter adjusted amicably, but that Brown refused to go to Gov. John S. Fisher or the War Department to arrange for moving the harbor line in the river at the water plant.

Brown said:

"I did not want to disturb the harbor line. I did not want to inconvenience you."

Davison retorted:

"You refused to go to the Governor then. Will you go to him now?"

Brown asserted:

"That's not the question. I did not want to inconvenience your company."

Davison countered:

"You're not inconveniencing us. You have to pay the bill."

County Department of Public Works in North Park. Armstrong seemed surprised to encounter Leslie, but the two talked briefly, according to observers.

John J. Burke, of the County Park Bureau, as chairman of the dinner, escorted Armstrong to the speakers' table while Leslie took a seat at one of the numerous employes' tables. Commissioner Edward V. Babcock entered and proceeded to the speakers' table after a passing greeting with Leslie.

Burke later asked Leslie to the head table, and when he declined, Armstrong tried his hand. Armstrong arose and said:

"Will Mr. Leslie please come to the speakers' table?"

Leslie replied:

"No, I'd rather sit here with my friends."

Leslie's companions included Alvin Dillman, Leslie's former secretary, now chief clerk of the County Road Department, and John A. Fugassi, county road superintendent. The latter left the table after the "retort courteous."

Armstrong made a speech praising the public works' employes, paying particular attention to Director Norman F. Brown. Babcock echoed Armstrong's sentiments.

Leslie, responding to an invitation to speak, omitted any reference to Armstrong, but continued the eulogy of Brown. Leslie claimed most of the credit for Brown's coming to Pittsburgh, declaring he had induced Babcock as Mayor to appoint Brown director of the city's Department of Public Works. Armstrong left the party early.

French Flier Sets New Distance Mark

BELL TRIAL TESTIMONY BEGUN

Prosecutor Outlines His Case in Donohoe Killing; Evidence Circumstantial

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Terming the slaying of Constable John F. Donohoe "one of the foulest murders ever perpetrated" Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones began his outline of the commonwealth's case against former County Detective Anthony W. Bell, Jr., at noon today.

By what he termed a "significant bit of evidence," Jones practically admitted that the state's case may be chiefly circumstantial. He told of Bell's arrest on the night of the murder. Instead of acting like an innocent man, he said, Bell used his knowledge of the law and the rights of a citizen gleaned in his many years experience as a police officer to avoid answering questions put to him by state police and County Detective A. A. Downing.

OUTLINES CASE

The prosecutor then launched into a discourse on the value of circumstantial evidence. He said:

"The evidence I have outlined is circumstantial, but the Supreme Court of our state has ruled that it is just as concrete as any other kind of evidence."

He berated the jurors who sought to escape service in the Bell case by expressing prejudice against circumstantial evidence. The opening address consumed 45 minutes.

County Engineer C. L. Clemmer was the first witness called.

Opening of the state's case received a setback earlier. After selection of the twelfth juror, Special Prosecutor Jones petitioned the court for delay to get his witnesses together.

Judge Thomas H. Hudson granted an hour's recess, warning attorneys for both sides that he would countenance no further delays. He said:

"If you're witnesses are not in court at the appointed hour, gentlemen, the court will issue an order to the sheriff to go out and bring them."

Prosecutor Jones explained that his witnesses were not summoned to appear Monday, because, he said, he thought it would require all this week to pick a jury.

JURY COMPLETED

The selection of Charles Kuhn, Fayette City confectioner, to fill the vacancy in number three seat caused by the excusal of Mrs. Martha Goodman on account of physical disability came unexpectedly this morning. Kuhn was the first one called in the special sheriff's venire brought in by court order after two panels of 250 persons had been exhausted in the first four days of the trial.

After Kuhn had been seated in the jury box, the venire of nine men and three women was sworn and Deputy Clerk Patrick Noon, calling upon Bell to stand, read the bill of indictment.

Bell arose from beside his wife, who has been with him since the trial began, raised his right hand and faced the box. He was calm as he pleaded "not guilty."

MUCH TESTIMONY

The state's case, it is generally believed, includes a great deal of circumstantial evidence, so called. A total of 400 pages of transcript came out of the preliminary hearing before Judge A. H. Sayers, of Waynesburg, last June, when Bell was committed. Nearly 600 pages of testimony were taken during seven hearings constituting the coroner's inquest.

It is predicted that the state's transcript of testimony will fill 10,000 pages or more.

The defendants mother, Mrs. Mary Bell, displays more worry than her son. She frequently dabs a handkerchief to her face as she looks toward him, but there is nothing openly demonstrative in her attitude.

3 'Mystery' Witnesses Against Bell Locked Up

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Said to have knowledge of a plot against the life of John F. Donohoe, two Westmoreland County men and one from Fayette County are being held mysteriously in the county jail. It is contended these men may make startling revelations in the trial of A. W. (Tony) Bell, former county detective. In custody are George Graham, of Tarr; Fred Glutz, of Mt. Pleasant, and Abe Annis, of Smock.

3 European Artists on International Art Jury

By PENELOPE REDD.

Carnegie Institute announces that in addition to Henri Matisse, modern French painter, the two other European members of the International Jury of Award will be Glyn Philpot, Englishman, and Karl Sterrer, Austrian.

These Europeans, together with three Americans, Emil Carlsen, Bernard Karfiol and Ross Moffett, will award the Carnegie prizes and the Albert C. Lehman Prize and Purchase Fund when they meet in Pittsburgh on September 23.

Philpot won the first prize at the Carnegie Institute before he was 30 years old with a painting that seemed sensational to the Pittsburgh art world of 1913. Since that time, his history has been one of official honors, rapidly bestowed.

Glyn Philpot — Karl Sterrer

Karl Sterrer, the first Austrian ever to serve on a Carnegie Jury of Award, was introduced to the United States through his international contributions. His paintings are in the Carnegie Institute's permanent collection, in Vienna and in Dresden in official galleries, and also scattered throughout private European collections. Mrs. Sterrer will accompany him on his first American visit.

The Committee of Selection for the forthcoming International will meet to pass on American paintings in New York on September 11 and will finish their work in Pittsburgh on September 22, prior to the International Jury meeting. This group includes the American international jurors and Horatio Walker and Charles Burchfield.

The Carnegie International will open October 16 and close on December 7.

Ninth Wife Sues to Collect $113 Back Alimony

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The ninth wife of Paul Ellis wants her $113 back alimony.

It is not definite that she is the ninth wife. Ellis himself expressed the opinion that the action for back alimony was the work of Rose Ellis. Mrs. Ellis thought it more likely was Sarah Ellis, out in Chicago Heights. She did not believe there was a ninth ex-wife, because she said her husband had told her she herself was No. 9.

Ellis said it was quite possible he had miscounted. The number didn't matter much, anyway. The important thing was that a former Mrs. Ellis was demanding $113 back alimony.

Ellis told Judge Finnegan that although he now has only the task of supporting seven of the 19 children born of his several matrimonial excursions, nonetheless even that comparatively modest number takes most of his money, making the payment of alimony something to worry about.

The court gave him until today to see what could be done about it.

Freighter for Philadelphia To Bring Diamond Back

BREMEN, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Jack (Legs) Diamond, New York gangster, today continued unwittingly to play with German police officials the role of the bear which the hunter caught by the tail.

Having had no difficulty whatever in arresting Diamond, whom no one, including the American authorities, appears to want, the German police are having the utmost difficulty in letting him go.

The latest information available here today was that arrangements had been made to place the dapper gangster aboard the North German Lloyd freighter Hannover, which sails from Hamburg, Saturday and is due at Philadelphia September 23.

Before the announcement of these arrangements, the chief of police had declared officially that Diamond would be placed aboard the Hamburg-America liner Hamburg, sailing tomorrow. This plan apparently fell through, however, as had others to deport Diamond.

Meanwhile he remained in the Hamburg jail, impatiently but philosophically awaiting a definite decision as to his disposal.

BUDD KIDNAPING SOLUTION SEEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Light on the mysterious kidnaping of Grace Budd, 10, which the nation's police have tried to solve for two years, was shed today by the arrest of Charles Edward Pope, 65, an apartment caretaker.

He was taken into custody after his wife, Mrs. Jessie Pope, of Williamsville, had told police he kidnaped the child. She told of being ill and said for that reason she had not reported the crime before. Pope declared his arrest a plot by relatives.

Mrs. Delia Budd, mother of the missing child, however, identified Pope as the man who, calling himself Frank Howard, a farmer, drove off with the girl June 3, 1928.

Mrs. Pope said that early in June, 1928, she was living in Perth Amboy, N. J., when her husband brought home a 10-year-old girl. She refused to care for the child.

She declared today that she was certain the child was the missing Budd girl and identified pictures of her.

Detectives grilled Pope in the hope of finding Grace.

Scientist Wonders Why Man Ceased To Be Ape

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The theory that man is a mistake of nature was advanced here last evening by Dr. H. S. Harrison, head of the anthropology section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in his presidential address before that body.

Dr. Harrison was at a loss to understand why a man ever ceased to be an ape, for he believed he did well while he was an ape. He said:

"Man had already been given the means to earn a livelihood, and he found himself commanding and inventing luxuries. In producing a new and cunning big-brained animal with hands, Nature overshot her mark, and we are struggling with the consequences.

"The brain of the later paleolithic man appears to have been like our own in all essentials, and a cro-Magnon man might today become a skilled mechanic or an able bishop."

Dr. Payan was accompanied aboard the vessel by his wife and their three small children. He was a man of considerable fortune and social position.

KIDNAPING LAID TO BURKE

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The much-hunted Fred Burke, wanted for many murders, was sought anew today as the kidnaper of Harold Cusack, of Brighton Park.

Cusack, held prisoner several days, was reported today to have won his release by the payment of $10,000 ransom. The story, as police get it, is that Burke led three other gunmen who seized Cusack at the point of sawed off shotguns in a Hoyne Avenue saloon a week ago.

The original demand for $100,000 was whittled down to $10,000 when Cusack's friends said they were unable to raise a larger sum.

One of the crimes blamed on Burke is the Valentine's Day gang massacre of last year.

SEEK MISSING BRIDEGROOM

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—An abandoned automobile with two bullet holes through the windshield near the steering wheel and a missing bridegroom-to-be today furnished Nassau County police with an absorbing mystery.

She said he had left her home about 1 o'clock yesterday morning and had failed to arrive at his home in Richmond Hill. She said they were to be married September 29.

There was no blood in the car and police said the machine was standing on the road as though it had been brought to stop by a signal.

RUTH FIRES BARRAGE AT FOE

Declares Dry 'Independent' In Senate Battle Merely To Split Republican Vote

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The feminine feud of Illinois politics today was assuming the proportions of a national precedent.

With Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill entered as an independent candidate for the United States Senate opposing Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, the first picture of two women contesting with a man for high office is being painted into national history.

DRY DISSATISFACTION

Mrs. O'Neill predicated her candidacy on what she termed the dissatisfaction of the dry people of Illinois with the declaration of the Republican state convention on prohibition. That declaration bound the party candidate, Mrs. McCormick, to abide by the decision of the voters in the dry law referendum, to be taken in November.

Mrs. O'Neill, Illinois' first woman legislator, has heretofore sought office as a Republican. She has long been a militant prohibitionist.

Former Senator Lewis has announced that he will campaign for repeal or modification of the prohibition laws.

ANSWERS CHALLENGE

Mr. McCormick's answer to the challenge of her new foe was a statement from Springfield, where she arrived last night on a tour of the state with various Republican candidates and leaders. The candidacy of Mrs. O'Neill, Mrs. McCormick said, is calculated to split the vote against the Democratic candidate, who stands for nullification and violation of the laws enforcing prohibition, and nullification of the Constitution of the United States and, moreover, is a blow at the cause of law enforcement in Illinois. She added:

"The Democrats have declared against majority rule in Illinois and the third candidate now entering the race is likewise opposed to majority rule. I accept the issue."

Mrs. McCormick asserted, also, that the third candidate now in the race disagrees with President Hoover when he says citizens have the right to work openly for repeal.

Dry League Changes Policy In Fighting Mrs. McCormick

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Injection of a militant, bone-dry candidacy into the hectic senatorial campaign in Illinois marks the beginning of a new political policy on the part of the much-harrassed Anti-Saloon League.

As a general policy, the League has heretofore been content to give its support to a nominal dry wherever and whenever opposed by an avowed anti-dry candidate. But changing conditions have brought about a revision of this policy, and henceforth, it was indicated today, the League is going to demand that the candidates who receive its support stand securely hitched to a bone-dry and no-deviation plank.

In consequence, although Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick has pronounced herself dry, and her Democratic opponent, J. Hamilton Lewis, is avowedly anti-dry, the League is going to support Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill as an independent candidate in November.

The League's support for Mrs. O'Neill is by way of punishment for Mrs. McCormick for deviating slightly from the staunch dry platform on which she won the Republican nomination.

West End's Handshakers Past 60 Hours, Keep On

West End's endurance handshakers, Joseph Cue and Charles Mathews, still were going strong today.

Under the watchful eyes of their managers and half a dozen witnesses, the two young men have been continually greeting each other since Tuesday evening and early today had completed 60 hours. Since the first stretch of 24 hours, without rest of any sort, they have taken 10-minute relief periods every hour and hope to keep it up for 500 hours. A $4 wager started the whole thing.

Commenting on the stunt, Cue said:

"No, we don't feel so very tired. We watched the boys playing 500 a few hours last night at my brother' home, and that took our minds off the grind. We each got a couple of hours' sleep, too, which helped a lot."

While one of the crew sleeps, the other remains awake and keeps on shaking.

thousand dollars were distributed among the needy.

Special service of landslides has been established.

Weather today was normal, the brilliant tropical sun shining over the weirdest scene ever imagined in this beautiful island.

President Hoover has taken not a moment of rest since the storm began. He has been in the streets of the city personally directing the distribution of supplies and relations.

The president's entire attention has been concentrated upon fore stalling famine. This afternoon the encouraging news was received that two American ships were to arrive momentarily with medicines and foodstuffs in response to the appeal of Minister Curtis. Other envoys have appealed to their governments.

REVIEW HURRICANE

According to the official technicians the hurricane passed over this city at 1:50 p.m. Sept. 3. Its fullest intensity was reached between 1:00 and 10:00 p.m.

At 3:30 there was a lull, all and the people began to believe the worst was over. They started to leave their homes and were walking in the streets. But after 20 minutes or such, when the passing of the center of the storm the wind rose again, but reached a shorter time than before.

At 5:00 p.m. the hurricane practically had ended.

The first blow had been dead north. The second was due south, due to the rotating nature of the wind.

Today groups of military and other workers are being organized in an effort to open up the roads leading into the capital to facilitate relief.

GENERAL FUND UNNECESSARY

James L. Fiesner of the American Red Cross said today after a conference with President Hoover that unless fatalities and destruction in Santo Domingo were greater than already reported it probably would be unnecessary to make a general appeal for relief funds in this country. The Red Cross has dispatched $25,000 to the city for relief aid.

Washington Moves to Aid Stricken Santo Domingo

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Information continued to reach here on the disaster to the Dominican Republic and measures taken for relief. Minister Curtis informed the State Department as follows:

"Office unroofed and not worth repairing. Residence unroofed. Other quarters unobtainable. Supplies and recent archives undamaged. Personnel uninjured; also consul and family."

Chairman Payne of the Red Cross, today received assurance at the Weather Bureau that the storm would not be damaging by the time it hit Florida if it reached there at all.

Capt. Antonio Silva, Red Cross officials, flew to San Domingo from Porto Rico yesterday and reported to headquarters by cable.

RED CROSS READY

The cable from Capt. Silva first direct report on the results of the storm, was transmitted by the Red Cross to President Hoover, to be used in determining whether a proclamation requesting public contributions would be issued from the White House. It will form the basis also of relief plans at Red Cross headquarters. Officials, who had been on watch night and day since Silva went by plane from Porto Rico, went into conference to determine immediate action.

U. S. Marine Planes First Into Storm Area With Food

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Two Marine Corps airplanes which flew to Santo Domingo City today with medicine and supplies for the victims of Wednesday's hurricane reached that stricken capital safely at 2:55 p. m., Maj. Davis in charge of the expedition, reported by radio Maj. Davis wirelessed:

"Landing field o. k. Conditions unbelievable. Doctors, medicines and food imperative.

"Have pilots bring water and food for our own consumption."

All available airplanes here, six or eight in number, will fly to Santo Domingo tomorrow morning with doctors, nurses and supplies.

The Haitian government today appropriated 100,000 melons as a first measure of assistance to the sufferers.

Capt. Montgomery A. Stuart of the medical department of the United States Navy, director of the sanitary department in Haiti, today was appointed co-ordinating head of all the relief activities of this republic.

Food, clothing and tents will go forward within the next 24 hours aboard the steamship Genevieve Lykes, of Galveston, which contributed its services.

Red Cross Raises Special Relief Fund

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—The American Red Cross today decided to raise a special relief fund for the sufferers of the Santo Domingo disaster. Chairman John Barton Payne authorized chapters along the Atlantic coast to accept contributions for the relief fund.

In the meantime the Red Cross cabled an additional $10,000 to Gov. Roosevelt in Porto Rico, raising total expenditures thus far authorized to $25,000.

Realty Operator Weds Film Actress

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—J. Irving Walsh, 43, twice president of the Real Estate Board of New York, and Margaret Quimby, Hollywood screen actress, were married at Betterton, Md., on Wednesday, it became known today.

Miss Quimby is 23. She had roles in "Ladies Love Brutes," "The Teaser," "Sally of the Scandals" and other pictures.

NEW AND STRANGE LOCOMOTIVE

DIESEL ELECTRIC 60 TON DOUBLE UNIT LOCOMOTIVE NOW IN USE IN P. R. R. YARDS

Two six-cylinder, four-cycle compressorless solid injection high-speed Diesel engines that develop 180 horsepower each at 1,000 R. P. M. supply current through two generators for two 110-horsepower, 600-volt, direct current electric motors that drive this new H. K. Porter Company locomotive now undergoing tests in Pittsburgh. With only one of the two power plants in use, it does the work of a 75-ton steam switching engine.

POLICE CHIEF, ICE MAN FIGHT

Turbulent Wilmerding was the scene of another rumpus today when Police Chief J. B. Maguire and Samuel T. Barnes, an ice man, engaged in a fist fight at Station and Caldwell streets following an argument over borough parking regulations.

Maguire arrested Barnes after the fight. Barnes posted a forfeit of $25 and went to Justice of the Peace John Small of Wall, McKeesport and swore out a warrant for Maguire's arrest.

CHARGES ASSAULT

He charges Maguire with assault and battery with intent to kill. Describing the fight, Barnes said:

"Maguire flew off because I wanted him to do something about two autos that had been parked near the corner all night for several nights. I wanted to get my truck in so as to deliver some ice, and there wasn't room.

"He just about tore the shirt off my back, and he choked me. When I defended myself he went for his gun and blackjack, but I grabbed his hands and he couldn't get them.

'COOLED OFF'

"Then he cooled off a little and told me I was under arrest. My helper and myself walked down to the station and I posted $25."

At the Wilmerding Police Station it was said that the records did not show that Barnes was arrested. The chief left for Pittsburgh early today and did not take part in any fight, the sergeant declared.

MERGER AUDIT IGNORED BONUS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—George O. May, New York partner of Price Waterhouse & Co., testified today that he did not consider the executive bonus plan of Bethlehem Steel Corporation in figuring combined earnings for the exchange of stock in the merger with Youngstown Sheet and Tube because he did not think it was necessary.

May was cross-examined on the Price Waterhouse merger audit by Attorney Clan Crawford, member of counsel for the plaintiffs in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin the merger.

When the Price Waterhouse company determined the earnings of the two companies and figured them in a combined way May knew about the bonus plan, which testimony showed amounted $3,000,000 for Bethlehem executives last year, he said.

He testified he made no adjustment, however, in figuring the stock ratio because he saw no reason for doing so.

May said he was aware that Bethlehem was buying its own common stock during last January and February but he believed that in comparison with Youngstown stock whatever effect such purchases may have had on the market value was offset by other factors arising from the underwriting of the newly issued common stock.

Cuba Rushes Aid By Air and Navy

HAVANA, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—The Cuban government of President Machado today rushed to the aid of its hurricane-stricken neighbor in the Dominican Republic, sending doctors, medical supplies and other emergency relief requisites into the devastated zone.

Twelve Cuban doctors, carrying medical supplies sufficient to treat 300 or more persons, hopped off in a monoplane as the advance guard of Cuban relief workers. Government officials said they expected to dispatch a cruiser as soon as food, clothing and other supplies could be collected.

Sun Shines, Birds Fly in Storm Center

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Capt. Thomas Evans of the Porto Rico liner Cosmo, who brought his ship safely through the center of the blast, told a graphic story of being tossed about on the waves by a wind estimated at a 150-mile-an-hour velocity frequently careening the ship at a 46-degree angle.

The Cosmo, bearing passengers from San Juan to Santo Domingo, had the unique experience of passing through the center of the hurricane emerging from a raging ocean into a vacuum where complete calm existed. In those few moments Capt. Evans said the sun shone brightly and sea birds hovered about the ship.

The lull continued for only a few moments, however, and then the ship was caught in a maelstrom of wind and rain of such force that the vessel heeled over until her lee rail was submerged.

HEMPHILL HERE, HOLDS PARLEY

vance the interests of the anti-dry candidates at the November election, Hemphill said:

"The situation looks very good. I believe things are moving faster in the East than in other parts of the state. I have accompanied the other candidates on our ticket on campaign trips and in going over the country we found everything in splendid shape."

Hemphill declined to estimate the volume of strength the anti-dry candidates might receive from the Republican organization of Philadelphia, which to date has not indicated an intention to support Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

Hemphill explained that Dorrance is in charge of the Philadelphia situation and that the latter gives encouraging reports of Republican support in Philadelphia and the coal fields including Luzerne, Corbin, Lackawanna, Schuylkill and Northumberland counties.

The counties enumerated were generally considered strongholds of Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor, Hemphill said:

"We found in all counties visited, even those in the rural sections, that prohibition is the foremost issue in the minds of the people. We hope to come to Pittsburgh in the near future and place the issue squarely before the voters here."

Hemphill will leave tonight for Amity Hall to attend the Tri-County Fair of Snyder, Union and Perry counties.

Lawrence announced that Democrat headquarters would be opened here next week as soon as a convenient location was found.

U. S. Holds Packet Liberty as Rum Boat; Arrests 2

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Federal officers, headed by United States Marshal John P. Hallanan and Deputy Prohibition Administrator A. B. McCutcheon, last night boarded the steamboat Liberty as it reached the Charleston wharf and arrested Leroy Collett and W. H. Swan on charges of violating the prohibition law.

The officers said that they found four gallons of whisky on the boat. Collett, who, the officers said, was a part owner of the boat, and Swan, one of the crew, were placed in the Charleston city jail. The Liberty, whose run is between Charleston and Pittsburgh, was placed in the custody of two deputy marshals.

'3-GUN' WILSON FACES TRANSFER

agents. The shipment was sent by the National Grocery Supply Company. No record of the Pittsburgh concerns could be found.

Word of Wilson's transfer, expected to be officially announced within the next few days, was received with surprise here.

Wilson himself had no intimation of a shift. His associates and other federal officials pointed to Wilson's exceptional activity in the two months he has been in charge following the transfer of former Administrator Pennington as proof of his ability as dry enforcer.

During Wilson's brief tenure he is said to have broken all records in this district for seizure of liquor-making equipment, despite the fact that he was operating with a reduced force.

In July and August, his men seized 179 stills, compared with 69 confiscated during the corresponding months of last year. Wilson personally participated in many of the raids.

He came to this city 18 months ago as an assistant administrator under Pennington. When the prohibition bureau was transferred from the Treasury to the Department of Justice and Pennington moved to Philadelphia, Wilson remained here as deputy administrator.

'AMEN' RAIDER

Wilson was placed in charge of the Pittsburgh area enforcement office July 1. Seventeen days later he and a squad of agents invaded a gathering of political notables at the Amen Corner picnic at Indian Mound, below McKees Rocks, seized several barrels of alleged high test beer and broke up an assembly that included city and county officials. Two men engaged in serving beer under a tent and a man selling admission tickets were arrested and later held for Federal Court trial, charged with violating the liquor laws.

Soon after the raid reports were current that Wilson would pay the penalty for his audacity.

IN BOSTON SHAKEUP

Once before Wilson had been transferred, presumably for invading a political gathering. He was removed as federal director of prohibition in Massachusetts some time after raiding a banquet at Boston, attended by the governor of the state.

Along with the report that Wilson was to be shifted came the official word that Director of Prohibition Amos W. W. Woodcock would visit Pittsburgh the week of September 22. The visit will be one of several tours that will take him through a large section of the East, Middle West and Pacific Coast. Woodcock said he would welcome calls from individuals who might have suggestions for betterment of prohibition enforcement.

DOG BITES EAR OF GIRL, 7

Mary Ruffing, 7, of 818 Parkwood road, was bitten on the right ear by a police dog owned by Traffic Officer Walter Whitehouse of 814 Parkwood road, last night, according to a police report today.

The child was playing with the dog in the officer's home, it was said, when she was bitten. She was treated by Dr. J. C. Mahan, who said the ear was slightly lacreated.

Medical Supplies Sent by Airplane

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Two Marine Corps Vaught Corsair planes piloted by Maj. James Davis and Capt. Ford, loaded to their capacity with medical and surgical supplies, hopped off today for Santo Domingo City.

Col. Cutts, commanding the First Brigade, will continue to send planes to Santo Domingo daily as suitable landing conditions are provided.

CALLS UNIVERSE 'MAGNETIC FIELD'

Savant Explains Planets in Terms of Electricity; Rivals Einstein Theory

International News Service

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—A new theory of evolution by which the universe is explained in terms of electricity rather than in terms of mechanics was advanced today by Prof. Benjamin Boss, of the Dudley Astronomical Observatory, Albany, N. Y., in a paper read before the American Astronomers' Society in session here.

Each planet, Prof. Boss stated, is analogous to a dynamo which generates the electricity which keeps it in motion.

Astronomers attending the meeting declared his explanation may rival the Einstein theory.

'MAGNETIC FIELD'

Prof. Boss said in part:

"The whole universe is an electro magnetic field in which each rotating body creates its own magnetic field, as do the stars and the sun. My theory can be proved by continual observation.

"As Einstein showed that gravity is a physical law, under my theory gravity is a manifestation of a more general law. Under my theory gravity, electricity and magnetic will all come under the same law as ice, water and vapor. They are all closely related substances.

"In all probability the universes we now know are but atoms in another universe."

Prof. Boss said that the electron possibly is not the smallest bit of a matter. He continued:

"If a human being was reduced in size so as to be small enough to stand on an electron, the things he would see would possibly be amazing."

Prof. Boss declared that the Creator is not a mechanical force, but a feeling, living God, and said that the more astronomers study the stars the more they are convinced there is a living God.

Concerning the relation of his theory to space calculations, Prof. Boss declared:

"Under the present theory the distances are measured by rays of light. By my theory to study the distances by rays of light one must take into consideration that the electro magnetic forces bend these rays of light.

"In support of my theory I maintain that the further these rays of the nebula are shifted from the sun, why the greater is the speed in which they travel.

"But as the sun is not in the center of the universe, this theory is ridiculous."

LIKES 'SERPENT HORN'

STRICKEN VETS RECOVERING

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Several hundred members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliary, ill following a luncheon Wednesday on the grounds of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, were sufficiently recovered today to laugh about the experience and blame it on the heat, the excitement, their lack of sleep and injudicious eating.

One of the chief items on the menu was crabs. At first these were blamed, but physicians agreed their patients did not suffer from food poisoning. An investigation by the Annapolis V. F. W. Post also indicated all the food was in good condition.

It was pointed out that the visitors had been getting little sleep, were eating irregularly and had been on the go since the encampment opened Sunday, also that most of those stricken were not familiar with what goes well with crabs and crab salad.

The menu consisted of crab salad, cold ham, hardshell crabs, pickles, rolls and near beer. On the boat trip back to Baltimore, however, there was considerable consumption of ginger ale and ice cream.

MAN, WOMAN HURT BY AUTOS

A man and a woman were in Mercy Hospital today as a result of being struck by automobiles in the Boulevard of the Allies and in Second avenue last night.

Crossing the Boulevard of the Allies at Cherry way, Elizabeth Moon, 31, of 32 Fernando street, was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Samuel Frick, 27, of 1300 Augustine street. The victim suffered a fractured left leg and lacerations. Frick was arrested.

Police and Mercy Hospital attaches today were endeavoring to establish the identity of a man, about 48, who was injured seriously when struck by a machine operated by Jack Levin, 27, of 707 North St. Clair street, according to police.

2 DYING AFTER DUEL IN ROAD

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Standing only a few paces apart, Edgar Cole, 45, and Arthur Patrick, 21, fought a duel on the highway near Thompson No. 2, which may result fatally for both.

They are in Uniontown Hospital, Patrick with a bullet wound in the abdomen and Cole shot through the back. Each is guarded.

Police say the trouble started when Patrick objected to Cole and his wife leaving an all-night party. Patrick is said to have followed Cole from the house and both drew their guns and fired at close range. They were found helpless on the highway. Mrs. Cole was held pending an investigation.

10,740,693 in N. Y. Metropolitan Area

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The population of New York City's metropolitan area is computed at 10,740,693 by a committee of the Merchants' Association, a gain of 1,200,000 since July 1, 1926. The territory includes New York City, Nassau, Suffolk, Rockland and Westchester counties, eight New Jersey counties and part of Fairfield County, Connecticut.

Mexicans Discover New Active Volcano

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Dispatches from Ciudad Victoria, in the State of Tamaulipas, today said an active volcano had been discovered near Aldama, about 200 miles southwest of Brownsville, Tex. The discoverers said the crater was in an unsettled mountain area.

Pope Blesses 450 American Sailors

ROME, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Pope Pius today gave an audience to 450 sailors from the United States cruiser Chester, now anchored in the Bay of Naples. The Pope spoke briefly of his pleasure at seeing them and imparted his benediction to all of them and those dear to them.

RETURN PRISON FIRE WITNESS

Judge Samuel H. Gardner today signed an order transferring Edgar Russell to the Ohio State Penitentiary at Columbus from the county jail where he has been held since July 17. Russell escaped from Columbus prison a short time before the fire which killed 320 prisoners. District Attorney Andrew T. Park told the court that Russell still has to serve 17 years of a 25-year sentence.

The district attorney said that Russell's actions while confined in the jail here prompted him to have a sanity commission examine the man. Dr. W. H. Maxey, head of the commission, reported that the prisoner is sane. According to Park

Columbus prison officials had sought to have Russell sent back because of stories he was said to have told in jail here to the effect that he knew who was responsible for the penitentiary fire.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been overstimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

Scrimley's Ghost

Robin Dale sets out to investigate the reappearance of Scrimley's ghost in a sparsely-inhabited section of Long Island. Scrimley was reputed to have been a boatswain in Capt. Kidd's pirate ship. Upon an earlier appearance of the ghost a tragic death had resulted. Dale moves into the Rolfe cottage. Stephanie Rolfe is being wooed by Avery Boyleston, whose father was connected with the first tragedy of the ghost. The specter is supposed to haunt the Boyleston farm. Stephanie gets a ghostly warning not to marry Avery. Avery rushes out. A moment later his agonized shriek is heard. A ghostly apparition is seen aboard the battered hulk of an old wreck on the beach. A seaching party, headed by Dale, discovers Avery at the bottom of the hulk, dead! The body is taken to the house. Dale discovers a torn paper has disappeared from the dead man's hand. The medical examiner pronounces death due to drowning. Next day Dale learns that the Boyleston estate is inherited by Avery and Ernest, brothers. If they die without issue it reverts to Oliver Albright, a cousin, who resides on the farm.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER V.

The appearance of the two young people caused a lull. After a few perfunctory remarks the door opened again and Ernest Boyleston strode in. A deep frown settled on his brow when he saw Oliver and the girl, but he was half way across the room before, apparently, he decided to speak. Then he stopped abruptly, whirled about and faced the two.

"Stephanie Rolfe, no need for you to come to this house any more. Avery's gone. And you," glaring at Oliver, . . . "know better'n come in here unless you're called."

No one had seen John Keefe come to the half-opened door and stand there during this tirade except Dale. He saw John's fists clench and his brow become ominously dark. Oliver merely glared at Ernest, who waited no reply, but turned on his heel and went into a little room he used as a study. Ernest must have suspected what Dale knew—that Stephanie and Oliver were in love. Dale wondered if anyone beside himself knew that John Keefe also loved the girl.

"Don't let them bully you, Stephanie," John's voice, from the door, startled them. "You come here whenever you want to see mother. Never mind him."

John came into the room and stood before Stephanie. There was no question of the adoration in his eyes, the devotion of his bearing. Oliver Albright saw it and his eyes narrowed. The two youngsters soon left and after a moment John followed them. Dale saw that the door to Ernest's study was closed. There was something else he wanted to learn from Mrs. Boyleston.

"There was a map, Mrs. Boyleston," Dale began. He saw a frightened look come into her eyes. "Harley Boyleston kept it for many years. He gave it to you before he died, didn't he?"

"How could you know that?" She asked, in strange fear.

"It really belonged to you, you know. Harley Boyleston was a good, kind-hearted man, I believe. . . that map was the one tragedy in his life, while he lived he kept it hidden. But he knew it belonged to you, so, before he died, he gave it back, urging that you, too, keep it hidden or destroy it, which he could not bring himself to do because it was not his, so that its tragic spell might not again be loosened. Have you kept this map, Mrs. Boyleston?

She nodded her head without speaking.

"You're sure?" Dale repeated.

Again she nodded, but the fright in her eyes became deeper.

"Last night, when we found Avery part of the map was clutched in his hand. When the doctor arrived it was gone! You're still sure you have the map?"

The old lady broke down. She covered her face with her hands. Dale watched her fight to gain control of herself. At last she looked up, her features calm.

"I should have told you—it was stolen from me!"

"Do you know who did it?" She shook her head slowly.

"Who knew it was in your possession?" She thought for a long moment.

"Avery and Ernest both wanted it. They asked for the map repeatedly. I refused them because I was afraid of some horrible tragedy it would cause. They often spoke about it openly, so I imagine everyone in the house knew about it since Harley's death. I kept it hidden in my room, in a vase—two weeks ago it disappeared!"

"Could you describe the map?" Dale asked suddenly after pacing the room for many moments.

"I don't know what prompted me, but I made a copy of it, maybe because I often thought of destroying the original, or perhaps feared it might be stolen. Since that happened I've always kept the copy on my person."

She unfastened something in her bodice and handed Dale a square sheet of paper. Dale studied it for a long time.

"May I hold this? I'll guard it most carefully," Dale finally said. She agreed rather reluctantly. He folded the paper and placed it in his pocket as Fred Doreen came in.

"Ernest wanted to see me," he explained. The old lady nodded toward the study door. In entering that room Doreen left the door slightly ajar so that what went on was heard by those outside.

"We'll run the place the way I want, now that he's no longer here to interfere with me!" It was Ernest's reverberating voice.

"Just as you say, Ernest," Doreen replied calmly.

"An' if you don't like it y'u can get out!" Ernest added.

"Well, that's satisfactory, too. I'll leave Saturday!"

For a while there was silence. Dale took his leave and departed. There was something he wanted to do while Doreen was in the house.

Dale went directly to the little office building. Quickly he searched the desk and found a bottle of red ink. Outside again he saw Oliver and Stephanie go around the side of the Rolfe cottage. Down among the poultry pens he saw John Keefe at work.

Dale walked rapidly to the bungalow. He made a swift, thorough examination of the effects in each of the rooms; first that of Doreen, then John Keefe's and finally Oliver Albright's. There was no trace of the red ink he hoped to find. Later he intended to make a more careful examination of the rooms.

That evening Chief Wingate called on Dale. They had scarcely taken chairs on the verandah when Stephanie Rolfe came hurrying into the house. A dark form appeared to be following her but it never came near enough for recognition and melted into the night. Dale rose and intercepted her. He had a feeling that something was amiss. The undercurrent of hatred had become all too obvious to Dale during that day.

"Something wrong, Miss Rolfe?" Dale's question stopped her.

"Ernest got one of those warnings. He rushed out, threatening to kill someone!"

Dale and Wingate did not stop for another question. They ran quickly toward the Boyleston house. The night was as black as the previous one had been, but Dale knew the ground better now. They had not reached the house when once again the terrible apparition appeared on the old hulk! The unearthly wail of the ghost was loosened like the combined moan of all the lost souls in hell!

This time Dale did not hesitate. With Chief Wingate and a police officer behind him, they raced madly toward the wreck. But the waith vanished into the air before they reached the battered hull. They found Ernest Boyleston.

He was lying in the water, as his brother, the night before, had lain. He, too, was drowned! Oddly enough, no one from the house had come to the hulk that night.

KELLOGG TO GET COURT SEAT

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The New York Times says it learned last night Frank B. Kellogg will accept a place on the World Court bench if elected by the assembly of the League of Nations, which meets at Geneva next week.

Mr. Kellogg, former secretary of state, has been nominated by the American National Group, composed of Elihu Root, Newton D. Baker, Roland Boyden and John Bassett Moore, acting in a private, non-governmental capacity, for both a full nine-year term and for the vacancy caused by the resignation of Charles Evans Hughes, now chief justice of the United States.

The Times says his election is believed to be assured because it is the practice of the assembly to approve a nominee backed by his own national group.

SLAYER OF 22 HANGED

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Carl Panzran, self-declared slayer of 22, was hanged at the Federal Prison today for the murder of R. G. Warnke, civilian laundry foreman at the penitentiary, where Panzran was serving a sentence for burglary imposed by a District of Columbia court.

President Hoover last night denied a plea for clemency.

Jeering the crowd as he walked to the gallows, Panzran noted two chaplains present, and asked that they be removed. The chaplains left in accordance with his will.

Panzran, serving his sixth prison sentence, struck down the laundry foreman with a heavy iron bar June 19, 1929, in a frenzy of rage.

DEBATE CHURCH ASSESSMENTS

NEW BRIGHTON, Sept. 5.—A heated discussion was precipitated at the annual session of the Pittsburgh Methodist Protestant Conference in the First church here yesterday when W. C. Perkins, Pittsburgh, chairman of a special committee, reported a plan to levy assessments for benevolences. The plan proposed by the committee is to levy according to salaries paid ministers and the church membership.

The plan was objected to by the Rev. J. Sala Leland, Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Dr. J. C. Broomfield, Pittsburgh conference superintendent, on the grounds that it would increase assessments in many churches in the Pittsburgh district. The subject was made the order of business for today. The supply committee has been asked to supply visiting ministers for Beaver Valley churches Sunday. The Rev. C. M. Smith, New Brighton, is chairman of this committee. The Rev. Dr. Richard L. Shipley, pastor of the First Church, Newark, N. J., will address the conference tonight.

Pittsburgher Heads Auto Parts League

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—W. W. Martin, of Pittsburgh, was elected president of the National Automotive Parts Association, meeting in a three-day session here. The association reported a 14 per cent increase in sales of automotive service parts during the first half of 1930 as compared with the same period last year.

A. F. Baxter, Buffalo, was elected vice president and J. E. Aff, Philadelphia, secretary-treasurer.

Murder Suspect Captured in West

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Danny Day, alias Danny Daniels, 27, wanted in Philadelphia on a charge of murder, was arrested here in a downtown apartment.

Acting on a tip from the Philadelphia authorities, police raided the apartment, taking Day and two other men into custody. Day's companions gave their names as Jack West, 25, and William Famielitta, 25.

18 Months for Wild Drive in Cemetery

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Guy Royce of Morgantown, W. Va., convicted of driving an automobile through a cemetery near Fairchance, damaging tombstones, was fined $200 and sentenced to 18 months in the Allegheny County Workhouse. The court said the sentence would be reduced by half if Royce paid for the damage.

ATTACK MARKS MURDER TRIAL

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Robert Fabi, Mather miner, on trial charged with the murder of Mrs. Cecelia Guidi, was attacked in court by two sons of the slain woman.

Joe Guidi, 19, lunged at the defendant, seated at the defense table, as he passed him on the way to the witness stand. His brother, seated nearby, rushed to his assistance but court attaches overpowered the youths and led them away.

Similar attacks were made on Fabi at the coroner's inquest into Mrs. Guidi's death. She was killed July 7.

Stunning New Fall Model

Pattern 2012

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Simple of detail, yet extremely smart of line, this attractive frock for the first coatless fall days. The higher waistline is very becoming because of the cleverly styled skirt yoke and slight bodice fullness. The upward points meeting the lace collar, effect slender lines of chic. The sleeve is new and charming. The skirt is gracefully flared and just the proper length, about eight inches from the floor.

Pattern 2012 fashions beautifully of flat or canton crepe, dull satin, georgette marocain or chiffon velvet. In black, brown, green or navy, a bit of ecru or rose lace would be lovely.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

INDIAN TO MAKE PEACE PLEA

Pittsburgh churches and meetings will hear Sher M. Quraishi, teacher-editor-student from Julhundhur, India, plead for peaceful settlement of the Indian unrest, Sunday. Arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday, Quraishi is booked for a short talk over station KDKA Saturday afternoon, following with talks in churches and at meetings throughout the city.

A speedy settlement of the Indian troubles is necessary to avoid violence and warfare, Quraishi says. While the passive resistance campaign instituted by Mahatma Gandhi holds, he says little violence is in prospect. If stories of British brutality printed in American newspapers are true, however, Quraishi fears an outbreak of violence.

A Quaker, Quraishi holds that the campaign of passive resistance is the greatest tribute to Quaker beliefs ever paid by masses of any country.

SCOUT WITH BYRD SPEAKS ON AIR TONIGHT

'Danube' Survives.
Jack Dempsey Fails.
Lauder Highest Paid.
Helen Morgan 'Clicks.'

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Of all the Broadway celebrities who have married the microphones George M. Cohan has for me the easiest radio manner. I have never heard the Stars and Stripes Forever that I did not detect a pause in the conversation. Of all the masters of music Johann Strauss is my belief lives not easily in grave. A ... of jazz has yet to crec... the Blue Danube waltz ... here is really no expectation on my part of ever hearing a radio debate between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth, though I would give my good ear to hear one.

Louis A. ...

As reluctant as I am to admit it, Jack Dempsey to my mind is not an expert fight announcer. It will ever be a matter of curiosity to me that, though America is the nursery of jazz, a German was first in the field with a jazz opera. Though I continue to hear stories of the scorn which American males hold for Rudy Vallee I have yet to find the male who does not cup an ear intently to the crooner's sentimental technique.

* * *

I have waited patiently but in vain at the loudspeaker for a detective story to give me a thrill corresponding to that which I derive from it under the reading lamp.

Lincoln Impersonators Always Sad-Voiced

Were I summoned by a Senate investigating committee to answer when the millenium of broadcasting will be reached I would without hesitation declare it would fall on that day when an impersonator of Abraham Lincoln does not use a sad and tremulous voice. I am willing to wager a pair of white spats that not one person in 10,000 is able to whistle to its conclusion a composition by Claude Debussy. There would be no protest from me were a law passed forbidding any further band performance of the overture to "William Tell."

Were I to mete out punishment to my enemies I would be at a loss whether to sentence them to an evening of college songs or Harlem blues or coloratura solos. In spite of its ever-present popularity, jazz, to my mind, will never serve as a substitute for a march in calling the youth of the republic to the colors. One of the most convincing proofs of radio's hold upon the populace is furnished for me by the sight of vaudeville showmen, left far back in the ruck by the showmen of the movies, reclaiming some of their old-time astuteness by summoning microphon stars to their programs.

It is ever a matter of curiosity to me why the broadcasters do not give more frequent expression to the salty Americanisms, "oh, yeah?" "bolony," "applesauce," "hooey" and "lowdown." I would not question that statistician who told me there are enough singers of Negro spirituals on the air to form a city the size of Mobile. Show me the jazz maestro who is not rapidly on his way to a four-car garage and I will show you the jazz maestro who does not know the difference between a harp and a handsaw.

Lauder's Radio Fee Still the Largest

I have about come to the belief that there is no entertainer in the world today who will ever wheedle out of the radio rajahs the sum that was paid Sir Harry Lauder for a broadcast—$30,000 for 30 minutes. When Herbert Hoover recently spoke over the air three times in one week I was sharply reminded of the talkative days of the Coolidge era. I am ever at a loss to understand why Henry Ford does not release his old-time fiddlers to the microphones as a means of capturing the ears of the nation.

Were I dispatched to the ends of the earth I doubt if I could find a tune that can set up a greater glow of excitement in the average man than "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Of the various waltzes of the last three years, none, to my mind, excels "I'll See You Again" from "Bitter Sweet" in the haunting quality of its melody.

No one since David Warfield, in my opinion, is as effective with a quivering voice as Helen Morgan. Were my feet to rest insecurely under a White House desk I would urge all public officials of my political faith to be less solemn and sedate in their radio talks.

Were I paid the sum of $2 for every time I have encountered the phrase "a genuine Stradivarius" in connection with the fiddles of radio violinists I could long ago have purchased a string of polo ponies and retired to Long Island. I have reached the point where I invariably tune off "The End of a Perfect Day" before the first bar is completed. Of all of John Philip Sousa's marches my feet respond least to "King Cotton."

The most ghastly sound on the air, in my opinion, is that of forced laughter.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Adventures of Rear Admiral Byrd's Antarctic Expedition are to be recalled tonight by Paul Siple, Erie Boy Scout, when he speaks from KDKA at 10:30. Paul will use the same microphone that was used by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Siple, when they talked to him from KDKA on April 13, 1929. At this time young Siple was in Little America near the South Pole.

Paul Siple

Three KDKA announcers who participated in the 81 broadcasts to the Byrd Expedition will take part in the broadcast. Louis L. Kaufman, senior announcer, will introduce Paul. Announcement of the program will be made by Walter G. Myers. William A. Farren will speak in conclusion.

* * *

A Brookline Fife and Drum Corps will play.

Cleveland, O., is the familiar setting for Mary and Bob tonight.

They'll lure wistful Helen Morgan to WJZ at 8 to sing "Why Was I Born?" and "Don't Ever Leave Me."

Henkel Yelveteers on WCAE and WJAS at 7:30 will originate in WTAM.

It costs $87 an hour to run the new KDKA plant at Saxonburg.

This means about $400 a day or $12,000 a month on an experimental schedule.

QUESTION A DAY:

Marcella Drake, East Palestine, Ohio—Will it be all right to vote for Don Bester in the Radio Poll?

A.—This question has been brought up several times. Since Don is not broadcasting from a local station but over several independent stations throughout the country we feel that he is eligible. See Sunday's paper.

* * *

A downtown station that insists on auditions before allowing an artist to go on the air, recently turned down one of our best known musicians — and there's much animosity on both sides now.

Fred Rodgers and wife celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary the other night.

Marquis Chisholm has a "ranch" near Ligonier where he retreats every week-end to write continuity for KDKA.

* * *

One of our better known announcers often stays overnight in a downtown hotel—so as to be on the job bright and early the next day.

Local stations couldn't see any feature in broadcasting Betty, the flagpole sitter.

J. L. Kaufman, manager of WCAE, is much engrossed in an autographed copy of Seth Parker's Album these days.

"Midnight"—a new WJAS feline—likes to park on the grand piano in studio A.

Knute Rockne may pick a few winners at 10:30 on WJAS.

An octet sings Cadman's "Land of the Sky Blue Water" for WCAE listeners at 10.

"I AM GLAD TO RECOMMEND A REAL MEDICINE"

Konjola the Only Relief After Months of Suffering—Pittsburgh Lady Finds Health.

Do not harbor any doubt about the merit of Konjola. More than seven million bottles of this famous medicine have been sold in less than two years.

MISS ALBERTA C. GRIMES

Konjola is compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of well known medicinal roots and herbs. The Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, is prepared to tell you about this medicine and asks you to call upon him. He is passing out free samples and literature. Consider the experience of Miss Alberta C. Grimes, 131 Dufland street, Carrick, near Pittsburgh, who recently said to the Konjola Man:

"For four months after I had undergone an operation I was in such ill health that I despaired of relief. I was tired and nervous and frightfully constipated. I did not sleep well at night and never had the right energy to do my work. I tried many medicines and treatments and finally decided to give Konjola a chance.

"I want to say right now that Konjola is the tonic for tired, run-down, nervous people. I have steadily gained in weight, I sleep better, have an excellent appetite and am no longer nervous since I took this great medicine. And Konjola wasted no time in going to work. I was forced to discontinue my work because of illness and I am now ready to resume my former tasks. I am glad to recommend a real medicine like Konjola."

And so it goes. Taken regularly after meals over a six to eight week period, Konjola has done for thousands all that it did for Miss Grimes. Try Konjola for your own case today.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

"The other day I felt very sick, having a splitting headache and being sick in the stomach from acid and gas. I thought I would die," says Mr. J. J. Gandus of Chicago, Illinois. SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

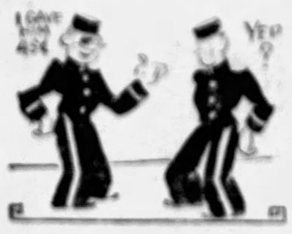
by WILLIAM PFARR

We have always wanted to write a piece about the movie usher, who, on his day off, went to a movie, or the street car conductor who rode the street cars on his idle days. We believe we have at last succeeded. Here it is:



Jim Greer, the bell captain at the William Penn, went to a hotel on his vacation!

(It was the New Yorker in, of all places, New York City. He tipped the bellhop who took him up 45 cents.)

Things to remember, if you don't forget:

The most satisfying golf course for a semi-duffer: Stanton Heights.

A bewildering and satisfying walk: through the Frick Woods, below Squirrel Hill.

Any neighborhood movie house which doesn't bother with stage presentations, master of ceremonies, community singing and 15-minute announcements of next week's picture.

The good-looking girls pouring out of the Philadelphia Company building at noon and five.

"The Last Mile," when it comes to town pretty soon.

When he was an assistant U. S. attorney, Joe Richardson, the well-known lawyer, sent quite a few people to jail. It is always necessary in stories like this to point that out. Joe was about to leave a street car the other day and took from his pocket a one-dollar bill to pay his fare.

Another departing passenger, a lady who was toting a dozen bundles, asked Joe whether he would please hold her packages while she found a street-car chip in her purse. Of course Joe would.

In due time Joe handed back the packages. The lady said "Give me that dollar bill, too; that's mine."

Joe remonstrated mildly.

The lady insisted. And Joe, anxious to avoid a scene, handed her his dollar bill.

After the lady had departed the conductor beckoned Joe and whispered to him, "that's an old racket of her's."

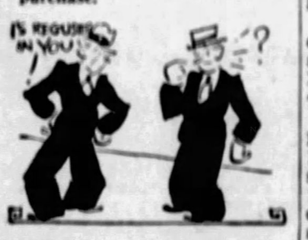
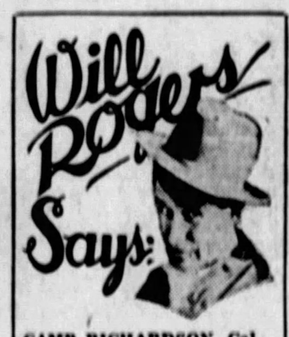
Rosy Roswell, the entertainer, was in Chicago recently making records for a radio program. In the studio Rosy happened into his friend, Charlie Correll, who is the latter half of Amos 'n' Andy. They walked downtown together, and, passing a drug-store, Rosy halted to make a purchase.



The two walked into the store past the big Pepsodent sign which advertises Amos 'n' Andy and the toothpaste.

"Give me," said the forgetful Roswell to the clerk, "a tube of Pebeco."

"Ah's regusted," Andy moaned.



CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal., Sept. 5.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Mayor Walker pulled a good one when he said: "The Atlantic ocean is a two-way street now."

Jimmy knew Mr. Hoover did things by committees, say six or eight, so he called a hundred and told 'em something should be done about small graft in New York. Small graft was getting the city a bad name and would eventually lose it its reputation for doing things on a big scale.

LOU McILVAINE, "LA MACHELVAINI" . . . OPERA SOPRANO

Opera Singer, on Visit Here, Tells of Work In Foreign Lands

Miss Lou McIlvaine, grand opera singer and native Pittsburgher, who has spent the past two years singing and studying abroad, now is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Mary Geddis, in Squirrel Hill.

Miss McIlvaine tells an interesting story of her work in Europe and Africa, and plans to sail for Italy in a few weeks.

TELLS OF WORK

Two years ago, arriving in Paris, she began study with Mme. Florence Lee Holtzman. When she had been there for about four months an Italian impresario came to Mme. Holtzman and asked for six singers for the Italian Lyric Opera Company. Miss McIlvaine and five others were selected and the company went on the road, touring through Northern Africa, spending three weeks at Tunis, a month in Algiers, and visiting the larger towns. During this tour Miss McIlvaine sang the parts of Leonore in "Il Trovatore" and Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana."

For the past winter Miss McIlvaine has been studying and singing in and around Milan, and she sang for a month at the second largest theater in the city. Her various roles during the winter were in "Aida," "Forza del Destino," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Andreachenier." Critics praised her work and said of her Aida and Santuzza:

"Few dramatic sopranos of today can equal these selections with such beauty of voice, ease and perfect technique as La Machelvaini."

PERFORMANCE PRAISED

While she was singing at the Lyrico in Milan, it was said that her performance was "truly Sicilian," and great Italian singing.

While in Paris, Miss McIlvaine was the soprano at the American Church and sang at the first service in the new church. At one time she sang there with Miss Hilda Berky, Pittsburgh contralto.

On September 18, Miss McIlvaine sails again. She will spend a month in Paris at the home of Mme. Holtzman, and will then go on to Milan, where she is to sing "La Traviata," and "Lohengrin" in Italian this winter.

ONLY 24,000 QUALIFY TO VOTE

Politicians Begin Drive to Urge Voters Out Last 2 Days; 17 Distr... in

About 24,705 Pittsburgh men and women were registered at polling places yesterday as electors, qualified to vote at the November election.

The total was an estimate based by registration commissioners on returns last night from 17 of the city's 405 districts as laid out by the redistricting commission from the previous 741 districts.

FINANCE VOTE DRIVE

The County Commissioners at their meeting today voted $7,500 to the Board of Registration Commissioners to defray the expense of printing and mailing pamphlets to residents of the county urging them to register.

The registration commissioners said that they need help in their effort to stimulate registration.

The registration commissioners propose to send letters containing information about registering and a list of the polling places, to the taxpayers, in an effort to get a heavier registration on the next two registration days, September 16 and October 4.

Pittsburgh's slender figures were in direct contrast with Philadelphia's registration, in which nearly 200,000 qualified to vote.

Yesterday was the first of three registration days, and the results were about half the total for the first registration day last year when 55,700 were recorded.

TABULATE RETURNS

Returns from the remaining Pittsburgh districts and from all districts in McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne will be tabulated today from reports mailed to the Courthouse by district registrars.

Registration commissioners declared last night that an intensive campaign urging voters to register on the remaining two days, September 16 and October 4, was imperative to have this year's total compare favorably with the 183,000 men and women who registered in 1929.

The 17 districts reported last night included only one or two in the Fifth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fourth and Twenty-ninth Wards.

FELDMAN FETED AT BANQUET

Harry Feldman, Republican chairman of the Fifth Ward, was honor guest last night at a testimonial dinner in the Roosevelt Hotel, attended by more than 250 persons. Feldman recently returned to Pittsburgh from Atlantic City, where he recuperated from a serious illness. The speakers were Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, Sheriff Robert Cain, City Treasurer Roy Schooley, Councilman James Herron, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, Attorney Hiram D. Hirsh, Attorney Albert Martin, Alexander Cooper, Robert L. Barish, Jerome Solomon and Morris Berger.

The toastmaster was City Solicitor Benjamin L. Steinberg.

The friends and associates of Feldman presented him with a radio.

Third Auto Hits Same Pole On Mt. Washington

The victim of last night's crash was P. J. Dagnal, 44, of 200 Estella street. He suffered an injury to his shoulder when his machine struck the pole, police said. Dagnal was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Cathie and Mother Buy Outfit for Wedding

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. She meets Gordon Moore of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Cathie is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes he has forgotten her. Cathie's mother falls seriously ill. To pay for hospital expenses and doctor bills she is forced to borrow heavily from Farnsworth. He is many years her senior, and completely overwhelms her when he proposes marriage with him as a way out of her financial difficulties. After a night of tears she accepts and agrees to an early marriage. Her mother believes that though Cathie does not really love Farnsworth, she respects and likes him, and hopes that this will grow into love. An expensive trousseau is purchased and Cathie leaves on her wedding trip.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI.

The Alfred Farnsworths motored south on their wedding trip.

For just a moment Cathie had been disappointed. She had had an idea they might be going to Honolulu. She had always dreamed about going somewhere on a ship. But Mr. Farnsworth said that he wasn't a very good sailor, and besides he could not stay away from business so long.

Motoring south was very different from what Cathie had thought it would be. Once she went to Los Angeles with the Whites. It had not been very much fun because she and Addie White and the Whites' old dog, Toby, had been crowded into the back seat with all the suitcases, and Addie was very car-sick. They had punctures in all the hottest places, and they never arrived at a town at dinner time, or evening.

Mr. Farnsworth's chauffeur, however, did things very differently. When they were hungry there was always a wayside inn just ahead. When they were tired, and ready to stop for the night, there was a big hotel, and a palatial suite of rooms already engaged.

Happy Her Self-Consciousness Goes Away

Hotel maids unpacked Cathie's things, turned down her bed, carried away soiled garments and brought them back in the morning mysteriously laundered, or sponged and pressed. It was all very exhilarating, and charming.

"Happy?" Mr. Farnsworth asked.

"Oh, gloriously!"

That was on the second or third day of the trip, when they were staying at the big hotel at Santa Barbara. And indeed she did look gloriously happy, with her eager little face alight with pleased anticipation, and her bright hair shimmering and rumpled, as she pulled off the dark green hat.

"You have made me very happy," he said. He lifted the small hand on which the immense solitaire blazed, and kissed it, gently.

Something . . . a last fear, a last stiff self-consciousness in Cathie melted. He was so humble, so grateful to her, as if he were always trying to thank her for having married him, and not knowing just how to do it. With a sudden warm gesture she drew her hand away, flung both arms about his neck and clung to him. "No! You've made me happy!" she cried.

Husband Old
Cathie Realizes Difference In Their Ages

She was hugging him tightly, her cool, fresh cheek close to his.

"My dear child, I hope so . . . You . . . you ARE happy?"

"Happy? Of course! Why shouldn't I be? Haven't I got everything in the world to make me happy?"

"Have you?"

He was looking at her so strangely, so sadly, that Cathie's blue eyes filled. She looked away in confusion. She realized, for the first time, that Mr. Farnsworth was old.

After she realized that—that he was sensitive about his age, and that he got tired easily, and didn't want to go for walks or swim, Cathie stopped suggesting it.

"Now you don't want to tire yourself out, dear. You know I brought you here for a rest. The first real one you've ever had, poor child!" he said every

2,500 IDLE PERSONS TO GET WORK

Large Department Houses And Others Make Ready For Autumn Business Gain

Due to increased business, caused by the autumn sales pickup, all department stores here are adding to sales forces, it was announced today.

Within the next 10 weeks it is expected that at least 2,500 men and women now jobless will have been given employment. In addition several hundred more will be put to work temporarily just before the annual Christmas rush.

Each of the larger department stores intends adding from 150 to 250 salespeople to its staff. Smaller organizations will hire clerks in proportion, it was pointed out.

PLAN PRICE CUTS

Announcement was also made that reduced prices on all merchandise gave promise of making the approaching season one in which sales records will be tied or broken.

Kaufmann's said that at least 200 would be added to the regular store force of approximately 3,500. About December 1, others will be employed.

Rosenbaum's, where 1,200 now work, according to Walter Rosenbaum, president, will take on from 150 to 200. More than 600 will be employed temporarily during a sale now under way, he said.

INCREASE OCT. 1

A spokesman for Boggs & Buhl, Federal street, North Side, announced that beginning about October 1, more than 200 would be added. The store has a personnel of more than 1,000.

Frank & Seder, Charles Joseph, an executive stated, intends increasing its sales force by at least 200. At Christmas the staff will again be augmented as increased business warrants, he said.

Gimbels will add in proportion, as will McCreery & Company, Joseph Horne Company, Harris Department store and others downtown.

PICKUP FOLLOWS LULL

G. R. Foster, manager of the downtown Kresge department store, said the three local outlets of his organization would hire about 150, while a spokesman for Woolworth & Company said his Greater Pittsburgh stores planned to add at least 250 workers.

Officials say autumn business picks up about the middle of September after the usual summer season slump.

'OTHER WOMAN' FOUND IN CAR

She found another woman in her husband's car while it was parked in Washington boulevard, according to Mayme G. Eastland, 92 Brilliant avenue, Aspinwall, in her divorce action against S. Elmer Eastland, Pleasant Valley.

She said that on another occasion she found a lady's handkerchief in the car, her husband admitting his association with other women whom she does not know.

Mrs. Eastland also avers in her bill of particulars, filed in Common Pleas Court, that her husband stayed out until 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning three nights a week and drank and abused her. The couple was married June 2, 1925, and lived together until May 12.

LUCKY GIRL

time she wanted to do something strenuous, and now she knew that it was really because he wanted to rest.

But it was hard, because they were always meeting people who wanted to include them on golf foursomes, riding trips, or swimming parties. So they played bridge, instead, and in the evenings they danced. Mr. Farnsworth danced very well, in a rather stiff, old-fashioned way. Cathie adored dressing in her new, lovely clothes, coming down to the dining room with her husband, and being presented to people as Mrs. Farnsworth.

She got used to her new name very quickly. She could always remember that she was Catherine Farnsworth, but it was hard to call Mr. Farnsworth Alfred.

Alfred! It was such a hard name to say, and Al was utterly out of the question. The pet names that had always rushed to her lips for her mother, for Jean, for every puppy and kitten that had ever come her way, failed her now. He called her Catherine, and she called him nothing at all, except when she had to call him something, and then she gulped and said "Alfred," and felt self-conscious except when she said "Dear" and then she felt more self-conscious than ever. In her heart of hearts he would always be Mr. Farnsworth to her, no matter how much she grew to care for him, and how much she ached to think of him as anything else.

And it was hardest of all, after the first few days of their honeymoon were over, to remember that this had not always been her life. Maid's, attentive waiters, motors, expensive hotels. A litter of fragrant creams and powders on her dressing table. Her gold-fitted bag. Her cobweb-fine silk stockings that she wasn't even expected to darn. All the lovely things that it had seemed she could never get used to, became part of her so soon. Why, it seemed years ago that she had sniffed at the jar or rose bath salts that she was saving for her wedding day, not letting herself use even a handful. . .

"I'm getting spoiled!" she told herself, a little frightened. But it was impossible to worry about her faults when Mr. Farnsworth so obviously thought she was perfect.

Santa Barbara, Hollywood, Santa Monica, Coronado, Agua Caliente, a glimpse of Mexico; Pasadena, Santa Marta, Monterey, Carmel and Del Monte.

Enchanted names. Enchanted places. Cathie would have liked it to last forever. The big blue car was almost a personal possession now, familiar and comfortable, like an old shoe. Even Everett, the chauffeur, was part of Cathie's world. She no longer minded his back, and wondered if he was listening to what they were saying in the luxuriously upholstered back seat.

Back Home

Return to Farnsworth's Depresses Cathie

But Mr. Farnsworth was beginning to get restless. Telegrams and long distance calls from the office, infrequent at first, were frequent enough now. He called Miss Darrow on the telephone at least once every day, and spent an hour or longer with the hotel stenographer. Watching the girl take dictation made Cathie feel vaguely uncomfortable. It reminded her that a little while ago she was the stenographer, she who was now a rich man's wife.

"Well, I'm afraid we must get back," he said at last.

Somehow she wished she had seen the house where she was going to live. Going to this strange place where the other Mrs. Farnsworth had lived for so long depressed her strangely. She tried to shake it off, to chatter naturally and merrily on the ride home, but she did not succeed very well, and when the blue car stopped at the Alfred Farnsworth home on Presidio Terrace, Cathie's heart was in her boots.

A Chinese boy in a white coat opened the door. Cathie was conscious of thick carpets, of dark silken hangings, of crowded, costly furnishings, but there was no welcome in it. It was like coming into a place that has been vacant a long time.

Farnsworth took her arm, and guided her into an immense living room at the left of the hall. She found herself stepping cautiously, afraid of making a noise, it was so large, so silent.

A fire was burning, but the air was cold, and rather close. Cathie would have liked to throw open the windows, and stir up the fire, but she was too shy. She pulled off her gloves, standing silently in the center of the room.

Mr. Farnsworth walked around, twitched at a curtain, glanced hastily through a pile of new magazines on a table.

"You might pour tea, dear," he said absently.

She looked around nervously, located a tea-table and saw that cups and saucers were set out. A silver tea-kettle hummed over a spirit lamp, and there were thin, fancy shaped sandwiches on a silver tray.

While she was pouring the tea, feeling awkward and strange, Farnsworth came up and helped himself to a sandwich. "By the way, we'll have to get you a maid," he said. "We've always had Chinese help here, except for . . . for Marguerite."

"And who is she?"

"Marguerite? Oh, we've had her a long time. You won't find her very useful I'm afraid . . . Oh!" He broke off, startled.

In the half opened doorway a woman was standing.

For a moment she stared fixedly at Catherine. Then she turned on her heel, and vanished as quietly as she had come.

SCHAD EXPLAINS ASSESSMENT PRACTICE

Points Out Old Procedure Was Changed by Court, Ruling Given Last Year

George J. Schad, chairman of the county tax board, has issued a statement correcting "recent publications" that the board could make assessments as a voting requisite for the current year of voters not appearing on the previous year's books.

He explained that until restrained by a court order last year, the board had been making assessments of voters missed by the field men in the annual house-to-house canvass.

Previous to the court order in the 1929 mayoralty campaign, the assessors' office would assess residents up to within two months of an election providing proof of the applicant's right to vote was produced. Schad said:

"As a result of court proceedings during the summer and fall of 1929, a decision was rendered whereby the board was restrained from making any assessments after the first Monday of November of the year prior to the tax year, literally interpreting the act establishing the tax revision board."

INJURED OILING OLD PISTOL

With two bullet wounds in his right side, Ira Davis, 56, of 48 Grape street, lay in bed in his home for six hours yesterday without medical aid, until the arrival of his son, according to detectives who made an investigation.

The victim, discovered by Wilbert, the son, was taken to the South Side Hospital. From his cot, Davis told Detectives Myles Smith and Dennis Timpona that the shooting was accidental. The wounded man, detectives reported, related that he was shot while attempting to oil a revolver which he had not used for 25 years. His condition was regarded as serious.

STILL SEIZED, 3 ARRESTED

A 100-gallon still and large quantities of gin and whisky were seized by prohibition agents, who arrested three men in as many raids yesterday.

Several cases of gin and whisky confiscated, agents said, in a club at 5636 Kirkwood street, resulted in the arrest of William Stumbras. He was held in $1,000 bond.

In the home of Walter Przeklasa, 38, at 803 Eathan avenue, the agents reported seizing a 100-gallon still and destroying 22 barrels of mash. Przeklasa was arrested.

James Jackson, 49, was arrested, according to the agents following a raid on his home at 121 Shetland avenue, where three cases of whisky were found.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question:—What should be done to provide work for the nation's unemployed?

J. H. Klier

J. H. KLIER, plumber, Bloomfield — I think if the Eighteenth Amendment were repealed there would be about 7,000,000 less men among the unemployed. The breweries used almost that many when they were working. Machine molding ought to be done away with, too, and men used for the work.

Miss Folger

MISS MARY FOLGER, stenographer, East Liberty — I think that women should be taken out of any offices they hold and men should be employed in their places. The men need the work far more than the women and they have families to support, too.

Dr. Wienberger

DR. M. F. WEINBERGER, Braddock, optometrist — If the government would start a campaign to fix all the roads then there would be plenty of jobs for the men who have none now.

Miss Crowley

MISS MARIE CROWLEY, stenographer, Oakland — The number of immigrants allowed to come into the country ought to be cut down. A great percentage of the people without work are foreign, anyway, and that would remedy the situation a little.

Stan Levy

STAN LEVY, merchant, East Liberty — The Federal, state and county governments should arrange for as many public buildings as possible for the sake of the unemployed, and for those still unemployed after that a temporary dole should be provided. If this fails then there should be a Socialist form of government.

Miss Driscoll

MISS HELEN DRISCOLL, cashier, East Liberty—I think that if there were more public improvements and buildings to be constructed this situation would be helped a lot. So many workers are required on things of that sort that most of the unemployed could probably find something to do.

New Judges

W. HEBER DITHRICH

WILLIAM H. McNAUGHER

Attorneys Dithrich, Coraopolis, and McNaugher, North Side, appointed to the Allegheny County Common Pleas Court bench by Gov. Fisher to succeed retiring Judges Ford and Carnahan.

LESHER IN LINE FOR ADVANCEMENT TO SOLICITOR

DITHRICH'S AIDE CONFIDANT OF ARMSTRONG

May Get Promotion Today As Ex-Incumbent Prepares To Take Oath as Judge

Attorney Mortimer B. Lesher will be promoted from assistant to county solicitor by the County Commissioners when they meet today, unless all signs fail.

He will succeed W. Heber Dithrich, who with Attorney William McNaugher was appointed yesterday by Gov. John S. Fisher as judge of Common Pleas Court. They succeed Judges Thomas D. Carnahan and Thomas J. Ford resigned. Dithrich and McNaugher will take the judge's oath tomorrow.

Commissions for the new appointees arrived here this morning. Dithrich's resignation as county solicitor was accepted by the County Commissioners today. Lesher will be selected for the place, if reports are accurate.

LINKED TO ARMSTRONG

Lesher has been a confidant of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong for years and was appointed Assistant County Solicitor when Armstrong assumed his present office in 1924.

In 1923, Lesher was appointed secretary of the meetings and speakers' committee of the Allegheny County Republican organization and since 1926 has been chairman of that committee. He has been counsel for the Republican organization 15 years.

Lesher was named last year a member of the Board of Law Examiners, succeeding Judge E. C. Chalfant, resigned.

FOLLOWS MELLON VISIT

McNaugher, a law partner of George E. Alter, who was defeated by Gifford Pinchot for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1922, succeeds Judge Carnahan, and Dithrich takes the place held by Judge Ford. Both judges resigned because of advanced age and went on state retirement.

Selection of the two new jurists followed by 24 hours a visit to Harrisburg of W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman and a powerful influence in Allegheny County politics, and it was understood both appointees had the indorsement of the Pittsburgh financier.

A member of the Pittsburgh law firm of Alter, Wright & Barron, Judge McNaugher has practiced law since 1917 and served as assistant district attorney of Allegheny County from 1919 to 1921. A bachelor, Judge McNaugher is 39 years old and lives with his parents. His father, the Rev. Dr. John McNaugher, is president of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. A Mason, he is also a member of other clubs, including the University and Duquesne.

BOTH WAR OFFICERS

Judge Dithrich, who is 44 began the practice of law in 1913, served three terms as a member of the state House of representatives and was appointed first assistant United States Attorney for Western Pennsylvania in 1921, relinquishing that post in 1924 to accept appointment as county solicitor. He was reappointed to the solicitorship in 1928. He is a bank director and is married and has one son.

Both men served as first lieutenants in the World War and both are graduates of the University of Pittsburgh Law School. Judge McNaugher is a past county commander of the American Legion.

CAR RECEIPTS INCREASE AT TERMINAL

Distribution of Foods to Extensive Territory Also Surpasses 1929 Figures

A marked increase in business over the same period of last year at the new Pennsylvania Railroad produce terminal, Pike street from Twelfth to Twentieth, was disclosed today when figures for the number of cars handled were made public.

Receipts of 3,493 cars for the past month show a gain of 281 over the same month of 1929. In July and August of the current year the terminal gained more than 1,000 cars, combined receipts and forwardings, W. K. Clowes, superintendent, announced. Of this number, 233 were those forwarded from the terminal, Clowes declared.

In July, 4,765 carloads of perishable foodstuffs were shipped to and from here as compared with 4,179 for the same month of 1929. This is a gain of 586 carloads.

WIDE DISTRIBUTION

Fifty different commodities come into the terminal all year 'round from every state in the Union and from many foreign countries. From here they are distributed over a score of states.

Virtually the heart of the fruit and vegetable industry in the Middle Atlantic states, the railroad officials say, the terminal service reaches out from Pittsburgh for hundreds of miles in every direction.

The figures prove, it was said, that more vegetables, fruits and perishable foodstuffs are being used in the greater Pittsburgh district than ever before. Markets have been opened up to more distant points than at any time in past years.

LARGE ASSORTMENT

A varied assortment of vegetables for home tables is one of the developments the terminal aided in bringing about, it was pointed out. Formerly housewives had tomatoes, string beans and perishable fruits but two or three months of the year. At other times certain delicacies could be obtained only at high off-season prices. Present facilities, however, prevent spoiling and afford economical distribution. More than 1,700 carloads of tomatoes alone were handled at the local terminal within the past few months.

An engineering feat of no small proportions, the terminal is 1,500 feet long and 116 feet wide, with ample facilities to care for 700 cars. An auxiliary track and icing station on Forty-third street can care for 450 more cars. At the building platform 185 cars can be arranged for unloading at one time. The main platform has a capacity of 300 carloads.

Last year the terminal handled 43,000 carloads, of which 10,000 were reconsigned.

WATER METER TRIAL MONDAY

Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court today set Monday for a hearing in the taxpayers' suit filed yesterday against the City of Pittsburgh in which it is charged that the contract let to the Pittsburgh Keystone Water Meter Company was awarded recklessly, carelessly and illegally.

The suit was filed by Attorney H. D. Hirsh in behalf of Edward E. Periman, a taxpayer, who avers that if the contract is allowed to stand there will be a large assessment against his property for his share in the unnecessary expenditure of public money.

The contract was awarded in August to the Pittsburgh Keystone Meter Company, whose bid was $1,934 higher than that of the Neptune Meter Company, of Brooklyn, the bill of complaint sets forth.

The bill asks for an injunction to prevent consummation of the contract until the court determines who is entitled to it.

TEST NEW TYPE LOCOMOTIVE

Pennsylvania Railroad officials are watching results of tests being made in the company's Pittsburgh yards of a 60-ton double unit Diesel-electric locomotive, the latest development of the H. K. Porter Company, of Pittsburgh. It was developed in co-operation with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the Buda Company, makers of oil burning locomotives.

The locomotive's power plant consists of two six-cylinder Buda M. A. N., four-cycle, compressorless, solid injection high-speed Diesel engines, each developing 180 horsepower at a speed of 1,000 revolutions per minute.

The engine was designed by H. B. Ayres, president of the H. K. Porter Company. The tests are being made under the supervision of E. Topanelian, Jr., electrical engineer with the company. The engine is in charge of J. Hegley, assistant road foreman of engines of the railroad; F. H. Sease, engineer, and Oscar Reese, fireman.

PANELS TO EMBELLISH MANY BEAUTIFUL AUTUMN FROCKS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Panels have been empanelled to serve a term embellishing many a frock this season. The set-in panel has been popular for some time, but now, the loose or flying panel flutters from many a lovely afternoon or evening frock. Panels, pleats, seams, tucks and folds are much used as trimmings, for such details are ever so much smarter than any superimposed embellishment and create that "dressmaker" air that is so indicative of expensive simplicity, and therefore so much to be desired. We have trimmed down our trimming with gratifying results, for we are all ever so much smarter looking. It doesn't look as if the overburdened frock will be seen for many noons and moons.

DESPITE THE POPULARITY of black there is a cry for other hues. And so we find most couturiers including a number of brightly toned day and evening clothes in their autumn collections. Green in various shades, with pale green predominating as an evening shade, various reds and violet, all will tend to make this winter's tale a colorful affair. The tones of red favored just now should enhance the charms of both blond and brunets, as long as care is given to the choice of rouge and lipstick. The orange or mandarin shades should be eschewed.

BOTH OF THE DRAWINGS today depict colorful clothes culled from the new Chantal collection. This house uses colors both solid and in combination, with splendid taste and effect. The very attractive autumn suit is in a light, almost almond-green velours de laine and subscribes to the popular and classic green - velvet - and - beaver combination. The bow scarf and melon cuffs of the fur are most pleasing. The amusing little belted jacket has a one-sided bolero at the right of the front. Diagonal folds and tucks make the effective trimming.

THE EVENING GOWN is of heavy georgette in geranium red, combined with plum color, the latter shade being used for the bolero and flying panels. The princess lines of the dress are softened by the loose bolero in back (at the front it is appliqued flat to the under fabric) and by the circular apron and loose side panels on the skirt. There are small plum colored bow-knots on the shoulder and at the front of the skirt.

Raquel Amazed by Beauty Of Mrs. Dexter

CHAPTER XIV

There was no doubt but that Greta had correctly summed up the situation so far as the French girls and women employed in the Paris branch of Chez Alphonse were concerned. They regarded the presence of the Americans, Raquel and Greta, as an invasion of sacred territory. Raquel and Greta were intruders. They were to be treated as such. Discredited and harried at all times.

Raquel [illegible] ousies and [illegible] with hatred [illegible]

"We'll have Mrs. Dexter [illegible] for her [illegible] Raquel [illegible] things [illegible] wrong [illegible] work-room. They [illegible] making [illegible] stupid [illegible] seems [illegible] pose.

She was [illegible] that had [illegible] sikes and [illegible]

Raquel Nervous

"But aren't they afraid Monsieur Alphonse will find them out and discharge them?

"Not on your bank balance. Haven't you noticed any trouble that comes up always looks as if it was your fault? Something on which they can pass the buck? That dress you're [illegible] with. It makes you look a [illegible] I'll bet you my life it's some trick they're working on you. It will seem as if the fault was with your figure and not with the dress."

"I don't know what to do about it. I'm sure Raquel's nerves were [illegible] edgy from a succession of annoyances it was as much as she could do to control them.

"Send it back to the work-room," Greta advised. "Say you won't wear such a mess. That you will call it to the attention of Alphonse if it is not back in 15 minutes perfect. I'll bet you get a tumble. They'll know you're on to them."

Greta's suspicion was well founded. The gown was returned within the time specified by Raquel. It looked the same, to the casual eye, but the lines were changed. It was no longer a bunch. It was svelt and chic.

Two models, meeting her with apparent casualness, watched Raquel's progress down the hall to the exhibition room. They tittered and whispered. Raquel had the feeling of a woman in a new gown who suddenly discovers in public a large price-tag attached.

Mrs. Dexter Impressed

She swept past the hecklers, her head high. She must not allow them to shake her confidence in herself.

Mrs. Dexter emitted a gasp of astonishment of admiration, when Raquel entered the room.

"Don't you really think it is too daring for me?" she asked timidly. "That sultry red, with the deep decollete at the back—almost to the waist."

"Nonsense!" Alphonse expostulated. "Nothing is too daring when it has beauty as its reason. And your back, Madame—it is one of your best features—I might say the best."

Mrs. Dexter flushed. This admiration from a man startled, yet pleased, her.

"If there could only be something sheer in the deep V flesh-colored chiffon or net," she said. "It would have the same effect, and still, one would not feel so—so—bare."

"No," stubbornly from Alphonse. "The effect would be lost. It must be so, or not at all. One does not compromise with beauty."

"Then you would advise me—"

"To decide on this model, Madame, for the opera tomorrow night. It is the very thing. A challenge and a promise. You say Mr. Dexter will be in the audience. He will see you. He will have a shock. We must [illegible] a shock. We must [illegible] a very real one."

"You will say Mrs. Dexter [illegible] ering [illegible] It's a [illegible] even a suit of a [illegible] dream, but not so [illegible]

Alphonse's Advice

Wear diamonds with it," said Alphonse. "A single chain I know will have such a chain of rare beauty. And many bracelets of diamonds. I do not care for the modern way of covering the forearms with bracelets. It is a fad for the moment only. But in this case I bow to the bad taste of la mode. There is about diamonds a glittering gaiety possessed by no other jewels."

"I never wear them," said Mrs. Dexter hesitantly.

"That is exactly why you must wear them now."

Alphonse had a notion to go to the opera the next evening. He had the creator's pride the artisan's curiosity in his handiwork.

"I should like you to accompany me," he told Raquel. "I hope we may receive somewhat of a shock ourselves. A delightful thrill that will repay, more than all else our labors in behalf of this unfortunate woman."

"I wish it were tonight that we go," Raquel confided. "Tomorrow is such a long time to wait."

Alphonse laid an appreciative hand on her shoulder.

"You too have caught the fever," he said.

Raquel did not resent the hand. It was she knew an impersonal gesture. If this great interpreter of beauty would only come to look upon her as an altar girl in the temple where he was a high priest, how happy she could be.

The next evening Alphonse took her to dine in the Cafe de Paris. Little more than a block from the opera. But even this short distance was traversed in the black limousine with the onyx and silver trimmings and the livery.

Raquel Surprised

Greta had gone to "cut high jinks" in Montmartre.

"Montmartre," she explained to Raquel, "is Broadway with a bead on it. I'll get the right numbers, so we won't have to waste any time when I take you out slumming."

It was not until the second intermission of Manon Lescaut, and Raquel had gone with Alphonse to stroll on the majestic balconies of the opera overlooking the square, that she caught sight of Mrs. Dexter.

Even then she could not be sure. Except for the "sultry red" gown. Could this ravishing woman with the cloud of burnished brown hair and the tremulous lips like poppy petals be the same drab creature she had seen that evening in the dining salon of the Gloire de France? The woman who had whimpered to her, Raquel, about an errant husband?

She must be mistaken. No man could leave the side of such a beautiful woman as this one in the startling red gown and the points of blue-white flame. The woman was flame and ice. Poppies encrusted with frost crystals. Laughing. Shaking her silken petals. Flirting with the Ice King.

Alphonse had stopped to talk with a man. A cadaverous man with sullen eyes that seemed, at first glance, to burn in blackened sockets. With twitching shoulders and hands that plucked at nothingness.

Even before she was presented to the stranger, she knew who he would be.

Randolph Dexter.

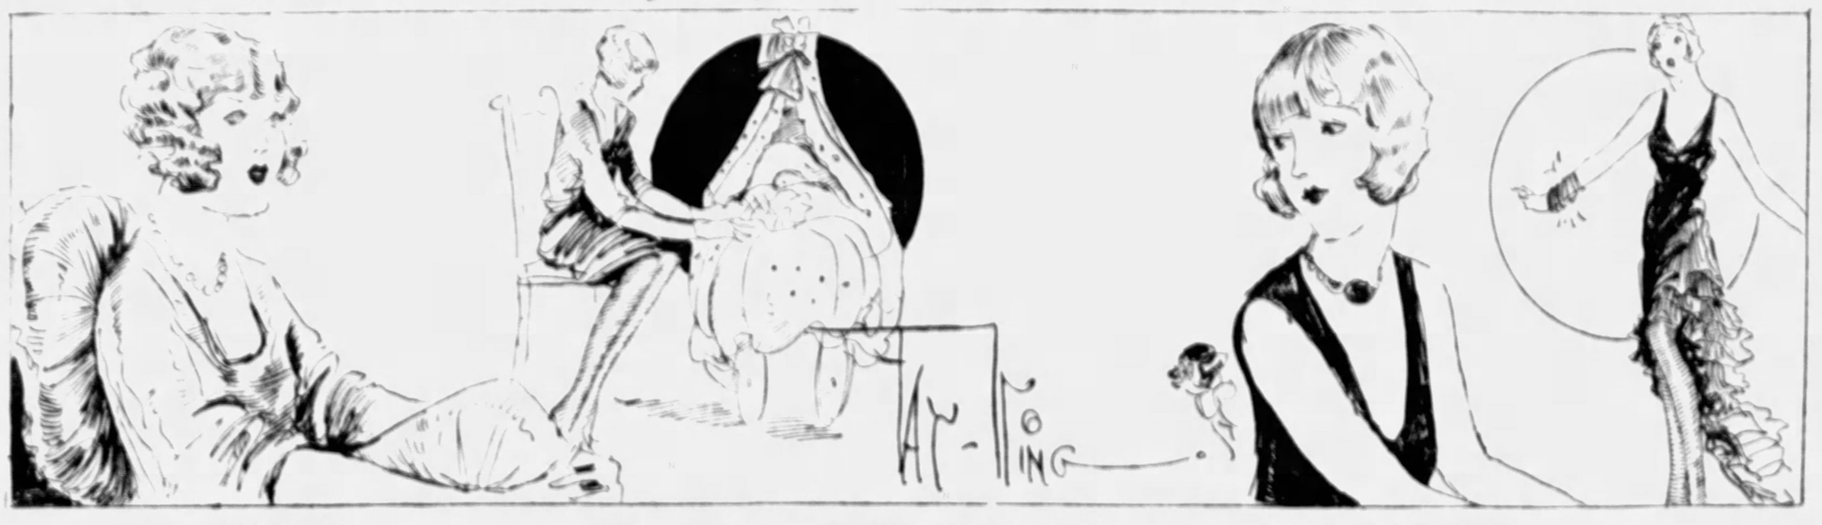
Home or, Career? Fay King Draws Parallel of Sisters for an Answer



By FAY KING

I knew two sisters—both beautiful girls.

One went on the stage and for a while had a merry, gay life. A whirl of success. A host of admirers. Beautiful clothes, beautiful surroundings, and everything to enhance her beauty.

The other sister never left her home town. Married a plain, steady young man.

Friends tried to persuade the sister who stayed at home that she had been very foolish. That she might have enjoyed the same success her sister did.

"Mine is the greater success," she said. "It will last!"

And so it was. I heard only the other day her sister has been sick and disspppointed with her short gay life, and has found a safe harbor in her sister's happy home!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Robert Holds Up Bravely as Madge Informs Him of Lillian's Presence.

Robert Savarin's nurse, a pleasant capable-looking woman of middle age, was waiting for me at the door of his room.

"I do not think he will need much preparation for your friend," she said. "He expects something or someone very eagerly. I can tell that."

She ushered me into the room where, propped against his pillows, Robert Savarin reclined, smiling at me. It was a gallant little smile, knightly in its effort to banish the sadness of this meeting, and I noted that his artist's perceptions had banished the white pillows and coverings of the ordinary sick bed and substituted soft silken-covered ones of old gold shot with crimson. His dressing gown was of the same colors, and the result justified his forethought. There was nothing terrifying in his appearance, though a close look showed me that he was much worn and emaciated. But his pallor was not only mitigated by the color surrounding him, but by the flush of excitement on his cheeks. There was nothing about him to repel even momentarily the woman whom he so loved, and I mentally saluted the indomitable chivalrous spirit which had thus prepared for her visit.

"Ah! Margaret!" he said—he had used my father's name for me instead of the shorter "Madge"—"It is so good of you to come"—he broke off the perfunctory words with a gasping question. "Lillian—where?"

The nurse moved quickly past me, and put her fingers upon his pulse.

"Just a second, and she shall tell you," she said soothingly, and he submitted docilely to her touch. The next instant she laid down his hand and turned to me.

"Tell him anything he wishes to know," she said. "I shall be just outside the door, but I shall not come in unless you call me. I do not think you will need me, however. He is a very good boy tonight, with good strong pulses. But you must stay only five minutes."

She smiled indulgently at her patient in the bedside manner of all good nurses, and went swiftly out of the room, closing the door behind her. And I answered the question which Robert Savarin had just uttered, and which was still in his fevered brilliant eyes.

"Lillian is here with me," I said, watching him narrowly. "She is downstairs. She came just as soon as she received your letter."

He closed his eyes for a second, and there was something in his attitude which made me think he was offering up a little prayer of thanksgiving for the boon he had received. Then he opened them and looked up at me bending anxiously above him.

"You needn't be alarmed," he said. "Do you think I could die now, when God has given me the boon I dared not ask of Lillian—or anyone else. Tell me—is she here in defiance—of anyone—or—what?"

I put my hands firmly upon his, beginning to twist tremulously together.

"Mr. Underwood was perfectly willing that she should come, indeed aided her in every way," I told him. Purposely I refrained from using the term "her husband," and I also omitted to tell him that Harry had accompanied us to the Catskills. But I saw that he was past any pain which a reference to Lillian's husband might bring. He had but two thoughts as he hesitated before the gates of eternity, the wish to see his beloved once more, and the desire to shield her from pain or unpleasantness.

"I am so glad he did not make it hard for her," he said. "That is the reason I did not beg her to come to me, I was afraid he might. But she came anyway, my brave girl."

He was looking off into space as he spoke. The next instant he fixed his eyes upon my face.

"Don't misunderstand me," he said. "I am not thinking she loves me. But her divine pity, and the sight of her face are what I want to carry with me."

"Shall I not call her now, then?" I asked, trying to withdraw my hand from his clasp. But he clutched it tenaciously and whispered:

"Not yet. There are some things I must tell you first."

Mindful of the nurse's edict of five minutes, I protested, reminding him of it and suggesting that I call Lillian immediately. But he broke out explosively.

"No. I can't tell her this. It's about my money which I wish her to have. Listen while I tell you what I have done. It won't take but a minute or two, and someone close to her must know about it."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, September 6

While the strong position of the planet Venus may turn the energies and activities into domestic, affectional, artistic and social channels on this day, more prosaic interests may be said to be under a very adverse and complicated dominion. All phases of enterprise, trading, letters, etc., are under a condition that must be read as inimical to progress or satisfaction. It would be well to defer as much as possible until a more propitious reign of the planets.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which the purely personal interests and activities should engage the attention, as other matters are under an adverse and unprolific planetary rulership. It would be wise to postpone new ventures and to safeguard present interests and the finances.

A child born on this day may be artistic, gracious, socially inclined, but outside of practical affairs relating to these proclivities may find it difficult to make large success of its enterprises.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

The Key to Popularity

There is at least one feminine charm that never fades with the years.

I do not mean brains or "personality." I mean AMIABILITY.

Sounds insipid doesn't it, in this age of high-powered efficiency and pep?

Still, considering that it yields the maximum returns for the minimum effort, I often wonder why so few people bother to cultivate it. A girl will spend years trying to acquire a baby-pout or a grand manner or an effect of hard-boiled cynicism, when a quarter of the time spent in practicing a gracious, responsive smile, a sympathetic voice and a good-natured attitude would bring her ten times the results.

* * *

Amiability requires so little effort or self-sacrifice, yet it never fails a woman in any emergency, and it covers a multitude of sins, including all the deadly ones, from superfluous fat to stupidity and middle-age.

You can be beautiful at twenty—but you can be amiable at forty, at sixty or at eighty. And everybody will call you "sweet."

You can be brilliant or witty, when you have the right audience, the right background and the right atmosphere—but you can be kindly and amiable to anybody, anywhere, at any time.

You can be interesting when you are inspired or thrilled; but you can be amiable when you are bored or tired or utterly indifferent.

You can be sparkling when you are talking to someone who "speaks your own language" and is in your mental class; but you can be amiable to the man who talks only golf, or the woman who talks only bridge or servants or gossip or bargains.

You can be strong and noble when you are winning the game; but you can be amiable and good-natured and a good sport when you find yourself the loser.

You can be original sometimes, but you can be amiable ALL of the time!

You can be good, if you try very, very hard—but you can be amiable without half trying!

* * *

Most men admire a beautiful woman, are attracted by a brilliant woman and amused by a witty woman—but they marry (and sometimes STAY married to) an ami[illegible]an.

Amiability [illegible]s so many things—sweetness, graciousness, good-temper, sympathy and kindliness. Yet most of us think of "amiability" as a weak and watery, mid-Victorian virtue. We pass it up—and then keep the beauty parlors and the plastic surgeons going on all twelve cylinders, in the fond hope that every girl may attain one-hundred siren-power. But, without sweetness and amiability, the most dazzling siren is a dud!

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

'For Twenty-three GLORIOUS Years' Men Had No Place In Nancy's Thoughts—

Then she met Dick!

And did she fall for him? Did she ??!!!!

And how about him? Did he fall for her?

Well, if he didn't he certainly put on a fine act.

Then, suddenly, without explanation, he disappeared, went away, left her flat for five long, silent months. Did that discourage her? No lady, it did not. She looked him up, and everything was rosy for three short days. Then the blow fell.

Now, Nancy wants to know how she can stop hating the world. She wants to know how she can "regain belief and ambition."

"My Dear Sally Martin:

"Is it possible to regain belief and ambition, and to cease hating, when these things have all been ruined by a great blow?

"I'll tell you my story briefly, to show you why I feel as I do.

"For twenty-three glorious years men had no place in my thoughts. Then Dick came along. He had an almost unbelievable fascinating way of making love, and after three months seeing him every evening, it ceased to be an amusing affair for me . . . and for the first time in my life I found I was interested in what a man was saying. From that, the step was a short one to deep, whole-hearted love.

"Then suddenly he went away, leaving no address, giving no explanation. He just left. I wonder if you can ever dream of the hell that I went through while he was gone! No word from him from November till March, but just ceaseless, endless agony.

"I found out he had been married before, and was parted from his wife . . . and that he said he had been amusing himself with 'the most unsophisticated girl' he had ever known.

"Then, through a kind friend, I found where he was, so I went to find him . . . there was a very happy meeting (probably very amusing to him) and he told me we would be married in April. There were plans for a home, and even talk of babies. He had obtained his divorce in December, but he gave me no explanation of why he hadn't communicated with me . . . and I demanded none, for I trusted him.

"That night, after he'd put me on my train, I worshiped God for his goodness, and wondered if it really could be true. There were three days of such happiness that I wondered if it wasn't just a beautiful dream.

"Then I found it was. What awakened me was a letter from him, telling me that I loved, not him, but his money. He was through! It was the hardest, most heartless thing ever written. I can't tell you what a dreadful blow it was. But it made me take poison—to try to kill myself.

"I didn't die. I lived, but I've come out of the hospital hating and loathing everybody and everything. I've lost all trust, all belief, all love . . . for everyone but Dick. I can't kill that love for him. That was nearly a year ago, but I'm still the same.

"If I could only forget him, and get back my old faith and interest in life. Do you think that is possible? How can I do it? NANCY."

Can you get over this bad hurt?

Sure you can, honey. But first you must realize what gave you this hurt.

You think Dick gave you this hurt. He didn't! You yourself, gave Nancy this hurt!

You gave it through your own ignorance . . . that ignorance which Dick called "lack of sophistication."

You're rather proud of that term. You think such innocence" of men was lovely in a twenty-three-year-old woman . . . and you're sure that Dick was a contemptible cad to take advantage of it. But you're wrong. Some innocence is lovely . . . but ignorance of men, healty, unnatural and plain silly in a normal, modern American girl.

If during those first twenty-three years, which weren't empty, you had taken a normal interest in the boys around you . . . if you'd played and worked and thought with men, as you should have done . . . this cheap skate wouldn't have made such a huge impression on you. You would have acquired a sense of values. You would have known which qualities were desirable and necessary in a man.

Your starved nature rebelled at last, and grabbed at the love it needed . . . that love which every healthy woman needs. But . . . it grabbed wrong for you have never trained your head to guide your heart. And so—you became the victim not of a man's wickedness, but of your own ignorance.

"But I can't get over it," you wail, "for I still love him!"

No. You don't love him. I doubt very much if you ever did love him. You loved . . . love. You needed—love. You still need love. That agony you feel is a natural hunger for love . . . and equally natural rankling of hurt pride.

Face those facts. Acknowledge that need . . . and eliminate that grouch.

Love . . . real love . . . is waiting for you just around the corner.

Go n' get it!

CORRECT MANNERS

American and European Plan Hotels

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please explain the difference between American and European plans in hotels?

ELSIE.

When we say that a hotel is operated on the "American plan" we mean that the hotel charges a fixed rate (per day or per week) which includes room, meals, and service. This as distinguished from the "European plan," which states the rate for lodging only. Sometimes hotels offer both plans, and we indicate when we make our reservations which we choose.

Menu Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young man escorts me to dinner, I am in doubt how to order it. The menu cards seem so complicated. What I don't understand is whether I should just say "Roast pork dinner" or give a list of the items such has "roast pork," "salad" and so forth. As I have never eaten in restaurants I do not know the proper way to order. I refused a dinner invitation because I didn't want do the wrong thing. GRACE.

Treat a menu card like a friend—it is one, one who is trying to offer you, very simply and clearly suggestions for your happiness. Don't be afraid of it—there isn't a thing to fear. What you need to do, apparently, is to be more specific about your order. Order each course definitely—the waiter probably will wish to take your order up to the dessert. Don't say "roast pork dinner," for this isn't definite enough. If there is a pre-soup course say what you wish in this course, then the kind of soup, and so on, through the menu. But remember, dear girl, that there isn't any reason in the world to be dismayed by a menu.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Keep Young in Thought and Action

There isn't the slightest doubt that the average person can add materially to his length of life. He can make his life long, happy and effective if he will keep a youthful mind and body.

DR. COPELAND

But, you say, how can one keep body and mind young?

What a man eats, how he works and plays, the amount and kind of exercise he takes daily, and his mental attitude—all these have a direct bearing on good health. They promote long life.

I have been much interested in hearing of the life of a certain judge in Ohio. At 78 years of age he is still on the bench. He says he never feels physically tired. I believe his story would interest my readers.

Judge Webber says he is not a pessimist. He must be an optimist, although he does not boast of that. Probably his mental attitude is the really great secret of his long life.

The judge is now engaged in writing three books, so he rises at 5 and works at his typewriter for two hours. Then a little outdoor exercise in his yard and a bath follow, after which he has breakfast.

He walks to and from his work and spends a busy morning and afternoon at the courthouse. His sight and hearing are excellent and he walks with an alert step.

This man at 78 believes that the quality of sleep he enjoys has much to do with his good health. He usually goes to bed at 10 and sleeps like a child.

These are splendid rules for living. A wide and humanitarian interest in life, right mental attitude, wholesome living, all these things make life worth living.

If you haven't a religion have a good philosophy. Some people call the spiritual and mental attitude one thing and some another.

Enough emphasis cannot be placed upon the relation of mind and body to health. Bad health has mentally depressing effects. Overfatigue, overeating, constipation, living in contaminated air, lack of physical exercise insufficient and poor quality of sleep—all these lower the vitality and the resistance to disease.

Good health has an effect the very reverse of this. Given good health, right thinking and doing the consciousness of physical strength and endurance—there is no end to the things one can accomplish in life. With a keen interest in life and human kindness for your fellow man, contentment of mind is sure to follow.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Plumpies are urged to eat fresh fruit as a substitute for fat building foods but there are certain fruits so rich in fats and sugars that they should be marked off the reducing diet list. Alligators pears are almost solid oil. Bananas are fattening, so are figs and dates. Nuts are rich with oil. The citrus fruits were evidently designed for the heavyweights. Lemons, grapefruit and oranges supply no fat building materials.

Sulphur ointment has been recommended for a long time for the cure of dandruff. It is safe and often effective.

Short hair isn't a new idea. It was fashionable in Egypt more than 2,000 years ago. Joan of Arc wore a pretty bob, cut after the fashion of the young lads who served as pages to royalty. Neither is the permanent wave a new discovery. Greek gentlemen long ago who took pride in their beautiful and luxuriant beards did them up in ringlets, strand by strand, covered the curls with hot clay and let them dry. Henna was used not only as a coloring agent for hair, but as a finger nail polish. The beauty bug has been buzzing since Eve was a girl.

Don't cut ingrowing toe nails at the sides. Lift up the nail and insert a small piece of cotton. If the cuticle is painful, apply a drop or two of compound tincture of benzoin.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

BAKED APPLE WITH OATMEAL—Two cups oatmeal, 4 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, 6 tart cooking apples.

Mix salt with boiling water, add oats and cook for five minutes. Wash, core apples and place in a greased baking dish. Fill the cavities with the cooked oatmeal and with the remainder fill in the spaces between the apples. Sprinkle the sugar over the top, cover and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for 35 minutes. Then uncover and cook for 10 minutes longer. Serve warm with top milk. Leftover porridge of any kind may be used instead of freshly cooked cereal. This serves six.

MILK TOAST—Two cups thin white sauce, 6 slices dry, whole-wheat toast.

Dip toast into white sauce, then place on dish, pour remaining sauce over toast. Adding grated cheese to white sauce increases the food value and gives color which children always love.

MILK JUNKET—One package vanilla junket powder, 1 pint milk, 1 tablespoon sugar.

To the lukewarm milk add the junket powder. Beat briskly for one minute. Pour into deep cereal dishes and let stand in warm place until firm. Then put in icebox to chill. Before serving sprinkle with bran flakes, grapenuts, shredded wheat or any other dry cereal. Fresh fruit — bananas, oranges, peaches or berries—that have been cut up may be placed over the cereal. This is a real breakfast treat your whole family will thoroughly enjoy.

DEVILED CRAB—To prepare it, you blend thoroughly the contents of a pound can of crabmeat, a cup of very fine bread crumbs moistened with a half-cup of milk, the yolks of 2 hard boiled eggs rubbed through the strainer, a small pinch of mustard, a level teaspoon of salt, a pinch of cayenne, ¼ cup of melted butter.

Have either small dishes or timbales ready, and fill with the mixture. Sift bread crumbs very lightly over the top, and dot with butter. Brown quickly in a hot oven, being very careful not to allow the crumbs to burn.

NUGAT CREAM—Place 1 cupful of sugar in a heavy saute pan and place it over a very slow fire. Stir it until it melts, but do not let it burn. As soon as the sugar is melted add 1 cupful of chopped nut meats. Have an oiled flat dish, and pour the mixture into it in a thin sheet and let it remain until it is cold. When cold, place it in a cloth and pound to a fine powder. Place 1 cupful of table cream in a sauce pan with ¼ cupful of sugar, heat it, and add 1 tablespoonful of plain gelatine that has been dissolved in 4 tablespoonfuls of cold water. Stir until the gelatine is dissolved, remove and cool, when it begins to set, stir in ¾ of the pounded nut brittle. 1 cupful of stiffly whipped cream and 1 teaspoonful of vanilla. Either place in the trays of the refrigerator or in a mold that has been rinsed in cold water, sprinkle with the remainder of the nut brittle, and chill until it hardens.

PANCAKES—Sift 1½ cupfuls of flour with 4 tablespoonfuls of corn starch, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and ¼ teaspoonful of salt, and 1 teaspoonful of sugar. Beat the yolks of 3 eggs to a light cream and add to them ¾ cupful of milk and ½ cupful of cream. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the 3 eggs, beat well and add 1 tablespoonful of melted butter. Place a spoonful of the mixture on a griddle that has been oiled but be careful not to have it to hot. Lightly smooth the mixture out. As soon as it begins to bubble, turn the cakes over.

RIPE CRABAPPLE JELLY—11 to 12 8-ounce glasses—Five cups juice (2½ pounds crabapples), ½ cup bottled pectin, 7½ cups sugar (3¼ pounds).

Use only the fully ripened fruit. Remove the blossom and stem ends and cut apples in small pieces. Do not peel or core. Add 4 cups water, cover, and simmer 10

Don't Expect Soap Alone to Give Best Dish Washing Results

New water-softening cleanser is almost magic in action—with local hard water and ¼ usual amount of soap. ½ the time.

A NEW discovery—not a soap, but a water-softening cleanser—makes any soap more effective by changing hard water to soft. It enables you to cut dish washing time in half. And you need use only one-fourth the usual amount of soap.

Women now find that greasy film on dishes has been eliminated and greasy scum is no longer left in the dishpan—in spite of this city's hard water.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a tablespoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water. So soft that it does the work with ONE-FOURTH the soap you use now. And thus ends danger of "soap eat" to fragile things.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime. And thus cuts washing time, too—in either dishpan or washing machine—ONE-HALF or more.

Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results. During 1929—women used over 24,000,000 packages of Climalene for washing, for cleaning and in the dishpan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things, lingerie and delicate fabrics. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

We wash delicate lingerie, often 50 times—without perceptible fade. Children's rompers, 60 to 90 times. That's over a year's home washing.

We wash gold encrusted china hundreds of times—without a trace of gold gone. And thus prove the blandness of this way.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it. Sold only in 10c and 25c packages.

Moderation in Consumption Of Candy Wise Course

Candy is Not Harmful If Taken in Moderation and Not to Exclusion of Other Substantial and Necessary Foods.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

Almost everyone has a craving for sweets. Some people take candy in moderation and it does them no harm at all. Others bolt it down as if half famished for it. This, of course, is unnatural and may lead to harm.

If there is any doubt in anyone's mind as to the popularity of candy, the recent statistics on candy consumption would dispel it. In 1929 the average per capita rose from 12 to 13 pounds, which is an increase of 9.2 per cent. The total amount of candy consumed in 1929 was about 1,382,243,387 pounds.

A great many persons ask about the candy eating habit, whether it is good or bad. I should say in answer to this general question that one who eats regularly and systematically of what we may call the fundamental foods, to the exclusion of all others, is entitled to a considerable quantity of candy a day if he really wishes it.

HARMLESS HABIT

If taken after meals, or in the middle period between meals, there is no harm in the habit. The trouble with children, and some adults, too, is they nibble candy at all times, whenever they can get it.

Eating candy just before mealtime takes away the appetite for the vital foods. In the child, the candy eating before meals robs them of lime and other essentials in the foods of the well-balanced meal. Honest hunger has been destroyed. Children just must have the nourishing foods every day of their lives if health is to be maintained.

There are all sorts of candy makers. Certain names stand out in this field. Their reputations have been established for a pure candy, and these are the sweets that have the best ingredients in them.

CANDY AS A FOOD

These are the kinds of candy to give the children. They are best for making the "top-off" of a good meal for the adult. You are safe to eat your sweets after meals as a dessert. In this system you will not be endangering your proper intake of the essential foods.

Candy must be thought of as a food. In the taking of it you would do well to count it in when you study the food needs of your system. Everything we eat has its direct effect on the body. Too much candy or sweets of any sort can very well bring dire results. Moderation in all things is the wise course.

PLAN RUSSIAN SCHOOL IN U. S.

Plans for a $100,000 campaign to secure funds to build a school for Russian people in this country were announced today by Andrew Goidich, editor of the Russian Orthodox Journal.

The campaign was decided upon at the convention of the Federated Russian Orthodox Clubs held in Wilkes-Barre, with 50 chapters represented.

Pittsburgh was chosen as next year's convention city, and a Pittsburgher, V. Prislopski, is the president of the federation. He also founded the organization in 1927, when it consisted of seven chapters.

The purpose of the federation is to sponsor education, culture, religion, dramatics and singing among Russian-Americans.

minutes. Crush with a masher and simmer 5 minutes longer. Drip through jelly bag. Measure juice and sugar into large saucepan, stir, and bring to a boil. At once add pectin.

Stir constantly and bring again to a full rolling boil and boil ½ minute. Remove from fire, let stand 1 minute, skim, pour quickly. Cover hot jelly with film of hot paraffin; when jelly is cold, cover with ⅛ inch hot paraffin. Roll glass to spread paraffin on sides.

CRABMEAT CHOPS — Mix a tablespoon of chopped parsley, ½ onion, chopped, salt and cayenne to taste, a cup of thick white sauce and 2 cups of canned crabmeat. Cook all the ingredients together and cool. Then make 8 separate heaps of the mixture and let stand an hour. Take each heap and form it into a chop shape. Dip in beaten egg and dredge in cracker crumbs. Fry in deep fat and serve hot with tartar sauce.

They were a huge success! Not a scrap remained on the platter.

RIPE PEACH JELLY — Nine eight-ounce glasses.—Three cups peach juice (1½ pounds); 1 bottle pectin; 6½ cups sugar (2¾ pounds).

Do not peel fruit. Remove pits and crush peaches thoroughly. Add ½ cup water. Stir until mixture boils, cover, and simmer 5 minutes. Drip through jelly bag. Measure juice and sugar into large saucepan, stir and bring to a boil. At once add pectin, stirring constantly and bring again to a full rolling boil and boil ½ minute. Remove from fire. Let stand one minute, skim, pour quickly. Cover hot jelly with film of hot paraffin; when jelly is cold, cover with ⅛ inch of hot paraffin. Roll glass to coat the sides with paraffin. If peaches lack flavor or tartness, add juice of 1 lemon to sugar, and ¼ tsp. almond extract to jelly after skimming. For a soft, very slow set use ½ cup less sugar.

DOUBLE PEACH SUNDAE—One and one-half cups finely chopped peaches, 1 cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup water, 1¼ cups evaporated milk, ¼ teaspoon vanilla.

Select ripe, fine-flavored peaches. Add sugar, salt and water to peaches, then evaporated milk and vanilla. Stir until well blended. Let stand in a cold place ½ hour to dissolve sugar. Strain through a coarse sieve into ice cream can. (Almost all of the peaches should pass through a sieve.) Freeze with a mixture of one part salt and six parts of chipped ice. Serve with peach preserves. Make 1 quart.

COCOANUT COOKIES—Cream ¼ cupful of butter or shortening, and cream into it 2-3 of a cupful of sugar, add 1 unbeaten egg and beat well. Sift 1½ cupfuls of sifted flour, with 3 teaspoonfuls of baking powder and ⅛ teaspoonful of salt, and add to the butter mixture alternately with ½ cupful of milk, then stir in 2 cupfuls of cocoanut and ½ teaspoonful of lemon juice. Mix thoroughly and drop from a spoon on an oiled and floured baking sheet, placing them at least an inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

GRAPEFRUIT CAKE—Beat the yolks of 5 eggs, and gradually beat into them 1¼ cupfuls of sugar and beat for 10 minutes. Sift two cupfuls of sifted flour with 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder and ½ of a teaspoonful of salt. Sift 3 times. Add to the sugar mixture alternately with a scant ½ cupful of grapefruit juice and ¼ cupful of cold water. Add 3 tablespoonfuls of grated grapefruit rind, mix thoroughly and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the 5 eggs. Place in oiled and floured layer-cake tins and bake in a moderate oven.

GRAPEFRUIT ICING—Place in the top of the double boiler 2⅝ cupfuls of sugar, the unbeaten whites of 3 eggs, ¾ tablespoonful of grated grapefruit rind and 9 tablespoonfuls of grapefruit juice, set over boiling water, and as it cooks beat it with a rotary egg beater until the mixture will stand up in peaks when the beater is removed. Remove from the heat and carefully add 1½ teaspoonfuls of lemon juice and ¼ teaspoonful salt, and beat again until stiff.

GINGERCAKE — One-fourth cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon ginger, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ cup sour milk, ½ cup molasses, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream the shortening and sugar together. Add the egg; beat well. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add them to the creamed mixture, alternately, with the sour milk and molasses. Bake in moderately hot oven.

GINGERSNAPS—Two cups molasses, 1 cup shortening, 7 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1½ tablespoons ginger, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon salt.

Heat the molasses and pour it over the shortening. Add sifted dry ingredients. Chill thoroughly. Roll very thin (a little more flour may be needed); cut in desired shape. Bake on cookie sheets in moderately hot oven.

GOSSIP ABOUT HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM WITH REVIEW OF NEW TALKIE

Greta Garbo May Portray Woman Spy in Her Next Talkie

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1930, Universal Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.

The future holds promise for Greta Garbo playing the role of "Mata Hari," famous woman spy executed by the French during the World War.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has bought Barney Glazer's play, in which the colorful secret agent is the central character. Without question it is intended for a Garbo vehicle.

In the meanwhile the Swedish star is shortly to embark on "Red Dust." Some say that George Fitzmaurice will direct her as his first assignment on the M. G. M. lot. He is now finishing the Evelyn Laye picture for Samuel Goldwyn.

Greta Garbo

Though the "Mata Hari" story is not definitely scheduled as yet a screen treatment already is in the hands of studio executives. This hints of an early production.

FETCHING AD

Alan Hale enlivens the pages of the latest casting directory by his pithy ad:

"Acting done reasonably."

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

Hollywood makes friends of ancient enemies. Abdeslam Ben Mohammed Khoubarik, former Riff chieftain, was met at the train this week by Louis Vandenecker, a one-time member of the French Foreign Legion. In former days the two were enemies in desert warfare. They will work together as technical advisers on "Beau Ideal," sequel to "Beau Geste."

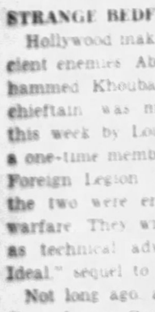
Not long ago, at the same studio, a former German baron who ferreted out British military secrets in the World War was cast in a picture opposite several English ex-officers.

TIMES CHANGE

Men from all professions come to Hollywood to become actors. Roberto E. Guzman, now playing the lead in Universal's Spanish version of "The Cat Creeps," was at one time the secretary to Adolfo de la Huerta, Provisional President of Mexico in 1923.

GETS NEW LEAD

One of those last-minute switches in film casts puts Helen Twelvetrees opposite William Boyd in his new western, "The Painted Desert."



Helen Twelvetrees

As originally planned, Dorothy Burgess was to have had the role. The change is laid to a stage contract which this actress has to fulfill.

She is scheduled to appear about October 15 in "Aloma of the South Seas," a melodrama that goes into the Belasco Theater here. As "The Painted Desert" company departs on a five weeks' location trip, Dorothy would not be back in time for rehearsals.

Artillery Reserves To Open Meetings

Fall meetings of the 372nd Regiment, 99th Division Field Artillery Reserve, begin in the Westinghouse building Monday. The outfit is a new howitzer regiment authorized by the war department last winter. Col. L. W. Depuy says he expects the full enlistment quota to be attained during the coming months.

Mitchell Family To Hold Reunion

Descendants of Benjamin and Jane Paterson Mitchell will hold their twenty-second annual family reunion at Westinghouse Park tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell immigrated from St. Johnston, Ireland, and settled in Allegheny County at an early date. Another branch of the family held a reunion in Woodstock, Ont., recently.

Three Convicts Get Additional Terms

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Convicted on charges of shooting Howard Freigh, 24, three men already inmates of the Eastern Penitentiary were sentenced in Chester County court to additional terms of three and one-half to seven years. They were Warren Mitchell, 34, Lansdale; Charles Mitchell, 38, Norristown, and Samuel Friday, 26, West Conshohocken.

The three were charged with shooting Freigh, a lonely road near the latter's farm the night of April 4. Freigh was badly wounded but recovered. Since the shooting the three men were sentenced to terms for stealing copper wire.

Modern Lady!

Irene Rich has a prominent role in the film, "On Your Back," now showing as the Enright screen feature. It is heralded as a drama of modern life.

CONSTANCE BENNETT GOES A-SPYING IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

From out of the West (Hollywood to be exact) comes "Three Faces East" to the Stanley screen. It has to do with the World War and the Secret Service. A couple of spies make the classy home of a big gun in the British admiralty their rendezvous. Then they keep you guessing whether they are serving the King or the Kaiser. And they mold Shelley roses and that thing called duty into a melodramatic pattern.

The two most prominent faces of "Three Faces East" are those of Erich Von Stroheim and Constance Bennett. What Miss Bennett lacks in effective acting she has in "looks." What Erich lacks in appearance he has in acting ability.

AND SHE IS SORRY!

Miss Bennett, of course, is the heroine. And such a sweet heroine! She shoots a man in the back and then she says, "I am sorry, terribly sorry." We guess he is, too.

The picture is based on the stage play. It manages to create and hold an element of suspense. But much of its action hinges on what appears as a very ridiculous thing. Secret papers of such importance that the winning or the losing of the war depends on their remaining secret are locked up in a drawing-room safe. What's more and worse, everyone appears to know its combination.

ARK BECOMES LARK!

Gene Morgan's new stage show is "Noah's Lark." It has Mr. Morgan drinking enough water to float an ark. Which achievement is part of one of those Morgan comedy gags. Well, we give him credit. He gets the laughs. And, from somewhere, we gather the idea that he is a good fellow.

Billy Farrell and his 74-year-old father put on an amusing display of steps. A "horse" with four human legs is seen in a comical exhibition. A girl goes in for bird imitations in a vocal way. An adagio team works for eight or so minutes. And again Bernie Armstrong acts as Mr. Morgan's man Friday.

Preceding all this is David Broudy waving the baton in an overture that includes some solo numbers.

Marine Band Will Play Foster Medley

A special Stephen Foster medley has been composed for the two concerts which the U. S. Marine Band musicians are to give for crippled children and the Boys' Home at Syria Mosque Thursday afternoon and evening. The medley was written by Capt. Taylor Branson, director of the band at the request of the Stephen Collins Foster Memorial Committee of the Civic Club of Pittsburgh.

Auto Deaths Drop Slightly in County

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 5.—Fatalities in Lawrence County resulting from automobile collisions for the first eight months of the year are two less than for the first eight months of 1929, Coroner James P. Caldwell announced.

Man Struck by Mine Car Fatally Hurt

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP)—James Watson, 20, was struck and fatally injured by a mine car at the Shenandoah City Colliery, where he was employed.

Ex-Superintendent Of Orphanage Dies

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. W. F. More, who a few years ago retired as superintendent of Bethany Orphans Home, died yesterday. He was 72 years old.

OREGON FIGHTS FOREST FIRES

SEATTLE, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Hundreds of men were battling forest fires at widely separated points in Washington and Oregon today.

A crew of 200 men was fighting a fire on White Salmon River, 70 miles east of Vancouver, Wash., which had covered 3,000 acres of second growth timber and had finally penetrated to the Columbia National forest.

At Hemlock Pass, 20 miles from Longview, Wash., 300 employes of the Weterhaeuser Timber Company had surrounded a slashing fire before it damaged much merchantable timber.

A new fire, covering several sections of forest land, was reported on Diamond Fork, of the Klickitat River and Ten-Day Creek, near Yakima, but was believed under control.

From Medford, in Southern Oregon, flames were reported running wild through the Owen-Oregon timber lands near Butte Falls and threatening one of the finest timber stands in Southern Oregon. Forest officials believed this fire was of incendiary origin.

U. S. INDICTS 2 EX-OFFICIALS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Federal indictments against E. E. Curtis, former Canton safety director, and Arthur S. Drukenbrod, former Canton councilman were returned, charging conspiracy in accepting regular payments for protection of city law violations. It was the second set of indictments returned by the grand jury, which has been investigating alleged corruption in Canton.

The indictments charge that from January to September, 1929, Curtis was paid $1,900 by "speakeasy" proprietors and from March 1928, to April, 1928, Drukenbrod collected $4,810.

Under the first indictments they were alleged to have collected $11,000.

PERRY DETOURS EXPLAINED

Motorists who questioned the excuse for two detours at bridges on the Perry Highway between Middle Lancaster and Harlansburg, were answered today by C. C. Braeme of the State Highway Department at Franklin.

Mr. Braeme said that a contract has already been let for the construction of an overhead at the railroad tracks at Muddy Creek at Grant City, and that bids have been advertised for the construction of the new bridge near Harlansburg.

Motorists said that it was inexcusable that these two bridge jobs which necessitate two rough detours, should be permitted to destroy the driving value of the new highway, described as one of the most beautiful roadways in the state.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Well, just as I suspected . . . That blast by the Brooklyn contemporary about the alleged unscrupulous "tabloid columnist and a theatrical weekly editor" pulling a "shake" on a woman proved that someone misinformed him . . . Confronted by the four lads doing columns, he confessed that he did not believe the story he got from hearsay . . . He was incensed, he said, over the tone of a confrere's article . . . He didn't like its "venom," he said, which made him believe that the columnist co-operated with others to extort coin.

The accuser altered his original comments when one of the most respected locals vouched for the tab paragraph and added:

"None of them accepted a gratuity of any sort because they love their jobs so well they wouldn't risk losing them."

Too many of us serve as targets for this sort of abuse . . . We cannot stop mice from threatening others with:

"If you don't do as I say I'll have you written up in the papers by a friend of mine!"

A dime will bring anyone a grand if it can be honestly asserted that this bureau ever peddled itself . . . Never call a four-flusher names . . . Call his bluffs.

Wonder if they know that Coste's first name in French means "God given" or "Heaven-sent?" . . . The power of the printed word is terrific . . . That Velma Ebsen eyeful who was cheered here for her stepping, class and charm in that second rate Atlantic City cafe still is buried under the avalanche of offers from producers in New York and Hollywood . . . Maybe she'll amount to something some day . . . Hope so . . . Somebody gave me a little push over.

Funny crack, Bugs Baer's: "They ought to call them miniature golf curses" . . . Some proofreader probably will spoil it . . . Hellinger, it seems, is the highest paid proofreader in town, haw! . . . So I'm not allowed to see certain shows . . . Instead I use the time at the office and do two or three thousand words for a magazine and make extra sugar . . . While my poor comrades have to risk having their evenings spoiled . . . I'm having it so tough . . . I'm laughing with tears in my eyes.

Swell idea that gag used by motorists who can afford to . . . They keep a ten-spot neatly folded in their folded licenses . . . When a cop halts them for speeding and inspects the license the money usually alters his temper . . . Not bad . . . Oh, the hideousyncrasies of some people! . . . Amazing how some folk react to certain stuff . . . That heartache letter from "J. S." frixample . . . Loaded with pain because her man done her wrong, she jotted down her madness and wondered what to do about it. . . . I never was good at Arithmetic and Love so I took a run-out powder on her.

Hundreds of letters from readers . . . Half denouncing her for being a chump . . . The rest offering advice and sympathy . . . I win, heads or tails . . . My racket is hardly different from the newsies on the corner . . . We both peddle papers . . . What a dull world it would be, anyway, if the cast contained only heroes and heroines . . . Gotta have villains! . . . Someone has to come in second . . . On second thought Al E. Smith and Jack Dempsey still are champions . . . And they came in second.

"What's on your mind this very minute?" June asked me as we sat there watching the floor show at the Harlem hot-spot . . . "I was just thinking," I said . . . "I know," she snapped, "but I'm curious. Just what goes on in your mind" . . . "I was merely looking at people and thinking how a person could be sitting with the one he or she adored and never realize that only a table away sat someone else Who Also Mattered. Over there, frinstance, is a woman with her sweetheart. They are going to be married soon. Two tables away sits the guy she really loves and with whom she keeps rendezvous whenever she can get away. She probably can't help it. At that other table it's a horse from a different stable. The woman with him isn't his wife. His wife is in a 46th Street hideaway right now with The One She Goes For. Get it?"

Must be terrible to be found out . . . And a guy is a sap to wise a pal, too, even when he knows he is being crossed . . . They never appreciate the tip . . . Instead they usually quit talking to you.

They tell me that Hatfield, the feudist, who was the Capone of his time, will have his life yarn put between covers, due in about two months . . . Be a bandit and a bum and become a big-shot!

. . . Talk about swift romancing . . . Margaret Quimby met her new husband, J. Irving Walsh, a realtor, at the Club Abbey only a week ago! . . . Nearly choked from laughing over that costly "scoop" that took place at the Daily News office after Coste arrived from Paree by plane.

They decided to beat the town with Mrs. Coste's statement about her husband's achievement . . . So they trans-Atlantalk phoned her—putting on their star reporter (who savvies only English) to jot down her remarks . . . The cost was $45 per minute, the interview consumed five minutes . . . And she would only gab in French! . . . Did their faces get purple?

Wonder who the mug is using my name around Portland, Me.? . . . The Portland Eve'g Express chronicling that I was visiting the towns where my stuff appeared . . . Wish I could . . . Be a lotta fun making the same towns over again where my act flopped ten years ago . . . May be some day I will . . . That would mean dinners arranged by the local rag . . . Chicken a la king and speeches . . . No like . . . It would be more exciting to visit the towns without announcing the fact, remain for a day or two, look over the citizens, their habits, flaws and virtues, and then write them up after I'd left the place.

Oh, boy, that would be a kick . . . Can lose a lot of subscribers that way, too . . . But it would be a different routine and might break the monotony of striving to be clever every day . . . They'd say I was prejudiced, though . . . Wonder if people out of town still waste a lotta time hating New Yorkers? . . . The McIntyre influence . . . Maybe I could change provincialism to pro-Winchellism . . . New York's a great place when the breaks are sweet . . . When they are sour they taste as sour as the sour breaks in Dubuque.

Bellevue School Enrollment Gains

Slight increases in school enrollment are noted in Bellevue and Ben Avon schools with the opening of the fall term. Bellevue has 580 high school pupils, about 40 more than last year, 900 in the grades and 100 in the kindergarten, approximately unchanged. In Ben Avon there are 223 high school and 258 elementary pupils enrolled, a small increase. Plans are being completed for an addition to the Grant building in Bellevue.

Why Fear Middle Age?

No woman need fear middle age if her health is good. Hundreds of active, contented middle-aged women are telling their friends that they owe their health and vigor to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Mrs. Clara Riley, 2100 Paxton & 4th Ave., Sioux City, Iowa

"I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at Change of Life. I still take it every spring and fall and it keeps me in good health. I am able to take care of an eight room house and garden, at the age of 71 years. It is a wonderful medicine for women. They should give it a good trial by taking about five bottles."

Mrs. Bertha Stephens, 21 E. Ross St., Lancaster, Pennsylvania

"I was very nervous and rundown and weighed less than one hundred pounds. I felt tired and weak and I often had to lie down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I read the advertisement in the paper. Now I eat well, sleep well, and have good color. In fact I couldn't feel any better and I weigh one hundred fifty-five pounds. I am glad to answer letters."

Hannah M. Eversmeyer, 707 N. 16 St., East St. Louis, Illinois

"I had a nervous breakdown and could not do the work I have to do around the house. Through one of your booklets I found how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped other women and I went to the drug store and got me six bottles. It has done me good in more ways than one and now I work every day without having to lie down. I will answer all letters."

HOMER RECORDS SMASHED IN MAJORS

THE INCREASED LIVELINESS of the ball in use this year has just been demonstrated again in most convincing fashion by the smashing of all major league home run records. The recent slugging activities of Gabby Hartnett and other long-hit specialists furnished the last bit of power needed to carry the 1930 drive beyond the existing marks, and today the figures show the greatest crop of big-league home runs for a single season in all the history of the diamond sport.

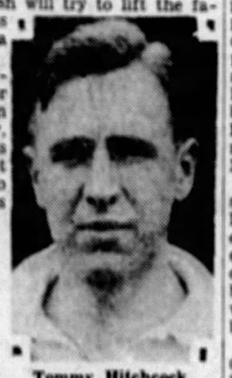
Gabby Hartnett

Though the campaign still has more than three weeks to go, the National League record of all time for home runs in one year has just been broken, and with it the record for homers in a season in the two major loops combined. The previous high mark in the National League was 754, established last year. For the present season, up to today, the total is 760. The highest number of homers ever made for a season in the two big loops combined was 1,350, registered in 1929. The grand total for 1930 up to date is 1,354, of which 760 have been made in the National and 594 in the American.

FOUR CLUBS IN the Heydler circuit have made more than 100 homers each, and at least one other bids fair to reach that mark before the finish. The Cubs lead all the clubs in both leagues with 145. The Giants are second in the National with 127, followed by the Robins and Phillies with 103 each, the Cardinals with 88, the Pirates with 72, the Reds with 62 and the Braves with 60. The failure of the Pirates, Reds and Braves to make as many round-trippers as the other clubs is due to the fact that the only real ball parks in the league in point of playing area are located in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Boston, where each of thes clubs must play 77 games.

The record-breaking will be made complete within a day or two, when the American League will pass its highest mark. That mark is 596, hung up last year. Up to date the Barnard clubs have made 594 four-basers, needing only three more to establish new figures. The Yankees lead with 134, and the A's are second with 113. They will probably be the only outfits to go over the century line. The Tigers have made 68, the Indians 65, the Browns 64, the White Sox 58, the Senators 53, and the Red Sox 39.

WHEN TOMMY HITCHCOCK'S American stars line up against Great Britain's team in Meadow Brook, L. I., tomorrow, in the opening game of the series in which the British will try to lift the famous international cup now held by this country, it will mark the continuance of a competition that dates back to 1886.



Tommy Hitchcock

However, this represents only a modern chapter in a very ancient sport. For polo originated many centuries ago in Persia, eventually spreading into Turkey, China, Japan and Tibet. It was India's chief sport in the sixteenth century, but for some unknown reason was allowed to lapse as an international game and was not revived until 1864.

SOME MEMBERS OF the 10th Hussars learned the game in India and took it to England in 1869. Four years later it was adopted by the Hurlingham Club, of England, which drafted the first standardized set of rules. In 1877 the Hurlingham Club's offer of a cup to the team making the best record for the year aroused the interest of some Americans visiting in England, with the result that upon their return they introduced the game in the United States. Polo developed rapidly here during the next few years until in 1885 its American pioneers felt that they would be able to recruit a team sufficiently strong to cope with England's best.

SO A CHALLENGE for the international championship was issued and accepted, and the first match for a trophy was played in Newport, R. I., in 1886, England winning in two consecutive games. The British won again at Hurlingham in 1900 and 1902, the United States taking only a single game in three matches.

In 1909, however, the Americans succeeded in winning the championship at Hurlingham, and retained it in the next two matches, defeating the Britons at Meadow Brook in 1911 and 1913. On each of the three occasions the count was two games to none.

In 1914, the British lifted the cup at Meadow Brook, but after a lapse of seven years the Americans won it back at Hurlingham and have retained it ever since, defeating England in 1924 and 1927, and turning back the Argentine challengers in 1928 and 1929.

A single decision to the Argentine team in 1928 was the only game lost by the Americans in the last five cup matches, all of the others being won in two straight games. A successful defense of the cup is expected again this year, as the Britons' conservative style of play does not figure to stand up against the drive and dash of the Americans.

JOE McCARTHY'S answer to the published stories that Rogers Hornsby's playing days were over was to send him back to his old post at the midway in the second game of the Pirate series. Moreover, Joe announces that he intends to keep him there, and that the Cubs will make the remainder of their fight for the pennant with Hornsby playing second base. The Rajah isn't as fast on the paths a he was before a broken leg put him out of commission on Memorial Day, and he says the heel that was operated on still gives him a little trouble, but his fielding around the keystone sack was clean and snappy and his wicked bat makes him a threat on the offensive that will cause added worry for the pitchers facing the Bruins in the final stages of their drive for the flag.

Rogers Hornsby

THE STRONG IMPRESSION that Charley Wood had made in his earlier appearances as a Pirate pitcher was not weakened by his failure to go the route against the Cubs. Before he wobbled he allowed only one run in 26 consecutive innings. Few left-handers would have been equal to the task that confronted Wood in pitching to nine right-hand batters of the class to which most of the Bruins belong.

Only two of the Pirates' victories over the Cubs this season have been hurled by southpaws. One of these was pitched by Larry French and the other was credited to Ralph Erickson, who pitched only two and one-third innings.

TONY KAUFMANN may differ from Lefty O'Doul and some other former pitchers who failed when given new trials as hurlers

RIIS PLANS ON PLAY FOR WEEK-ENDS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The much-heralded South Allegheny County Park golf course may be opened for week-end play next month, or sooner, if the weather gives the turf a break in the next few weeks, Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis informed the writer yesterday during the course of a "preview" of the layout. All of which, obviously, is real news for district public linksmen.

While Director Riis had not intended opening the new links to the public before next spring, due to the terrific damage and turf setback caused by the recent drought that swept the country, he said yesterday that if a few rainy days set in and the infant grass showed signs of recovering its luxuriant green, he will permit Saturday and Sunday play during the last month of the season so that the taxpayers of Allegheny County have an opportunity to become familiar with one of their two new public courses and one of the finest golf layouts in the country, private or public.

NORTH PARK RETARDED

The North Park course, started later than the South Park, and therefore not as far advanced before it was retarded by the dry spell, will not be open for purposes of inspection until next spring at the earliest, although every green at that course has been seeded.

If the weather does give county linksmen a chance to play the South Park course, winter rules will be in effect. The formal opening will not take place, in any event, until spring.

Director Riis escorted a party of county officials, golf professionals and newspapermen over the layout yesterday—nine in all participating in an 18-hole round. The party included John Jay Burke, city office manager for the county parks; Al McBride, professional at the Schenley Park municipal links; Bob Hillis, pro at the Steubenville, O., municipal course; E. F. Heinike, Andy Petrolia, caddiemaster at Schenley, and scribes.

M'BRIDE HAS 71

In his first round, McBride scored super golf in traversing the lengthy, stiff-testing layout in 71, or one under par, while Hillis leveled par with his 72. The scores, of course, were greatly enhanced by the fact the party was playing winter rules, which meant the balls were teed in the fairways.

The course is in splendid shape, considering the drought—far better than had been anticipated. The greens and tees, watered all of the time, are well nigh perfect; beautiful to look upon.

The fairways in some instances have needed re-seeding (already planted), while others are in better shape than may be found at country clubs where fairways were not watered during the dry season.

IN FINE CONDITION

On a whole, the layout has survived the ordeal well, and, while it is not ready at this particular time for public play, a matter of a short rainy season should put it in really playable shape.

The objectives of Director Riis have been well attained, for there is not a blind hole on the layout, the course fits well into the general topography of the park, the fairways are wide and handsome, the greens spacious and of varying contour, each hole is a change of pace, play is expedited by a well-placed lineup of holes—and the rough will not be so thick that balls will be lost easily.

It has taken a long time to reach the present stage at South

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: SANTIAGO QUIROS—THE FATHER OF FOUR SONS BORN 17 YEARS APART—The name of Santiago Quiros, of Tubillas, emerged in the deliberations of the Spanish Cortes (Parliament) in 1908, when a bill to fight the 17-year locust was under discussion. Quiros at the time was 87 years old and the father of four sons, born exactly 17 years apart by three successive wives. The story of the human "cicada de diecisiete anos" was featured in many European papers. My reference is a dispatch by the Agenzia Stefani, of March, 1909.

JOHNNIES EVEN M.-A. SERIES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Johnstown evened the count with Clarksburg in the Middle Atlantic play-off last evening, taking the second game by the wild score of 17 to 14, after the West Virginians had won the first battle.

The game was a fair contest until the seventh, when both clubs cut loose with an orgy of base hits which lasted until the close of the ninth. After Johnstown had apparently wrested a victory from the Clarksburgers in the eighth by scoring seven runs to take a 17-to-9 lead, the visitors came back in their half of the ninth to shove across five runs.

Bishop, who was tossed into the game as a relief hurler for the Johnnies in the seventh, drove in five of Johnstown's runs, poking out a homer and double in two trips to the bat. Each hit found two men on the sacks. The score:

THOMPSON IS FAVORED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Young Jack Thompson, world welterweight champion, risks his title tonight for the first time since he won it from Jackie Fields four months ago. He will meet Tommy Freeman, Cleveland challenger, in a 15-round contest to a referee's decision in the Cleveland American League baseball park.

The match will be fought at the welterweight limit of 147 pounds. Indications were that both Thompson and his challenger would easily make the weight. The champion figures to scale around 144 pounds, with Freeman tipping the beam at 146 pounds when they appear before the Cleveland Boxing Commission.

Freeman defeated Thompson last January, before Thompson won the title, but in that engagement the Cleveland welterweight had a weight advantage of six pounds. He scaled 152 pounds.

Thompson remained a 2-to-1 favorite to retain his title. The champion's handlers said he was in perfect condition and might stop the Cleveland challenger inside the 15-round limit.

SOCCER GAME TOMORROW

The Union Switch and Signal eleven will meet the Clan Douglas team in an exhibition soccer game at Swissvale tomorrow afternoon. The kickoff is scheduled for 3:30.

NOTICE PAVLICK.

PIRATES BUY OUTFIELDER

The Pittsburgh management today made a move toward strengthening the club of next year when it announced the purchase from Wichita of Outfielder Augustin J. Dugas, a 22-year-old athlete, who bats and throws lefthanded.

The young man apparently is a bearcat on the offensive. Up to August 27 his record is as follows: 131 games, 105 runs scored, 192 hits, 320 total bases, 32 doubles, 12 triples, 24 home runs, 5 stolen bases, 117 runs batted in. His batting average is .362.

The present is Dugas' first season in the sport, yet he has learned a lot in his initial year, his batting mark topping the lists of the Western League. He is second in homers and in batting in tallies.

Dugas has been ordered to report to the Pirates Sunday in Chicago. He will make the Eastern trip with the club and Manager Ens may work him into some games. The rookie is 5.09 in height and he weighs 165 pounds.

Palfrey, Marlowe Girls in Final

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—For the second successive year Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, and Helen Marlowe, of Los Angeles, will meet for the girls national junior tennis championship. Defending the title she won in 1928 and 1929, Miss Palfrey entered the final round at the Philadelphia Cricket Club by defeating Carolyn Babcock, Los Angeles, 6-4, 7-5.

Miss Marlowe captured her semi-final match from Dorothy Workman, also of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3. The final match will be played tomorrow.

CRAWFORDS BUSY

The Crawford Colored Giants play Dormont this evening on the latter's field, and tomorrow evening take on Tom Brown's Stars, of Youngstown, at Forbes Field.

CONFAB CARDED

A meeting of the Pleasant Valley Smiters football team will be held this evening at 2461 Charles street, at 8 o'clock.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The third clash of a whirlwind series between Our Pirates and the ambitious Cubs is on for this afternoon, with everything to indicate that the thrilling set of games will continue to produce fireworks. Ervin Brame, the Kentucky boy of rare pitching and batting skill, will be on Fogarty Knoll for the Buccos and he will be opposed by Pat Malone, Rolly Hemsley injured a finger of his throwing hand yesterday. Al Bool may catch today.

The Cubs this morning were feeling better than they did yesterday. Joe McCarthy's fighters had a fine show of aggressiveness for 6,000 fans who figured the Buccos were "in" as the home boys carried the battle into the sixth inning with a five-run lead. But they reckoned without giving sufficient consideration to the hustle of the enemy and the home-run prowess of one Leo Hartnett, than whom there are no better hustlers in the sport, and that goes for Mickey Cochrane, if there are any American Leaguers in the audience.

HITS TWO HOMERS

Hartnett combed Charley Wood and Steve Swetonic for his 30th and 31st homers of the season, each of them being struck with two runners aboard. The first wallop, an event of the sixth inning, put the Bears in the thick of the fight and the second round-tripper won the old ball game in the tenth inning. The score was 10 to 7.

Hartnett scattered his punches well. He found the range on the rightfield stands in the sixth for his three-run smash. Swetonic, working the tenth, probably was determined that Gabby would be given no more balls to belt into the right stands, so he cut one loose for the inside corner that was just about right for Gabby's power. Anyhow, the big catcher drove the rocket over the left wall. Kiki Cuyler deadlocked the battle in the eighth by hitting a homer over the left wall. This punch was the opening gun of the inning and before the round ended, who should deliver a double to put the Bears out in front, but Jess Petty. And the Silver Fox eventually rode to a triumph over his

Nick Altrock Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—I see they had John McGraw quitting the Giants again till he signed a new five-year contract. John is now 1 up on Harry Lauder for making farewell tours. The rumor did not fool your Uncle Nick, though, as I would just as soon expect to see polo ponies at the Polo Grounds next season as the Giants' bench without the old master mind and silver hair.

Nick Altrock

However, McGraw did recently direct the Giants' pennant drive on the road from a telephone booth in New York. That is quite a trick to do. I once directed a $5,000 savings account from the road by telephone and came back owing my broker my watch and undershirt.

RESERVES MAKE TECH FORMIDABLE ELEVEN

TARTANS RICH IN FOOTBALL MANPOWER

(This is the first of a series of articles by Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph sports writer, dealing with the prospects of state district college elevens. The concluding article on Geneva, the Conemaughers, will appear in Saturday's Sun-Telegraph.)

By JESS CARVER

In the possession of that ingredient that last December is said to have enabled it to win the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, Carnegie Tech is about to set sail on a campaign that, as a result of a fairly successful campaign last year, bids fair to be one of the most interesting and spectacular in the history of the school.

Carnegie Tech, you will recall, in addition to losing to Stanford in the Rose Bowl, lost to Pittsburgh, Washington & Jefferson and Geneva. A capable end, Joseph Lazetich, and five tackles, Alex Nicholas, Bill Schmidt and a pair of guards, Red Kennedy and Dick Kyle, faded from the Tartan picture. These men will be lost in due course for their football services into the schools' graduate lists, but an influx of sophomore material, strong holdovers from the Tech eleven that sang like a choir during the last

LACKED RESERVES

In the Angeles Rose Bowl and watched a small band of Saints from the University of Southern California, fighting football after they had been before the intermission, Tech's reserves in the second half.

It will be strange indeed if this occurs this fall, even in the face of a stiff schedule. Teams like Pitt, Wash.-Jeff, Georgia Tech, New York University, Notre Dame and Temple, naturally enough, are bound to take their toll, but I think the men of Wagner and Steffen are due for a big year.

It is by far too early to award the laurel wreath to the Skibo moores even though the brand at Tech this year is of A-1 quality, but their general class and depth indicates strongly that they will be well fitted to spell tired or injured veterans.

Suffice to say that the coaching staff regards the new men so highly that they have passed out the word that every position on the team is open and this word is not the usual hoop.

On the line from end to end Tech can start seven veterans if it never sees the back of its neck thereafter. For ends Rosenzweig and Pete Flanagan are back. John Highberger and Len Schnupp are in at the tackles. Capt. Johnny Dreshar and Don Fletcher are available for the guards and Alex (Duke) Ducanis is set to drop over the ball at center.

NEW MEN GOOD

But let's take a look at some of these ambitious youngsters. When it comes to lining up the wingmen, Jacques Croisant, Tony Ostrosky and young Marvin Potts, a two-year man, will have something to say. Croisant is a fine looking wing, fast, alert and a good pass handler.

For the tackles, Schnupp and Highberger must deal with lanky Kay Burns, Jimmy Bouschke, Al Myslenski and Howard Stafford, a holdover from a year ago who can also play a guard. These fellows are big enough and for big men, are fast. Bunahee has been getting his share of the fireworks in the preliminary drills to date and has stood up under it very well.

Anxious to bulwark the centers and desirous of running Capt. Dreshar and Fletcher out of their jobs are heftier lads Benny Buttino, Bert Pouncey, a two-year man; Tony Kebe and Hooks Sample, the latter a 180-pounder with the speed of a halfback. And then, if he isn't in at tackle, big Len Schnupp is not unfamiliar with a guard job. Imagine what a relief man he'd make for one of those spots with those big hands of his pawing at the opposition!

Ducanis is up against some tough competition at center. Young Red Jones, who capitalized last year's fine freshman eleven, is a pivot position candidate, so is Harry Seigel, from Fifth Avenue High. Jones is a big man, weighing better than 170 when he is right, and has shown himself to be an accurate passer. With Dreshar backing up the line on the defensive, Jones will look swell in there grabbing grass.

RICH IN BACKS

If they are well off for linemen, the Skibo mentors are simply rich when it comes to backs. In the first place, last year's backfield is intact. McCurdy, Eyth, Slats Flanagan and John Karcis being on hand. Joe Moroito, who played most of the time at fullback last year in the stead of the ailing Karcis, is in the veritable pink and stubborn when it comes to relinquishing Karcis' job. Murray Armentrout, who looked like true all-America halfback material in all appearances last year, Kermit Ewing, Tony Schmitt, Stuart Deuge, George Kavel (a good man), John Graveno and Harry Zeigler, how they gladden the aging eyes of Messrs. Waddell and Strelitz!

Harry McCurdy, good quarterback though he is playing a tough position on a Tech team, has Hyman Goldberg, former Norwin High and district sandlot luminary, to contend with. McCurdy's experience will stand him in very good stead in his duel with Goldy.

Oscar Carlson still is on hand, a hard-hitting, hard-running back who has been handicapped in the past by injuries. A newcomer, John Vorderburg, who appears to have the stuff, is a 179-pound candidate for fullback.

Because in years past the reserves have been lacking, the Tartan coaches have been forced to shift their men around. Linemen have seldom been afforded the opportunity to play the position they were best fitted for. A man must be good indeed to fit into any job. All guards can't play centers and all tackles can't make a go of it at guard. This situation will be remedied this year. Thank goodness, echoes Mr. Waddell.

A year ago the Tartans dropped three major games, losing to Pitt, Notre Dame and Southern California. Wash.-Jeff held the Skibos even and New York University was defeated.

SIX MAJOR GAMES

The schedule this year, with six instead of five major tussles including Pitt, Wash.-Jeff, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, New York University and Temple, will be more strenuous in itself, but with the prospects as glittering as they are the record to be compiled by the Scotch figures to be much more impressive.

New style uniforms will adorn the powerful physiques of the warriors. The jerseys are white with crimson shoulders, crimson cloth pads and stripes on the arms. The helmets are white with crimson cross piece.

The Skibos open the campaign this fall with the University of Buffalo at Buffalo, September 27. The following week Thiel will be played in the Stadium and on October 11 Georgia Tech appears here. October 18 finds the Skibos at South Bend for the annual struggle with Notre Dame. Western Reserve will be played in Cleveland on October 25, and on November 1 New York University will furnish the opposition in the Stadium.

Pitt and Tech are to put on their annual battle November 8. November 15 is permanently open and Temple will be met in Philadelphia on November 22, the Saturday before Thanksgiving. Wash.-Jeff will assist the Tartans in ringing down the local curtain the Saturday following.

"We started on this course in September 1928," said the Director, "and it was constructed in September 1929. Then came the seeding process—we have not had any sort of a break in the weather since we attained our finish layout and therefore we regretted we were unable to give the course to the public earlier. We can battle everything but the elements."

MINIATURE GOLF NEWS

Competition for women was featured at the Twin Orchards course, Mt. Lebanon, this week, and the fair links devotees turned in some very creditable scores. Scoring three under par, Helen M. Reed won first honors with a 39, and Irma Guthoerl was second by the margin of one stroke. Others who scored well were: Ruth Hough, 44; Ruth Sterner, 45; B. Niell, 48.

Mrs. B. Reardon and Dave Allison set the pace for golfers at the Six Little Bees course, Library, Pa., during the last seven days. Mrs. Reardon turned in the best score among the women contestants, and Allison was the champion among the men.

Approximately 1,500 people attended the opening of the Hendrys course, the North Side's smartly indoor layout, last Friday, and of this big crowd, the best shots were garnered in the role of players. Ruth Parsley and G. J. Montrose remained all and sundry that its par 41 could be broken by carding 37, each. M. S. Hartman was next in line with a 40.

After winning first honors with a 43 at Clair's course in Mt. Lebanon, Elmer Chappel stepped out to overthrow his rivals that he was no flash in the pan as a golfer. This Elmer did right nobly by bagging a great 41 on Clair's very tough layout by negotiating this course some thirty hefty drives (one of 70 feet are recorded). Gordon Arnoldi was second with a 43, and H. P. Schwerdtfeger was up there with a 47.

TECH GRIDDERS STAGE HARD WORKOUT

The first pitched battle of Carnegie Tech's football training activities was on this afternoon's program, as the Tartans swung into their fifth day of practice. Although it will not be a regulation game, so far as kickoffs, penalties and such things are concerned, yet there will be 11 men on each side and the quarterbacks will be permitted to use the plays that they desire.

The players have seen this coming since the second day of practice. Vastly more rugged work was attempted much earlier than usual. Both Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons saw the linemen donning the heavy pads for mixups that are not usually tried before the second week of practice. When they were permitted to let down definitely yesterday afternoon, the wise ones knew that something out of the ordinary must be planned for today.

Armentrout was given the entire day off yesterday on account of the injury he received on Wednesday. He was not to be used in today's scrimmage.

It will be the first chance for some of the sophomores who have been impatient under the colorless grind to date to show what they can do.

PANTHERS DRILL

CAMP HAMILTON WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 5.—Despite the fact that Dr. John B. Sutherland leans towards experienced men in his varsity lineup, some of the sophomores may stand out so prominently in a few days that they will rate consideration for first team berths. This was apparent today as the camp buzzed over the first scrimmage of the year, a session which lasted for nearly an hour.

Warren Heller and Paul Reuder are the boys who distinguished themselves in the opening day of skirmishing. Heller snake-hipped his way for long gains against the scrubs and passed neatly with Reuder on the receiving end, once for a touchdown, the only one of the afternoon.

DUKE FRESHIES SCRIMMAGE

More freshman scrimmage is on the program for today on the Bluff training grounds. The Duke varsity will not get into the real action until tomorrow morning, when Head Coach Elmer Layden plans to set his squad of 46 men scrimmaging at a heavy pace. Freshman Coach Buff Donnelli's yearlings were diminished by a cut of approximately 15 men late yesterday, and the elimination process will continue today.

New Castle Auto Race Tomorrow

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 5.—The majority of the two score speed kings entered in the 100-mile automobile race to be staged at the local fair grounds tomorrow afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock Eastern Standard time are expected to reach this city late today or early tomorrow morning. The event was originally scheduled for Labor Day, but a heavy and continuous downpour of rain necessitated the postponement until tomorrow.

BOOK SHOE BLANKED

Homewood shut out Book Shoe, 1-0, in the third game of their City League championship series at Olympia Park last night. A fourth tilt will be played tonight at the Homewood Playgrounds. In the North Side League postseason conflict, Immaculate Heart tripped the North Siders, 3-1.

The Homestead Aces shut out the Reliance nine, 4-0, in the Greater Pittsburgh League tilting. National Union and Curtisville played a 6-6 tie at Sullivan Field in the first contest of a series. Playoff scores:

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 5.

In a game between Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh, a place kick is attempted from scrimmage. English of Carnegie Tech, is called up to hold the ball with Karcis to do the kicking. The Pittsburgh linemen charge through fast and English allows the ball to slip out of his hands and roll on the ground. Karcis, however, kicks the ball squarely between the uprights of the goal posts.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

The referee does not allow the field goal and inflicts a penalty on Carnegie Tech for kicking a free ball. Free balls either kicked or kicked at call for a penalty of the loss of the ball so in this case the ball goes over to Pittsburgh regardless of the down.

COUNTY TITLE TOURNAMENT ON TAP

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A large week-end of tennis looms for Western Pennsylvania racqueteers tomorrow and Sunday. Doubters of the fact may be convinced by reference to the schedule which includes besides the inauguration of hostilities in the revival of the Allegheny County championships at the Carnegie Library Club, Duquesne, Pa., an important inter-urban contest between Pittsburgh and Greensburg at the Greensburg Country Club and the final men's singles tilt of the Beaver County title meeting at the College Hill Tennis Club, Beaver Falls, Pa.

Entries for the man-to-man tilting at Duquesne will be closed at 6 p. m. today. Chairman Sam Keller will receive names by telephone until that hour at either McKeesport 8254 or McKeesport 5513. The men's doubles list will be held open until Monday evening while the deadline on women's singles is a day later.

BEGIN AT 1 O'CLOCK

Competition on the Library lot is scheduled to get under way at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Entrants will report as early as possible in order that the inevitably first-round bracket may be pruned down to convenient proportions by Monday, when visiting netmen and members of the local squad that will invade Greensburg will be on hand to break into action. It will be well for both officials and players to keep in mind the point that twilights have grown alarmingly short the past fortnight or so and that after-dinner competition will be limited to scarcely an hour. In view of this situation it will require plenty of hustling to run off the tourney in entirety before the end of the coming week for the boost that Sunday carousing would permit is eliminated by Sabbath regulations.

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, leader of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association racquet host yesterday gave as definite promise as a hospital interne can give that he will be in the Steel City lineup at Greensburg tomorrow. The Winged Head captain, however, will probably be unable to remain over in the Westmoreland ballpark to engage in exhibition play on Sunday.

STARS TO PLAY

His brilliant brother, Dr. John O'Loughlin, will be on deck for both sessions though, and it is hoped that Billy, youngest of the famed P. A. A. brethren, will have recovered sufficiently from the effects of his serious and painful dental operation of a week ago to permit him to join brothers Dave and John, Jack Lauler and Paul Sullivan in upholding Pittsburgh's masculine end of the impending inter-city struggle and to meet Dr. John in singles as part of the Sunday program.

BRAME CUBS' FOE TODAY

former bunkmates, although he did not pitch the last inning.

PETTY SCORES KELLY

Petty hit the leftfield wall with a liner to score George Kelly in the eighth. In the same inning, Lloyd Waner raised hob with the Cubs by turning in a pair of spectacular one-hand catches near the fence of right center.

The Waner Act all but upset the Bruins with two out in the ninth. The Silver Fox fanned Rolly Hemsley and Al Bool in succession, Bool being sent to the plate in place of Larry French who relieved Wood in the eighth.

Petty then started to work on Brother Lloyd, but the little fellow had all the best of the argument. His line hit to center bounded away from Hack Wilson for a double. Up came Paul and what a drive did he send out. Hack's way! Wilson seemed desperate in his effort to stop the ball and thus hold Paul to a single, but the rocket eluded him, yet not far enough to permit of a homer that would have ended the game right then and there. Paul rounded third, but he had no chance to score. Grantham was retired and the contest rode into extra innings.

Swetonic rushed to the mound and retired Cuyler, but Dan Taylor, who had just entered the game, singled on the infield and Kelly walloped a single to center. Brother Lloyd failed in an attempt at a shoe-string catch. In a jiffy, Hartnett had the ball over the left wall for his second homer and the game was as good as over, although the Buccos scored on the Cubs in the home half.

MALONE ON MOUND

Malone hurried to the mound, Lefty Grimm having batted for Petty. Traynor and Comorosky nicked Altoona Pat for singles, but Bartell grounded into a double play and Kelly and Malone turned in a fast play to retire Suhr for the final out.

Rogers Hornsby made his first appearance at second base since the star was injured in Chicago on Memorial Day. Clarence Blair went to the bench and McCarthy thus had nine righthanders swinging at the slants of Wood, the great little lefthander.

Charley ran his string of runless rounds to 23 innings before Woodie English crossed the plate in the third round. The new Pirate star was given bad support in spots and the Cubs were beginning to solve him when French came in. The Buccos hammered Guy Bush off the mound in the fifth, Petty replacing him.

Manager McCarthy stated this morning that Hornsby would remain in the lineup for the present.

Sport Vignettes

Because Tommy Freeman of Hot Springs, Cleveland and Erie, is highly regarded hereabouts, several hundred local fans will make the trip to Cleveland to see him make his bid for the world welterweight title against Young Jack Thompson, Negro holder of the crown, tonight . . . They are carded for 15 rounds to a decision, topping off an all-star bill at the American League baseball park . . . This writer will be at the ringside to report the episode . . . The Battle of the Century for Pitchers is slated for Cleveland either Saturday of next week or the following day, when Wesley Ferrell, of the Indians, and Lefty Grove, of the Athletics, are due to hook up for the first time this year . . . On the season's records, they are the premier pitchers of the American League, Ferrell as a righthander and Grove as a wrongsider . . . It is interesting to note the replies to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-Time Pitt Football Team contest . . . They come from many cities and towns . . . Two are from as far away as Chicago, one from a former Pitt man and the other a traveling man . . . The former Pitt man says he'll exchange whatever tickets he wins, if any, for a pair of ducats for the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame battle at South Bend . . . Some of the boys think it's a trick contest and are sending in last year's team intact, or the 1916 team intact . . . That gives them a perfect zero count . . . One fellow wants to be advised if his team is incorrect so he can send in another one in time . . . It is, but don't tell him we said so, and we can't answer letters, just follow the printed rules . . . Most of the answers received so far have seven of the 11 men correctly named . . . Dr. Joe Matson, former Pitt star, is among those who have submitted a team . . . And so is Babe Kelly, sandlot gridder of note . . . You still have more than a week to submit your guess . . . Tom Heeney, who fights George Panka at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, started out to become a plumber, changed to the trade of a blacksmith and wound up being a heavyweight fighter thousands of miles away from his native Australia . . . He holds a draw with Jack Sharkey and victories over Johnny Risko, Jack Delaney and Jim Maloney and was Gene Tunney's opponent in the latter's last bout in defense of the heavyweight title, losing by a knockout in 11 rounds . . . He's in the midst of a comeback campaign which he expects to culminate in a match with Max Schmeling, the new heavyweight champion, in Berlin.—HARRY KECK.

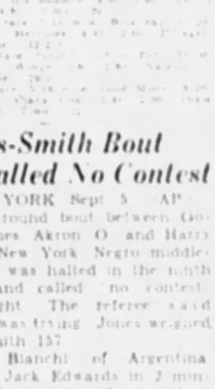
in the big show but who won jobs at other positions through their batting ability. Kaufmann fell down at the latter undertaking but may succeed in an attempted come-back as a pitcher on the strength of the lofty batting average he had made in the International League in 1928. Tony was brought back to the majors by John McGraw last year as an outfielder and pinch hitter for the Giants. Kaufmann was one of the biggest batting busts on record. He made the peculiar record of scoring 18 runs but making only one hit in 32 times at bat, for the sickly average of .031.

When McGraw cast him adrift Kaufmann went back to pitching for Houston in the Texas League this year and with such success that the St. Louis Cardinals, owner of the Houston club, has recalled him. Tony has been one of the leading hurlers of the Lone Star loop. Recently he was a principal in one of the feature games of the season, a pitchers' battle with ex-Pirate Lil Stoner, of Fort Worth. In this game, which was played at night, neither pitcher allowed a run until the fourteenth inning, when Fort Worth won by making three tallies to one scored by Houston. Kaufmann also figured in a hero role off the field a few days ago, when he led other members of the club through a burning building in Houston to rescue a 70-year-old Negro woman who had been trapped in the structure.



Tony Kaufmann

YOUNG JACK THOMPSON appears practically certain to retain the world welterweight fistic championship in his first bout in defense of that title when he enters the ring with Tommy Freeman in Cleveland tonight.

Despite a few exhibitions that were not up to par, Thompson when extending himself is one of the classiest of the present-day champions. The slimness of Freeman's chance in tonight's bout may be judged from the fact that he was defeated in the same city this year by Jackie Fields, while Fields in turn was decisively beaten by Thompson later when he lost his crown to the Negro.

RUBE GOLDBERG STOPPED BY GIZZY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Three technical knockouts and a fairmat windup sent the crowd home early from the weekly boxing show at Hickey Park Miniature last night.

Only the second bout went the limit of six rounds. In it Paul Balint of the North Side won the decision over Dot Frazier of Herron Hill and this contest had its high spot when the middleweight came loose from his fastenings as both lads went through into the ring platform in the course of the second of the final round.

Al (Rube) Goldberg of New York smarted himself into a severe plastering and a humiliating technical knockout defeat in three rounds in the scheduled 10-round main bout and wound up by having his purse withheld by the boxing commission. A suspension likely will be added. The bout was merely a tune-up for Battling Gizzy of Donora, his opponent.

HOLDS UP BOUT

Goldberg fought Jimmy Carmody in a five-round bout in New York on Wednesday night and then hopped a train and came here. His contract called for 15 per cent of the receipts but when he took a look at the crowd he tried to hold up the club for a guarantee of $150. He delayed the windup almost a half-hour and was getting back into his street clothes when Commissioner Harry Bestic entered the dressing room and ordered him to go on with the bout or suffer the consequences. He finally entered the ring with a shrug.

He was fat and slow and appeared to be suffering up from in front of the lights before and was looking out a peephole long enough to get Gizzy who slapped him from pillar to post from the first bell. Goldberg went down for two short counts in the opening round, was belted about until he was dizzy in the second and after being warned to fight by the referee, Al Grisbert went down for five counts in the third. At this stage, with Goldberg beginning to drop for breathing spells without being hit cleanly, the arbiter called a halt. The order to withhold the New Yorker's purse followed.

BRETSCH SCORES K. O.

Georgie Bretsch of the North Side knocked out Bud Cleveroni of Braddock in the second round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final, a slugfest and the best bout of the card. Cleveroni had been down three times and was glassy-eyed and helpless in a corner when Referee Joe Keally stopped the slaughter.

Sol Lippo of Philadelphia won over Gerald Morgan of Dennison O. in the third round when Referee Keally also stopped the bout. Morgan, a fancied-appearing fellow, never had a chance and ran no business in any ring.

Joey Thomas of Chicago was substituted before the main bout. He knew Johnny Datto in the main bout in the same ring next Friday night.

Frank Ferris and I. K. Meininger were the judges. Steve Russell and Max Zeigenschmidt the timers. Harry Klaar the announcer, and Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician.

Gizzy weighed 132½, and Goldberg 134. Bretsch 148½, and Cleveroni 147. Balint 126½, and Frazier 125½, and Lippo 135 and Morgan 129½.

Jones-Smith Bout Called No Contest

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP).—The 12-round bout between Gorilla Jones, Akron O., and Harry Smith, New York Negro middleweights, was halted in the ninth round and called "no contest" last night. The referee said neither was trying. Jones weighed 153, Smith 157.

Paul Bianchi, of Argentina, stopped Jack Edwards in 2 minutes, 32 seconds of the third round. Bianchi weighed 206, Edwards 199.

Campbell Plays Hecker in Final

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 5.—A steady game brought Howard Campbell, veteran College Hill tennis star, victory over Stewart Snodgrass, of Beaver Falls, here yesterday in the semi-finals of the Beaver County tournament. The scores were 12-10, 6-0.

Campbell meets Johnny Hecker, of New Brighton, tomorrow afternoon in the final.

Geneva College's football prospects will be reviewed by Jess Carver Sunday in his annual Football Roundup series.

Auto Manufacturers Face Difficult Problems

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—While some automobile executives profess to see gradually improving conditions in the industry, most companies are planning further curtailment of their production schedules for September. This additional curtailment will serve to further reduce dealers' inventories, but indicates the automobile industry as a whole still feels the hoped for upward trend is not in immediate prospect.

Some increased consumer demand has been noted in certain lines, but as a rule this has been mainly for models on which price reductions have been announced and the sales acceleration has been somewhat spasmodic.

Shortly after the recent "vacation" shutdowns that closed a majority of the production lines for two weeks or more it was indicated that the automobile industry had succeeded in bringing production down close to actual dealer requirements. This belief apparently was based upon the theory that consumer demand during the shutdown period would be considerably greater than it proved to be.

'Dealer Mortality' Light

THE DIFFICULT PROBLEM that faced virtually every automobile manufacturer early this year when hoped-for improvement in retail sales failed to materialize was to scale production down to the point where it was in line with retail orders, and yet avoid a complete indefinite shut-down by the factories.

The industry had its dealer organizations to consider as well as its factory workers. That there has been so far no great increase in "dealer mortality," indicates the great amount of thought that has been given this particular phase of the industry's merchandising problem.

One of the automobile industry's leading sales managers expresses the belief that production next year will be regulated more closely to retail demand than at any time in the past. He looks also for a marked lowering of prices for used cars and at the same time a sharp drop in the trade-in value of old cars.

Offsetting this, however, will be the higher "dollar value" which manufacturing economies have made possible in new cars.

Noise Nuisance Attacked

NUMEROUS PRICE REDUCTIONS have been announced during the last few months, mainly on models the manufacturers have chosen to dispose of in preparation for new types. Most of these price reductions, it is understood now probably will hold for the new models or, if any increase is made, it will not be a large one.

One of the mechanical problems occupying a large part of the attention of automotive engineers at present is the reduction of transmission noise. It appears safe to predict that one of the most important forward developments mechanically that may be looked for in the near future will be a new type of transmission. Already silent gear shifting has been achieved, but various simple devices such as felt insulation have been resorted to further silence engine noises and the absolutely silent automobile operated with an internal combustion engine still is to be designed.

BROKERS LOANS UP $8,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Loans to brokers and dealers on stock and bond collateral by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City increased $8,000,000 during the week ended September 3, to $3,110,000,000, compared with $3,102,000,000 in the previous week and with the high record of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

The report showed that the company had maintained a strong cash position and Chairman Hoxsey indicated that the management had determined to make this year a period of thorough housecleaning to put the company in shape to take advantage of better times.

AT TURNING POINT

While chain store reports appearing for August showed that it was the worst month so far this year, President Parsons said that the month had recorded a turning point in the Woolworth Company's business which had gained substantially during the latter part. This bears out official reports which have come from merchandising circles to Wall street.

Although F. W. Dodge's building contract reports for August failed to maintain the gains over July shown in the early weeks, the entire month showed a drop of only 29 per cent from August 1929, while July was nearly 44 per cent under July 1929.

The Federal Reserve weekly statements showed that the month-end money pinch had been easily met by member borrowings rather than the system's open market operations. A gain of only $8,000,000 in brokers' loans was about as expected. Call money held at 2½ per cent.

THE PRESIDENT

C. E. Groesbeck
Grand Rapids. After graduating as an engineer he became associated with H. M. Byllesby, later was spotted by Stone & Mitchell, giant of giants in the utility world, exhibited abnormal capacity for brilliant work, and is now Mr. Mitchell's right-hand executive in many enterprises.

H. D. WALBRIDGE
ager of the Grand Rapids Company, producers eminent
to New York, became associated with Anton G. Hodenpyl and George E. Hardy, under the firm name of Hodenpyl, Walbridge & Company, which later became Hodenpyl, Hardy & Company, who controlled the Commonwealth Power Corporation. Having acquired a large fortune, Mr. Walbridge now takes life more leisurely.

Mr. Hodenpyl also got his start in Grand Rapids. The firm which he headed branched out on a very large and important scale and all the partners attained wealth.

Mr. Hardy, the third member of the concern, succeeded Mr. Hodenpyl as president and for long has been a big public utility figure. Although the firm was dissolved last year, Mr. Hardy still maintains active connection with various power companies.

Jacob Hekma also was early identified with Messrs. Hodenpyl and Hardy and recently became vice president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, which includes such important companies as Northern Ohio Power and Light, Tennessee Electric Power, Southeastern Power and Light, and other companies which, combined, constitute one of America's gigantic utility enterprises.

FRANK T. HULSWIT began as office boy with the Michigan Trust Company, gravitated to Chicago, and later became affiliated with the Midwest Utilities Company. He became president of United Light and Railways Company, later reincorporated as United Light and Power Company, now a big enterprise. Pulls three years ago, Mr. Hulswit, along with David A. Bolden, of St. Louis, and Fred W. Seymour, formed the American Commonwealth Power Corporation, of which Mr. Hulswit is president. Recently it reached into Canada and now has an annual income of over $31,000,000.

AMONG OTHER notables emanating from Grand Rapids are Fred W. Seymour, now vice president of American Commonwealth Power Corporation; Floyd B. Odlum, high-up Electric Bond and Share executive and vice chairman of American and Foreign Power; Ralph S. Child, now an important figure in Bonbright & Company, a house which has attained exceptional eminence; Albert E. Peirce, largest owner of the Central Public Service Company; Herman Russell, vice president and general manager of Rochester Gas and Electric; Albert Vermeer, of American Commonwealths power system; James Brown, Charles Tipps and William Barthold, ranking officers of Commonwealth and Southern properties; Alva F. Traver, vice president of American Commonwealth Power.

YOU WILL THUS see that Grand Rapids deserves to be as famous for utility men it has produced as for the furniture it produces.

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

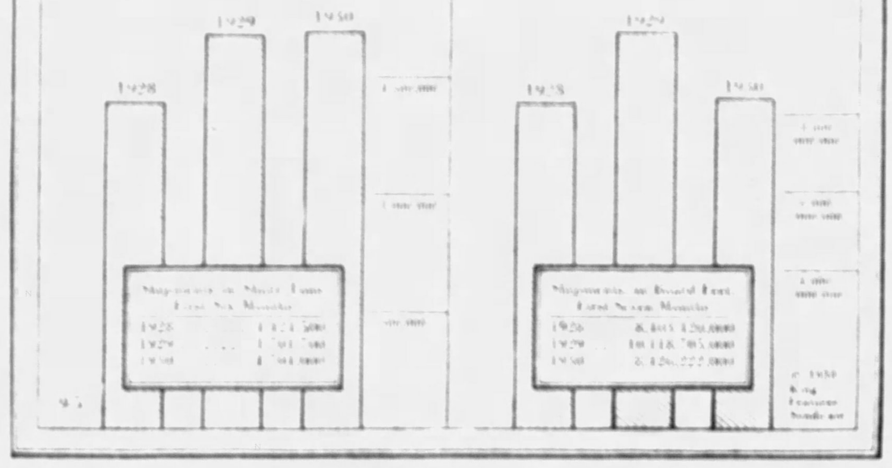
Structural Steel and Lumber Shipments

Chart shows the shipments of fabricated structural steel in the first six months of 1928, 1929 and 1930, and the shipments of softwood lumber in the first seven months of the same years. Sources: U. S. Bureau of the Census and the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.



Fabricated Structural Steel

Shipments of structural steel are a good index to engineering construction—industrial gas and power plants, bridge and railroad developments, hotels, apartments and office and institutional buildings. In the first half of 1930 these shipments were larger than in any corresponding period, which indicates that the heavy construction branch of the building industry is having a very good year.

Softwood Lumber

As the greater part of this softwood lumber is used by carpenters for structural purposes, these shipments indicate general building activity of all kinds throughout the country. They are 17% under 1929, due to a large extent to the decline in house construction this year, but they are higher than 1928, which is worthy of serious consideration.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"A guy must be great to be rich!" The young 15 year old boy facing Max Carroll, feet apart, hands deep in his trousers pockets, you know the swagger pose of that age.

Max sat there, slightly bald and a bit gouty, looking all of his 60 years, rested his ponderous weight in the most comfortable chair on the terrace.

"There are lots of things that count more, Buddy," he remarked, his good natured face taking on a wistful expression.

Lonely Man

"Have you ever been married, Buttons?" Max had asked, not knowing in the least what prompted the question. Though for years they had shared the same apartment they lived as far apart as the two poles.

Buttons looked up with a startled look breaking through his usual blank expression.

"Been married? No sir! I—never felt the need of getting married. Sir, if I might make so bold as to say so."

And that was as far as Max had ever probed into Buttons' private affairs.

At this moment Max wished he could make so bold as to declare he had never felt the need of getting married. He watched Rose, with a decided gnawing at his heart.

"Good morning, hope you had a restful night," she called to him.

"Bob was rather tuckered out after his trip. I'm letting him sleep late." She laughed quite a young laugh, Max thought.

It sounded like heavenly music to his lonely old heart. She handed him the paper.

"Have you seen it? I imagine Buddy had it, he usually leaves every section scattered to the four winds."

Betty, the young daughter of the house, emerged and after greeting Max the two went arm in arm, down the broad steps to the rose garden.

Bob sauntered out on the terrace, wearily. At sight of Max, the rather bored expression on his dark face gave place to one of keen interest.

"Glad you are down so early. We have a few minutes before breakfast. I believe they are waiting for those two tennis bugs."

Max looked in the direction of the tennis court.

"Don't hurry them through life, they're young, you know," he remarked, a twang of humor in his voice.

Both Envious

"Well I feel far removed from their enviable state, can't stand what I used to," he growled, drawing up a chair and dropping into it with an air of weariness.

"I wouldn't go to town today if there was a quiet place on this vast estate where a man could work. I must get out [illegible]se plans for Gans & Co. are two days overdue now."

[illegible]rded Max thoughtfully, but you're lucky. A [illegible]ment all to yourself, [illegible] no fuss. Here we ha[illegible]se. No wonder your[illegible]h strides."

Max [illegible] eyes opened wide and [illegible] gave a low whistle. Bob looked at him sharply.

"What's wrong?" he asked abruptly.

"Oh, nothing. Just seems funny I've been envying you all these things, money can't buy, the only things that count when a man grows old.

Max Plans

On his way to town he was busy with plans. He would see the girls that evening. Everything could be arranged and they might even be all comfortably settled by the end of the week.

At lunch he suddenly took Buttons into his confidence.

"Buttons, I'm thinking of having my nieces come to live with me," he announced abruptly.

Buttons seemed not to gather the meaning of the announcement. He stared at Max a look of bewilderment on his stolid face.

"Your nieces, sir, to live here, sir?" he gasped.

There was no mistaking the astonishment in Buttons' tone. One could hardly have expected more had Max announced his intention of bringing in two polar bears as fellow companions.

Max regarded Buttons with an amused smile. No doubt it would make a difference in their mode of living. Buttons' attitude was anything but encouraging.

The afternoon was rather a hard one. He had intended seeing the girls, but when at last he was free, he called a cab and went home. He'd phone Pat and have them come over. He sank wearily into an easy chair in his den. Buttons brought his slippers and whisky and soda.

"Buttons, look up Miss Allen's number in the telephone directory."

Changes His Mind

There was a devilish twinge in his gouty foot, and he didn't feel any too good in the head, he felt all in, to tell the truth. He was glad of the quiet of his apartment. It soothed his ruffled nerves. As he sipped his drink, his eyes rested on the book he had been reading—a corking good detective story. It lay face down, open where he had left off. It occurred to him if his nieces were there, the book would have been put away in the book shelf, he would have to hunt for it, and it would take him half an hour to find his place. He wondered how he was going to like having his habits interfered with. This thought having wedged into his thoroughly made up mind, another followed close on its heels. How would he like having a young crowd there tonight, bent on an evening's entertainment, and he nursing a gouty toe and a splitting headache? The very thought seemed unbearable. He began to see that this idea about having the girls wasn't practicable. When a man grows old alone, he might as well expect to see the game through. He's just as much married to his single bliss as a married man is to his family—more so.

He reached for his book. A sudden twinge of pain in the pit of his stomach caused him to shift his position uneasily.

"Confound it, a man of my age ought to have better sense than to eat lobster," he grumbled, fumbling in his pocket for a dyspeptic tablet.

He looked around at Buttons, struggling with the Allens in the telephone directory.

"Buttons, mix me a dose of bicarbonate of soda," he snapped impatiently.

Buttons laid down the book and moved toward the door with his usual slow, measured tread.

"And Buttons—"

"Yes, sir." Buttons waited respectfully.

"Never mind the telephone number. I've changed my mind."

A campaign to deport alien violators of prohibition statutes is said to be a part of the new dry enforcement program.

A lot of people are also in favor of deporting Communists. But if we insist upon sinking out both those who have un-American ideas and those who have become thoroughly Americanized we might as well stop immigration entirely.

Farming Is Big Industry In Allegheny County

The tour of some of Allegheny County's farms to be made next Tuesday by representatives of all the banks in the county should have a beneficial effect. If it does nothing else it will direct attention to the importance of agriculture in this county and this may lead to stimulation of production and improvement in marketing conditions.

Because it is overshadowed by manufacturing and mining, the importance of agriculture as a Pennsylvania industry is often overlooked, while Allegheny County is seldom regarded as an agricultural region. The fact is, however, that Pennsylvania's principal field crops last year exceeded in value the combined yields of all the New England states with Delaware thrown in for good measure. Allegheny County's contribution to the value of the state's 1929 harvest of field crops was $2,422,830, and it produced in addition $3,137,220 worth of milk, eggs, wool and honey.

Allegheny County leads all other counties in the state in the production of sweet corn, tomatoes and onions, is second in its yield of cabbage and lettuce, and well to the fore in apples, peaches and grapes.

The county has 4,240 farms and 175,000 acres of improved farm land.

That Allegheny County's production of fruits and vegetables might profitably be increased is suggested by the fact that 29,279 carloads were brought into Pittsburgh last year from other counties and other states. We raised 96,940 bushels of potatoes at home, but we had to bring in 4,344 carloads in addition, to supply the demand. We raised 115,440 bushels of apples, but we had to import many hundreds of carloads besides, bringing some of them from places as far distant as the state of Washington. And this notwithstanding that with proper care apples can be grown in Allegheny County that are just as good as those grown on the Pacific Coast.

With the great market that Pittsburgh offers for many agricultural products it would seem to be worth while to increase local production and keep at home some of the immense sums of money that we now have to pay growers in other states for these things.

Storage Reservoir Plan For Flood Prevention

Encouraging news comes from the Mississippi Valley. Influential people there have come out boldly in favor of the storage reservoir plan for the prevention of floods, the method recommended by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh.

The ardent support that they are giving will do much to offset the lukewarmness of United States Army engineers who have been investigating the local project. Concerning the proposal that storage reservoirs be established on the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela to impound flood water and protect Pittsburgh from freshets and furnish water in time of drought, the engineers reported that the cost would outweigh the benefits. The Flood Commission, vigorously dissenting, pointed out that the Army men, in making their estimate, had provided for twice as much storage as was necessary and had overlooked some of the benefits.

Now comes Gov. Theodore Christianson, of Minnesota, with an indorsement of the storage reservoir plan for the Mississippi Valley. And at the other end of the valley, Walter Parker, New Orleans economist, has recently declared that the only sensible way to prevent floods is by controlling the source streams. As Mr. Parker is executive vice president of the National Flood Prevention and River Regulation Commission, his views are accepted as authoritative and are widely circulated.

The outlook for the 17 reservoirs that Pittsburgh needs is made more hopeful by the pronouncements of Gov. Christianson and Mr. Parker.

The Nation's Education

Creation of Federal Department Is of Vital Importance.

Opening of another school year finds the federal government still shirking its constitutional obligation to co-operate effectively with the several states in the promotion of education.

This duty can best be performed by the establishment of a Department of Education with a secretary of education in the President's cabinet.

Pending before the Congress is a bill, introduced in the Senate by Senator Capper, of Kansas, and in the House by Representative Robsion, of Kentucky, which provides for the [illegible] of this new and vitally needed department.

The Capper-Robsion bill consolidates in one department the educational activities of the federal government now scattered among several departments and independent agencies. It [illegible] funds to enable the new department to conduct research and to distribute the information thus obtained to several states.

It establishes a departmental conference on education to be made up of representatives from each of the executive departments.

It creates a national council on education to consist of the chief school officers of the states and territories.

It places education upon an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor in the cabinet of the President.

It leaves the control of education where it now rests and properly belongs—with state and local authority.

Control of education is a sovereign function of the state and is guaranteed by Article X of the Constitution.

But the promotion of education is as much the duty of the federal government as it is of the several states.

Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln are among the great Presidents who have emphasized its importance as a national duty.

Calvin Coolidge was only applying their teachings to modern needs when, as President, he urged upon the Congress the establishment of a Department of Education.

The Hearst publications, speaking for some 30,000,000 readers, in every state in the union, at the opening of the new school year, urge the Congress to pass the Capper-Robsion bill at the coming session and place education on an equality with agriculture, commerce and labor in the President's cabinet.

Too Fat to Fight?

By Nelson Harding

Has Uncle Sam become so soft
And has he grown so plump
That he'll supinely sit and take
That shrimp's repeated thump?

And has this giant timid grown
That pygmies racketeer him
And beat him up and take his wealth
And never seem to fear him?

HENRY CAVENDISH

By Archibald Henderson

A name immortal in the history of science, for his scientific methodology and for his great discovery of the composition of air, is that of Henry Cavendish. He was left a great fortune by an uncle, but he cared little or nothing for it, except as a means to enable him to prosecute his scientific researches.

Cavendish has been accurately termed "the most wealthy of learned men and the most learned of wealthy men." He was shy and eccentric, an inveterate woman hater, taciturn to an incredible degree and interested solely in his scientific experiments. His biographer describes him as "a wonderful piece of intellectual clockwork, and as he lived by rule he died by it, predicting his death as if it were an eclipse of a great luminary."

Henry Cavendish, the son of Lord Charles Cavendish and the grandson of the second Duke of Devonshire, was born at Nice, October 10, 1731. Although he remained three years at Peterhouse College, Cambridge, he did not take a degree there. With no social graces and the habits of a recluse, he turned his residence into a scientific workshop.

The drawing room was transformed into a laboratory, another room into a forge, and the upper apartments into an astronomical laboratory.

The conspicuous feature of Cavendish's scientific method was accurate measurement. Endlessly patient, he was quite ready to repeat his experiments in varying forms until the desired results were obtained—no matter how long it took. He was lacking in ambition in the ordinary sense; sought no honors or rewards for public recognition. He was quite lacking in jealousy of other investigators and was indifferent to establishing priority for his own researches. Yet he was, unwittingly, the cause of provoking one of the most vigorous controversies in the history of science.

Cavendish is remembered for making an accurate measurement of the weight of the earth by means of a very simple apparatus, and anticipated by considerably more than a century the discovery of one of the rare gases, aragon, which he weighed with striking accuracy, considering the imperfection of the instruments at his disposal.

Cavendish's epochal discovery of the composition of water inaugurated a new era in chemical research. Earlier experiments by John Warltire and Pierre Joseph Macquer suggested to Cavendish the notion of combining oxygen and hydrogen, not then known by those names, to form water. In January, 1784, he read his memoir on "Experiments on Air" before the Royal Society of England. He informed them: "Water consists of diphlogisticated air united with phlogiston." In current chemical parlance this meant that water is a compound of two gases, two volumes of hydrogen to one of oxygen. By the most elaborate experiments and accurate measurements he completely demonstrated the truth of his great discovery. He left a large sum to science, and the great physical laboratory at Cambridge University bears his name.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Plants are a great show.

All this morning, crossing over the ridge that lies behind my camp, I have been tramping through them. Hundreds of kinds of plants—mile after mile in their infinite variety . . . tiny mosses, filaments of copper cups of amber . . . "mountain misery" spreading in a gummy mat along the powdery, pink soil, smelling like new leather . . . ferns, turning rusty gold with the first fall frost . . . manzanita, ruddy barked, orange berries hanging in its silver green leaves . . . chapparal that, in the spring, will be a foam of blue . . . live oaks, spreading gnarled gray branches low along the ground . . . swamp oaks, spraying skyward like fountains . . . bull pines, purple dark, heavy as bronze against the brittle, blue sky.

Hundreds of varieties of plants and no two alike in leaf or fruit. Yet all alike in this—All are reaching out from the dark and secret places in which they are rooted, stretching out toward the sunlight, seeking to release and enrich themselves.

Tramping through the woods, touching plants on every side, that thought moves you strangely. Suddenly there are no longer plants. They are living creatures, filled with hunger and desire. Living creatures crying . . . almost you can hear them crying! . . . "Give me life! Give me life! Give me life!"

No matter how common the plant, no matter how dark the rooting, always there is that cry "Give me life!" And when once you have heard that cry you can never again feel the same about plants. For the cry is in them is in you, too, though the plant is a weed and you a human being, you both cry—"Give me life!" and that cry binds you together.

And what is true of plants, and of you is true too of all other men. There never yet was a life that wasn't reaching out—that wasn't trying to better itself.

The thing for which that other life reaches may seem trivial or stupid or actually vicious to you, but to that life it seems worth while. And its cry "Give me life!" is all of a piece with your cry "Give me life!"

Solomon praying for wisdom . . . Garibaldi fighting for liberty . . . Byrd daring the Pole . . . Mamie trying to land a new boy friend . . . Gyp the Blood, spreading a reign of terror through the underworld . . . and the missis raising Cain because she can't have a new roadster . . . they are all reaching out. Reaching out for something that to them will enrich life and make them more powerful and happy. Even the drunkard and the hophead are reaching out, trying through their terrible addiction to escape into a realm where they may be at peace.

Every man reaches out. And though the thing for which he reaches may be unworthy, the reaching itself is not unworthy. It is the most necessary and the most sacred thing in life. Despise, if you wish, the thing for which a man reaches—but don't despise the urge that makes him reach. For that urge is Life, trying to increase itself. And Life is always mysterious and terrible and holy whether you find it in a common weed or in a loafer on a park bench—or in a saint or a philosopher. They all cry "GIVE ME LIFE!" Respect their cry . . . as you wish them to respect yours.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

You talk about women being gossips, but they'd have to work hard at it to beat some men. And especially when some men get a bit of liquor under their belts, they are just as curious about everybody's affairs as any woman you ever seen.

A judge in California came from the train one day with a bundle of golf clubs that he had just brought from the shop where they'd been repaired. A neighbor of his was strolling home, all lit up.

"Hello, Judge, what kinda score ju make t'day?" he says.

"I ain't played today," says the judge.

"Aha, I see! You just goin' to play, huh?"

"No."

"Ah, I gotja, Judge! I thought so! You just brung them clubs home to beat the wife, didn't you?"

Text For Today

I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.—John, ix: 4.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. Lammert Redelfs, pastor, St. Paul's Lutheran Church, North Side.)

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Doctor Looks at Feet

The Medical Congress in Canada erupts some very good advice if you can live to enjoy it.

Lord Dawson tells us never to eat when our hands and feet are cold. Thereby putting well-diggers on a diet for life.

"Bugs" Baer

Lord Dawson is personal physician to King George and advises folks to eat plain, simple food, but doesn't tell us where to get it. If that's what the King eats we will have to cancel that dinner engagement.

We admit that his prescription about eating with cold hands and feet may be almost a correct diagnosis.

But he cannot expect us to pay for that kind of advice during a heat wave.

We will read the whole indictment: "If a man comes home cold and tired," says Lord Dawson, looking over the rims of his microscope, "and sits down to a hearty meal he is going to have trouble. First he should warm his hands in a basin of boiling water and then toast his feet before the fire."

We haven't met any feet-toasters in years. Not since Honest John stole the red-hot stove out of the backroom of McGurk's grocery store on the corner.

Feet-toasting was quite a science in the old days when a man could get run over by a hoss-and-wagon and still retain his good name.

But since they have been illuminating homes with reflected lighting it is quite difficult to toast your dogs on an electric bulb that is lurking in an alcove near the ceiling.

Then, quite a few of us eat in restaurants, where arrangements are beautiful for checking your hats and gloves. But not your shoes.

It wouldn't be quite Newporty to warm your little toes in the clam chowder. You can always take the icicles off your mustache in a saucer of coffee and scrub your teeth on an ear of corn. But the question of feet should never be broached in polite society unless the hostess brings up the subject herself by rushing past an important building during the fruit and berry season.

Lord Dawson gave out plenty of good advice across the border and we imported it free of duty. You must be a smart man to address 2,500 doctors and not have them charge you two dollars a visit.

He has an important post in England looking after royalty's health when it happens to be in the vicinity.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

If, for instance, in a given space of time each species has thrown up 10 mutations, then the self-fertilized species will be in possession just of these 10 new types and no more, while its cross-fertilized rival will have the possibility of over a thousand new types built out of the recombinations of the 10.

In a word, sexual union is good in plants and animals alike, because it affords a method of variation. By shuffling about the mutations that appear, by combining them in various ways and presenting the results to natural selection, it lends efficiency and speed to the evolutionary process.

H. G. Wells

Sexual union is essentially the pooling of the mutation-experience of two lines of descent. A useful mutation is a precious event, not too frequent, the sex-machinery keeps up a continual mixing and interweaving of germ-plasm strands so that these treasures can be preserved and combined to the best possible advantage.

Such seems to be the clue to our riddle. Sex is forced upon organisms because they reproduce so fast, because of that Malthusian population-pressure that compels them, as we shall shortly learn, to wrestle with and seize every advantage. Moreover, it is precisely because mutation is a casual random process that the continual juggling machinery of sex is so important. It allows the race to get the most out of its mutations.

That is why conjugation interrupts the normal proliferation of protozoa every now and then. That is why in large and elaborately organized individuals like ourselves, which reproduce themselves comparatively infrequently, sexual union is entangled with every reproductive act.

SECTION 8—VARIATIONS IN PLANTS.

So far we have dealt only with so-called gene-mutations, i. e., changes involving a single gene. But there are other ways in which the germ-plasm can be modified. Mutation is apparently something of an accident, the result of diet or the impact of an X-ray, and the accident can affect more than a single gene.

Often if the chromosomes of a number of closely related plants are counted they turn out to be simple multiples of each other. Thus, different kinds of wheat may have fourteen, twenty-eight, or forty-two chromosomes in their nuclei—all multiples of seven.

Then roses and brambles may have 14, 21, 28, 35, 42, or 56. Bananas may have 16, 24, 32 or 48. And similarly with a great number of cultivated and wild plants. This phenomenon is called "polyploidy," the presence of multiple chromosome sets, and is apparently of widespread importance in the vegetable world.

We can presume that these races which generally show evident differences from each other) arose by sudden doubling, trebling, and so on, of the chromosomes of the member of the series which has least. This can be imagined as happening in various ways.

For example, a dividing cell might go wrong and fail to pull itself into halves after the chromosomes had been split. But we have no space to go into the details of polyploidy here.

The fascinating thing about these phenomena is that sometimes they seem to show us species evolving before our eyes. In the garden flower Primula sinensis, for example, a race suddenly sprang into being (during the last hundred years) with double the normal number of chromosomes.

It differs in flower-color, stem-color, leaf-shape and growth-form from the parent variety, and because its chromosome outfit is so unlike that of its parent form they are almost completely sterile together. About one in a thousand attempts to cross the two succeeds.

Such hybrids as are obtained are intermediate in type between the two parent plants and are even more sterile. Surely, by all the accepted definitions of species, a new species has sprung into being.

Moreover, in this sense, one can actually make species. If a tomato plant is repeatedly cut down always at about the same place its cells begin to go wrong, and often doubling of the chromosomes appears. If this occurs, then a new kind of stem may grow out and produce leaves and flowers, the whole being quite different from the original plant from which it is growing. And the new variety is sterile with the old.

Continued Tomorrow.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Thoughts while strolling: The historic Garrick goes burlesque. Shades of Mansfield and Modjeska! Who remembers when all Childs' looked alike. Fragrant odors from Italian cafes—suggesting black olives, salami, antipasto and curled red peppers. Yum, yum!

Gene Fowler, a Denver, Colorado, boy who made good in the city. Never saw a fat head waiter. Arthur Hammerstein wears blue collars, too. Those Turkish towel bath robes get a play. A socialist lecture bureau. Earl Carroll's young brother Norman, who manages Earl's affairs.

A saddle shop 'selling out—the auto, hooray, has come to stay. Perfume—"to fit one's astral personality." Jack Kennedy, the restaurant keeper. Brilliant finger tips and lips, but dull minds. Spooky tea rooms in black and orange and a candle glow. With fortune telling booths.

High nosed ladies who attend noonday lectures and listen to talk of the Tulli Carminata, the actor, no worse for his slapping. Non-fattening candy. Still crowding the photomaton parlors—sophisticated old Broadway.

The fellow who poses as Alfred Lunt. Bugs Baer in front of Friars. Sea food cafe windows of crawling things. The Casino Theater site now has a high building. On its stage the Floradora sextette became famous. And "Erminie" made its record run. Herb Roth's hippo shoulders.

Herald Square, once a high spot, now sedate. The group that clots about the fire under little tar wagons. Carlo Tresca, the anarchist. Whose name somehow fits him. Gynasium schools with outside barkers. Seedy salesmen of 10-cent song books—one the image of Roger Wolfe Kahn.

He-man luncheon places in West 30's. Where loft workers go. And idle in front afterward, puffing black cigars. Yiddish noonday extra—headlining Soviet news from Moscow. White bearded patriarchs. Rosy cheeked Jewish girls. Bolsheviki Boulevard!

London is panegyrized for its country inn names. I cull these from memory among those around New York and present them with a modest bow: The Old Lyme Tavern, Deer Cove Inn, Yama Farms, Briarcliff Lodge, Stage Coach Stop, Simsbury Manor, Greylock Moors, The Gramatan, Lake Mohonk Mountain House, Lord Jeffrey and that beautiful trail to the Port of Missing Men.

I stopped at Lafayette and Canal for a shine at "Silk Hat Tony's." Despite the inferno of heat Tony, in tail coat and silk hat, carried on all summer. A magazine recently flushed him out for publicity and Tony had to put on helpers, also clad in high hats and tails. If business keeps up he will open a chain of "Silk Hat Tony" parlors soon. His costume grew out of an election wager and attracted so much attention he kept wearing it. Tony rattles off a list of distinguished patrons and while a good shiner, seemed to me a little weak around the heels.

The ghosts of horse car lines remain on several down town streets. The lines were abandoned but it was cheaper to leave the rails standing in double scars, a memento of a fading generation.

A Forty-second street newsdealer surprises new customers by handing them the paper they desire before it is named. A simple trick. He watches their eyes. In every instance the gaze lingers on the paper they want.

I feel masterful this evening. In my eyes shines a mocking gleam. Quietly, but in a forceful way, I convinced a Schrayt waitress the establishment's culinary department could supply Ham Hawaiian, dish of the house not on the menu. There were whispered conferences among departmental heads, hurried dispatching of messengers through swinging doors but it was procured. Ham Hawaiian is a slice of fried ham and a slice of canned pineapple. Had it been a grown male waiter, instead of such long-winded arguing, he would have received a fat whack in the mush. I'm still pretty mad.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Because of the unwarranted ideas you may have of your own ability and the soundness of your opinions you may be shutting yourself off from much information which might be of great value to you.

You ought to know that others who have had more experience would naturally accumulate some valuable knowledge.

Why do you think your own ideas more important than those of others?

You have made many errors; you have lost money and frequently go on a wild goose chase after information that does not materialize.

It looked promising to you, but you failed to get what you wanted.

So you have not a monopoly on judgment and superior information.

But it is easy to overlook your own mistakes.

You don't defer to others enough.

You don't seek the advice of older and more seasoned men.

Hence you do not get enough for the physical effort you make.

But you demand efficiency that you cannot give.

If you were responsible to others you could not put over the crude ideas you have.

But you have someone else to blame if things go wrong, and you blame the other fellow for failure when he has only carried out your ideas.
